PREFACE.

My schoolmate and friend, Mr. A. H. Ricketts, considers it proper that the eldest son of the author of the first work on American mining law should write the preface to the latest book on that subject. But for the sentiment involved, I should hesitate, as a mere layman, to identify myself even in this small way, with a work of the technical character of this book. My father, the late Gregory Yale, as far back as 1867 wrote his book on "Mining Claims and Water Rights," before which there was no original contribution on mining law in American legal literature. Based largely on the now obsolete mining law of Congress of July, 1866, that work is now mainly of interest for the historical features connected with the subject, and has been long out of print.

This latest work on American mining law, by Mr. Ricketts, brings everything on the subject up to date, as to State and Federal legislation, the decisions of the courts, and the rulings of the Departments. On reading the advance sheets one is at once struck by the conciseness in which the facts are presented. There has been no attempt whatever toward elaboration or argument. The author gives what he considers the proper construction of the law and in each case cites the authorities. There is therefore nothing to confuse the layman, while at the same time the book is of great value for reference to those of the legal profession. Under each general heading are numbered and titled paragraphs, exceedingly brief but expressive, and containing reference to the footnote showing the authority and its source. No arrangement could well be handier for reference to the prospector, miner, mine manager or lawyer.

It is to be noted that both the first book on American mining law and the latest one on the same subject are by Californian authors, practicing attorneys in the city of San Francisco, where both books were published.

CHAPTER I.

MINING LAW IN THE UNITED STATES.

- § 1. Local rules, regulations and customs—cause of establishment—common law of mining—statutory limitations—Californian provision—absence of rules and customs—when void—presumptions—construction—evidence—effect of non-observance.
- § 2. Statutory law—lack of uniformity—salutary provisions.
- § 3. Alaska—additional provisions—explorations on Behring Sea—dredging—beach claims—roadway—aliens—adverse claims—adverse suits—adverse possession.
- § 4. Hawaii—land department.
- § 5. Philippine Islands—dissimilar provisions—tunnel sites—land department.
- § 6. Porto Rico.

§ 1. Local Rules, Regulations and Customs. The basic principle of the rules, regulations and customs of miners are discovery, appropriation and development.¹ They were introduced into California by the early miners, who obtained them from various foreign sources.²

2. CAUSE OF ESTABLISHMENT. The absence of statutory law regulating mining and the use of water on the public domain was the cause of their establishment.³

3. COMMON LAW OF MINING. They were, in their general features, adopted throughout all the mining regions of the United States and are deemed the common law of mining in the United States.⁴

4. STATUTORY LIMITATIONS. Local rules and regulations are now practically superseded by legislative enactment in the mining states and territories, although miners are still permitted in their respective districts,⁵ particularly in Alaska,⁶ to make rules and regulations and adopt customs not in conflict with the paramount law.⁷

5. CALIFORNIAN PROVISION. Under the express provisions of the "mining act" of California, (in effect July 1, 1909), the mining districts or the rules and regulations thereof in that State, are not, in any manner to be construed as thereby affected or abolished.⁸

6. ABSENCE OF RULES AND CUSTOMS. Where there are no local statutes nor district rules, regulations or customs affecting the manner of acquiring and maintaining possession of a mining claim, the observance of the provisions of the federal mining act is sufficient.⁹

7. WHEN VOID. When the district rules or customs are unreasonable, in conflict with higher law,¹⁰ fall into disuse or are generally disregarded, they are void.¹¹

8. PRESUMPTIONS. Where they are shown to have been established their existence is presumed to continue¹² unless abrogated by federal or local legislation. In the absence of proof of their existence it is presumed that none exist.¹³

It will be presumed that a party in possession of a mining claim holds it in accordance with the district rules and customs.¹⁴

9. CONSTRUCTION. In a legal sense there is no distinction between a written rule or regulation and a custom or usage.¹⁵ The validity of each depends upon the customary obedience and acquiescence of the miners of the district.¹⁶ A custom reasonable in itself will prevail over a written rule which has fallen into disuse and is generally disregarded.¹⁷ A miner's rule is subject to the same rule of construction as a statute,¹⁸ although it does not, like a statute, acquire validity by its mere enactment.¹⁹

10. EVIDENCE. Courts do not take judicial notice of miner's rules and customs.²⁰ The proof of their existence is governed by the ordinary rules of evidence.²¹

11. EFFECT OF NON-OBSERVANCE. While a valid rule, regulation or custom is in force it must be complied with.²² It has been held that no forfeiture follows non-compliance unless the rules so expressly provide.²³

§ 2. Statutory Law. Except within the State of Texas, which has its independent code of mining law¹ the statutory mining law consists of the acts of Congress and the laws of the various mining states and territories supplemental thereto.² This subsidiary legislation is invited by the mining act of Congress, with the proviso that it shall not conflict with the laws of the United States.³ If repugnant thereto it is void.⁴

2. LACK OF UNIFORMITY. The application and operation of the mining law are not uniform. Certain Congressional enactments apply only to Alaska.⁵ The mining acts of the several mining states are dissimilar in detail, have no extra-territorial force, and often needlessly add to the burden of the locator.⁶

3. SALUTARY PROVISIONS. Salutary provisions found in the local statutes are such as provide for the recording of an affidavit of annual expenditure, the legal effect to be given thereto,⁷ and for a means for establishing record evidence of a demand for contribution for assessment work from a delinquent co-owner.⁸

2. Rev. Stats. § 2324, Saxton v. Perry, 47 Colo. 263. § 3. Alaska. The laws of the United States relating to mining claims, mineral locations, and rights incident thereto have been extended to the district of Alaska.

2. ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS. Provision is also made for the appointment of mining recorders, the recording of location notices, affidavits of annual expenditure and the place where such instruments shall be recorded.

3. EXPLORATIONS ON BEHRING SEA. Mining may be conducted on the Behring Sea subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of War.

4. DREDGING. Dredging may be conducted in said sea subject to such regulations.

5. BEACH CLAIMS. Miners on the beach of said sea have the right to dump tailings into or pump from the sea opposite their claims except where such dumping would actually obstruct navigation.

6. ROADWAY. The reservation of a roadway 60 feet wide under an act extending the homestead laws, etc., to Alaska does not apply to mineral lands and townsites.¹

7. ALIENS. Mining rights are accorded to native born citizens of the Dominion of Canada under certain restrictions.²

8. ADVERSE CLAIMS. Adverse claims may be filed within the 60 days period of newspaper publication or within 8 months thereafter.³

9. ADVERSE SUITS. Adverse suits may be commenced within 60 days after the filing of the adverse claim.⁴

10. ADVERSE POSSESSION. Adverse possession of a mining claim as against the locator thereof or his successors in interest cannot be instituted before the issuance of patent.⁵

2. Michael Pszyk, 37 L. D. 18.

§ 5. Philippine Islands. A special act regulates the manner of acquiring and holding mining claims in the Philippine Islands.¹

2. DISSIMILAR PROVISIONS. This act provides for lode locations of equal length and breadth without extra-lateral right, and restricts the "holder" to one location on the same vein or lode. It further provides how a claim shall be marked, and that the location notice shall be verified. That such notice shall be recorded within a certain time and have on its back a sketch plan showing as near as may be the position of the adjoining mineral claims and the size or shape of the claim to be recorded. Unless recorded within the statutory period the claim is deemed to be abandoned. Abandonment is also effected by filing written notice thereof with the mining recorder.

3. TUNNEL SITES. There is no provision as to tunnel sites.

4. LAND DEPARTMENT. The land department has no jurisdiction in these Islands.

CHAPTER II.

COURTS.

- § 10. In general—jurisdiction—state courts—federal courts—jurisdiction—remand—land department—stay.
- § 11. Federal question—pleadings.
- § 12. Union of remedies—joinder—exception.
- § 13. Dismissal of cause.
- § 14. Appeal—federal courts.
- § 15. Appeal—state courts—writ of error.
- § 16. Conflicting decisions.
- § 17. Recent legislation.

§ 10. In General. “A court of competent jurisdiction,” as that term is used in the mining act, undoubtedly means a court of general jurisdiction, whether it be a state court or a federal court.¹

2. STATE COURT. The jurisdiction of a state court is only such as is conferred upon it by the laws of the state in which it exists.²

3. FEDERAL COURT. The jurisdiction of the federal court depends upon either diversity of citizenship³ or a federal question being involved in the controversy.⁴ The matter in dispute must exceed in value the sum of $2,000, exclusive of interest and costs.⁵

4. JURISDICTION. Where the jurisdictional facts exist and appear upon the record a cause may be commenced in the latter court⁶ or, within the statutory period may be removed thereto from the state court in which it may have been brought⁷ upon a petition affirmatively showing such facts.⁸

5. REMAND. Upon the presentation of such a petition accompanied by a proper bond, the order of removal is made;⁹ the case being subject to remand

if the jurisdictional facts do not clearly appear of record.¹⁰

6. LAND DEPARTMENT. Questions affecting the character of land¹¹ or as to the party entitled to purchase it from the government¹² are wholly within the jurisdiction of the land department.

7. STAY. While a contest is pending therein a court should not interfere with nor proceed to the determination of a cause involving the property, but should dismiss the case or stay proceedings therein until the matter is concluded in the department;¹³ unless there exists the necessity of preserving the peace or of determining controversies arising out of temporary rights in public land¹⁴ or to prevent waste which will result in a serious and permanent injury to the land.¹⁵

As to decisions of the land department upon matters of law see Hastings Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357; Menotti v. Dillon, 167 U. S. 703; see § 23, 4 post.

14. Warnekros v. Cowan, ante.
15. Humbird v. Avery, ante; Lightner v. Court, ante.

§ 11. Federal Question. A federal question does not necessarily arise under the mining act, as the case made may not involve any question as to the construction or effect of the Constitution or laws of the United States but may simply present a question of facts as to the time of the discovery of mineral, the location of the claim on the ground or a determination of the meaning and effect of the local rules and customs prescribed by the miners of the district or the effect of state statutes.¹

2. PLEADING. The jurisdictional facts must be shown in the plaintiff's pleadings or in the petition for removal.²

1. Blackburn v. Portland Co., 175 U. S. 571; Shoshone Co. v. Rutter, 177 U. S. 505.

2. Metcalf v. Watertown, 128 U. S. 586; Argonaut Co. v. Kennedy Co., 84 Fed. 1; Kan. City Co. v. Quigley, 181 Fed. 190.

§ 12. Union of Remedies. Legal and equitable causes of action cannot be united in a federal court.¹

2. JOINER. Where such joinder exists prior to removal appropriate pleadings must thereafter be filed in both the law and equity side of the court within the time provided by the rules.²

3. EXCEPTION. A pleading which has been filed in a state court prior to removal and setting forth an equitable cause of action need not be recast, though lacking the formal fashion of a bill in equity.³

1. Whitehead v. Shattuck, 138 U. S. 146; So. Penn. Co. v. Miller, 175 Fed. 729; Clark v. Rosario Co., 176 Fed. 180. The equity jurisdiction conferred on the federal courts is the same as that the High Court of Chancery in England possesses; it is subject to neither limitation nor restraint by state legislation and is uniform throughout the different states of the union. U. P. R. Co. v. Flynn, 180 Fed. 565.

A suit for an accounting may be joined with an action for trespass in a federal court. Con. Wyo. Co. v. Champion Co., 63 Fed. 540.

2. McDonnell v. Eaton, 18 Fed. 710.
3. Durgan v. Redding, 103 Fed. 914.

§ 13. Dismissal of Cause. A cause may be dismissed upon motion or by the trial or appellate court, upon its own motion, at any time before its final disposition when it appears that it is not within the jurisdiction of the court¹ or has been improperly or collusively brought for the purpose of creating a case cognizable or removable thereto.²

1. Morris v. Gilmer, 129 U. S. 315; Newcomb v. Burbank, 181 Fed. 334; Hare v. Birkenfield, 181 Fed. 825.
2. Hawes v. Contra Costa Co., 104 U. S. 450; Shreveport v. Cole, 129 U. S. 36.

§ 14. Appeal — Federal Courts. An appeal lies from the judgment of a circuit court to a circuit court of appeals¹ and from thence may be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States by appeal or writ of error when it appears that the jurisdiction of the court is in issue or that the case involves the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States or when the constitution or law of a state is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States.²

1. 26 Stats. 826; Alaskan appeals and writs of error go to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the 9th judicial circuit, 35 Stats. 585; Shields v. Mongollon Co., 137 Fed. 539; see Alexander McKenzie, 180 U. S. 536; Judiciary Act of 1911, 36 Stats. p. 1087.
2. U. S. Comp. Stats., p. 546. The same case may be taken up both by appeal and writ of error. McFadden v. Mt. View Co., 97 Fed. 670. For form of supersedeas, see Alexander McKenzie, ante.

§ 15. Appeal — State Courts. Appeals in state courts are governed by the laws of the several states.

2. WRIT OF ERROR. A writ of error lies from a final decision of a state supreme court to the Supreme Court of the United States when it affirmatively or by fair implication appears that some federal question was involved which was necessary to the determination of the case.¹ The mere fact that the action is brought in support of an "adverse claim" is not sufficient.²

1. Broughton v. Exchange Bank, 104 U. S. 427.

2. Beals v. Cone, 188 U. S. 184.

§ 16. Conflicting Decisions. When a conflict exists between a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States and that of another appellate court regarding federal questions, the former prevails.¹ It is the special prerogative of the former court to construe federal statutes.²

2. Street v. Delta Co., 42 Mont. 371.

§ 17. Recent Legislation. An Act entitled "An Act to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary," approved March 3, 1911, and taking effect on January 1, 1912, among other things, merges the Circuit and District Courts into the "District Court," with both civil and criminal jurisdiction. In civil cases, thereunder, the amount in controversy must exceed $3,000, exclusive of interest and costs.¹

CHAPTER III.

ACTIONS.

§ 19. Possessory actions—possessory right—pleading—citizenship—judgment—receivers.

§ 20. Adverse suit—jurisdiction—pleading—trial—dismissal—non-suit—judgment—final judgment.

§ 19. Possessory Actions. A possessory action for the recovery of any mining title or for damages to any such title is adjudged by the law of possession between the parties, although the paramount title to the land is in the United States.¹

2. POSSESSORY RIGHT. The "possessory right" is the right to explore and work the property under the existing laws and regulations on the subject.²

3. PLEADING. The complaint need not be different from that required in possessory actions generally. It is sufficient to allege ownership and right of possession and that the defendant wrongfully entered therein. The means by which the possessor is entitled to the possession are matters of evidence.³

4. CITIZENSHIP. It is not necessary to either plead or prove the citizenship of either party to the action.⁴

5. JUDGMENT. Pending litigation is ineffective and the effect of a judgment previously or subsequently obtained by an adverse claimant is nugatory as against an applicant for patent, unless made the subject of an "adverse claim" and suit thereunder.⁵

6. RECEIVERS. A court will appoint a receiver to take possession of an unpatented location pending litigation to the end that the annual work may be performed for the benefit of the party who may ultimately prevail in the suit, in order to conserve the property for the benefit of the party entitled thereto, and prevent the extraction and disposition of the mineral therein.⁶

1. Rev. Stats. § 910; see Belk v. Meagher, 104 U. S. 279; Rico-Aspen Co. v. Enterprise Co., 53 Fed. 321; Gillis v. Downey, 85 Fed. 483; Fulkerson v. Chisna Co., 122 Fed. 782; Duggan v. Davey, 4 Dak. 110; see Loney v. Scott, (Or.) 112 Pac. 172. The law of possession is that the prior location and occupation carry with them the prior and better right. Meydenbauer v. Stevens, 78 Fed. 787.

2. Forbes v. Gracey, 94 U. S. 762. Possessory rights in mining claims may be divested by sale or gift, by forfeiture or by abandonment. Harkrader v. Carroll, 74 Fed. 474. In actions respecting mining claims, proof must be admitted of the customs, usages, or regulations established and in force at the bar or diggings embracing such claim; and such customs, usages, or regulations, when not in conflict with the laws of this state, must govern the decision of the action. C. C. P. § 748; see Rev. Stats., § 2324; Woodruff v. N. Bloomfield Co., 18 Fed. 753.

3. Fulkerson v. Chisna Co., ante; Harris v. Kellogg, 117 Cal. 484; National Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617. In a suit to recover possession of land, a separate cause of action may be added to restrain a threatened trespass and commission of waste. See Waskey v. M'Naught, 163 Fed. 927.
4. Harris v. Kellogg, ante; Contreras v. Merck, 131 Cal. 211.
5. Selma Oil Claim, 33 L. D. 187; Capital No. 5 Claim, 34 L. D. 462; see Jones v. Pac. Co., 9 Ida. 186.

Neely*, 47 W. Va. 70; see, generally, Loaiza v. Court, 85 Cal. 11. For form of appointment of receiver, see Alexander McKenzie, 180 U. S. 536.

§ 20. Adverse Suit. An "adverse suit" is one in the form of an action in ejectment or one to quiet title¹ brought in a court of competent jurisdiction² in opposition to an application for a patent.³ It arises only from claims to independent and conflicting locations.⁴ The suit or intervention must be based upon an adverse claim.⁵

This suit must be commenced within 30 days after the filing of the adverse claim⁶ and be prosecuted with reasonable diligence.⁷

2. JURISDICTION. The jurisdiction of the court is limited to the area in conflict⁸ and the burden is upon the plaintiff to show the conflict of surface area.⁹

3. PLEADING. The extent of the allegations in the pleadings as well as the extent of the proof required varies in the different states.¹⁰ Each party is plaintiff and actor and both may fail.¹¹ Each must set forth the facts upon which he relies to show that his is the better right.¹²

It is essential that each party allege and prove, if not admitted, that he is a citizen of the United States, or has declared his intention to become such.¹³ It is too late, however, to raise the question for the first time in the appellate court.¹⁴

4. TRIAL. Each party must prove his right against his adversary as well as against the United States.¹⁵ Neither can depend upon the weakness of the title of the other,¹⁶ as the question is, Has the plaintiff the title or does the defendant have it, or do neither have it?¹⁷

5. DISMISSAL. The suit may on motion be dismissed upon withdrawal of the application for patent¹⁸ or because the suit is not prosecuted with reasonable diligence to final judgment.¹⁹

6. NON-SUIT. A non-suit may be granted.²⁰

7. JUDGMENT. The judgment only determines the right of possession as between the parties;²¹ that they are entitled to separate and different portions of the claim involved²² or that they are neither one entitled to judgment²³ or to proceed with the application for patent.²⁴ All other questions affecting the right to patent are decided by the land department.²⁵

8. FINAL JUDGMENT. The judgment is not final if an appeal has been taken or a motion for a new trial be pending.²⁶

See § 216, post.

§ 28a. Conservation.

§ 29. Railroad lands—classification of land—inconclusiveness of classification—subsequent discovery of mineral—rejection of application for patent—land department.

§ 23. Land Department. The Land Department of the United States, including in that term the Secretary of the Interior, the Commissioner of the General Land Office and their subordinate officers, constitutes a special tribunal vested with the judicial power to hear and determine the claims of all parties to the public lands and authorized to dispose of and to execute its judgments by conveyance to the parties entitled to them¹ according to rules and regulations promulgated by it under the provisions of law,² regarding the disposition of the public domain.

2. POWERS. Necessarily, therefore, it must consider and pass upon the qualifications of the applicant, the acts he has performed to secure the title, the nature of the land and whether it is open for sale.

3. JUDGMENT UNASSAILABLE. Its judgment upon these matters is unassailable except by direct proceedings for its annulment or limitation.³ The courts have no revisory power over the decisions of the land department upon questions of fact.⁴

4. JUDGMENT NOT CONCLUSIVE. Its decisions are open to re-litigation in the courts on the ground of its want of jurisdiction in the case,⁵ or that it misconstrued the law,⁶ or in cases of fraud⁷ (when extrinsic or collateral and do not consist of perjury or “false proofs”),⁸ inadvertence, mistake,⁹ etc., which permit any determination to be re-examined.¹⁰

5. BOARD OF EQUITABLE ADJUDICATION. This board consists of the Secretary of the Interior and the Attorney-General.¹¹

6. CHARACTER OF ENTRIES TO BE SUBMITTED. The entries to be submitted to this board are only those where the law has been substantially complied with and the error and informality therein arose from ignorance, accident or mistake, which can satisfactorily be explained.¹²

7. PROCEDURE. All proceedings in relation to the disposal of the public lands must be initiated in the proper district land office, and all papers on appeal must be transmitted through that office.¹³

8. APPEAL. An appeal lies from the decision of the officers of the local land office to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and from him to the Secretary of the Interior.¹⁴

9. TERMINATION OF JURISDICTION. The jurisdiction of the land department over the land and over the title which it has conveyed ceases upon the actual issuance of the patent;¹⁵ that is, its due issuance and recordation, not necessarily accompanied by actual delivery.¹⁶

1. Rev. Stats. §§ 441, 453, 2478; U. S. v. Winona Co., 67 Fed. 948; see Knight v. U. S. Land Ass'n, 142 U. S. 161; Lawrence v. Potter, 22 Wash. 32. The "subordinate officers" are the respective U. S. surveyors general—Cragin v. Powell, 128 U. S. 691—and the registers and receivers of the several local land offices—Rev. Stats. §§ 2234-2237.
2. Rev. Stats. §§ 441, 453, 2478; Boske v. Comingore, 177 U. S. 459; Cosmos Co. v. Gray Eagle Co., 190 U. S. 301; Leonard v. Lennox, 181 Fed. 760; Gage v. Gunther, 136 Cal. 338; Clyde v. Cummings, 35 Utah 461; see Garfield v. Goldsby, 211 U. S. 249; Anchor v. Howe, 50 Fed. 366. Courts take judicial notice of the regulations of the land department. Leonard v. Lennox, ante. When a rule is established in the land department it will not be overthrown or ignored by the courts unless they are clearly convinced that it is wrong or tends to confusion and conflict of claims. *Holt v. 4. Jefford v. Hines, 2 Ariz. 162.  16. U. S. v. Schurz, 102 U. S. 378; U. S. v. Laam, 149 Fed. 581.

§ 24. Contests. The land department may, upon its own motion, or upon the initiation of a contest by any person seeking to acquire title to, or claiming any interest in, the land involved, against a party to any entry, filing, or other claim under laws of Congress relating to the public lands, because of priority of claim, or for any sufficient cause affecting the legality or validity of the claim, not shown by the records of the land department; or upon the filing of a corroborated protest by any other party, or upon the protest or report of a special agent of the government order a hearing for any sufficient cause affecting the validity of the applicant's claim,¹ and thereupon take such action as may be appropriate and necessary to enforce its jurisdiction and preserve the rights and interests of the public.²

2. GROUND FOR ACTION. The grounds for such action may be to determine the character of the land embraced in the claim.³ That the claim is merely colorable and is used to cloak acts subversive of the law as, a patent that is sought for land under the mining law for purposes or uses foreign to those of mining.⁴

That the applicant for patent has failed to comply with the law in any manner essential to a valid entry⁵ or that a private claim is inconsistent with some public use or purpose to which the land may be devoted pursuant to law.⁶

3. PROCEDURE. An adverse claim is determined only by the courts; proceedings upon either a contest or a protest are subject to the Rules of Practice, confined to the land department, and determined therein.⁷

4. NOTICE REQUIRED. Applicants for patent, whether mineral or agricultural, are required to publish, and in some instances to post, notice of their application.⁸

5. PURPOSE OF NOTICE. The purpose of the notice is to afford opportunity to any person having a claim against the property to appear in the local land office and contest the applicant's right to a patent.⁹

6. EFFECT OF NOTICE. In an application for a mineral patent, at least, the published notice is deemed to be equivalent to a summons in a judicial proceeding.¹⁰

7. DEFAULT. Failure to appear and contest the application precludes the adverse claimant's rights,¹¹ except those which a court of equity might allow to be urged against a judgment at law.¹²

8. NOTICE AFTER APPEARANCE. The right to personal notice of all proceedings in the land department is dependent upon having made appearance in the particular proceeding.¹³

9. COMPROMISE. Where there is a bona fide contest between a mineral claimant and an agricultural claimant for the same land an amicable adjustment of the difficulty by a division of the land between them may be made. Patent may issue to either claimant according to the classification of the land by the land department and subsequent transfer may then be made by the patentee to the other claimant.¹⁴

10. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE. The specific performance of such a contract will be enforced by the courts.¹⁵

1. Jurisdiction, 35 L. D. 565; Rule 3 of Practice; 4 L. D. 37; Rule 1 of Practice, 39 L. D. 395; see Instructions, 21 L. D. 367; H. H. Yard, 38 L. D. 59; Charles F. Whitehead, 38 L. D. 144; Thomas B. Walker, 39 L. D. 426. A protest should set forth all material and issuable facts with sufficient particularity to apprise the applicant of the definite nature of the case and enable him to defend without danger of surprise by any fundamental question. A protest by a mineral claimant based upon the alleged mineral character of the land embraced in an application for agricultural land should set forth the amount and kind of mineral that has been taken from the land; whether any assays thereof have been made, and if so the result thereof, the character and value of the mining improvements, if any, that have been placed upon the property as well as any other material matter upon which the respective rights of the parties may be determined. Yard v. Cook, 37 L. D. 401.
2. U. S. v. Smith, 181 Fed. 545; Jurisdiction, ante. The reports of special agents of the government are confidential and privileged communications and cannot be demanded as a matter of right by the parties in interest and will not be furnished except upon authority of the Secretary of the Interior. Clark, Prentiss & Clark, 38 L. D. 464. For an outline of the proceedings upon the report of a special agent, see John C. Miller, 28 L. D. 45. The question of discovery raises an issue generally to be tried out in an adverse suit but where it is charged in a protest that no discovery within the limits of the claim was made at or prior to the beginning of the period of notice of application for patent the land department will take jurisdiction to determine that question. This upon the ground that the allegation, if true, would disclose the absence of a seasonable and essential basis for a judgment in favor of the applicant or the adverse claimant. Rupp v. Healey, 38 L. D. 387.

Where due notice is given the parties to a controversy in the land department, and they appear therein with their witnesses, and are given a full and fair hearing, and submit their cause to the department for final decision, courts of equity will not intervene to set aside such decision, upon an allegation in a petition or bill that perjury was committed by the parties or their witnesses in the course of the trial. *Cagle v. § 25. Hearings. Hearings are governed by the Rules of Practice promulgated by the land department.¹

2. CHARACTER OF LAND. Hearings to determine the character of lands are practically of two kinds, viz.:

(1) Lands returned as mineral by the Surveyor-General.

(2) Lands returned as agricultural and alleged to be mineral in character.²

3. PRESUMPTION. Public land returned by the Surveyor-General as mineral in character is withheld as agricultural land until the presumption arising from such return is overcome by testimony in the manner prescribed by the land department.³

1. Min. Reg. par. 99; Rules of Practice, 4 L. D. 37. Id., 39 L. D. 395.
2. Min. Reg. par. 101. That one person in perfect good faith may assert a mineral claim for a particular parcel of public land, and another person, equally in good faith, may assert an agricultural claim to the same ground is beyond question. The same land may be valuable for both mining and agricultural purposes. In such circumstances the controversy is settled by the land department determining whether the land, in whole or in part, is more valuable for one purpose than another. Murray v. White, 42 Mont. 423.
3. Min. Reg., par. 100; see Kinkade v. Cal., 39 L. D. 491; see Lindley on Mines (2d ed.), §§ 94, 98, 207.

§ 26. Testimony. At hearings to determine the character of land the testimony is directed to both the mineral and the agricultural character of the land.¹

2. RULES. The proceedings are conducted under rules prescribed by the land department as to the nature of the testimony required.²

3. EVIDENCE. The proof of the mineral claimant must be specific, based upon the production of mineral at a profit.³

4. INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE. It is insufficient for the mineral claimant to show the existence of a mere location⁴ or a discovery that might be sufficient to sustain a location in the first instance.⁵

5. BURDEN OF PROOF. The burden of proof is upon the person who asserts the mineral character of the ground in dispute⁶ or has the burden of proof cast upon him by order of the land department.⁷

1. Min. Reg. pars. 105, 106, 107. The question of the character of land is always one of fact. Evidence of the actual use to which it has been placed by those who occupy it and make it a means of livelihood is not conclusive evidence but tends to establish its character and is relevant and material for that purpose. Lynch v. U. S., 138 Fed. 535.

2. Min. Reg. ante.

3. Dughi v. Harkins, 2 L. D. 721, cited approvingly in U. S. v. C. P. R. Co., 98 Fed. 874; see U. S. v. Iron Co., 128 U. S. 673; Davis v. Weibbold, 139 U. S. 507; *Royal K. Placer v. Lands are not reserved from entry under the land laws simply because some one is foolish or visionary enough to claim or work some portion of them as mineral ground without reference to whether it would pay to work or not. U. S. v. Reed, 28 Fed. 482; Ferrell v. Hoge, 27 L. D. 129; Hunt v. Steese, 75 Cal. 620; see also Etling v. Potter, 17 L. D. 424; Purtle v. Steffee, 31 L. D. 400; *Steele v. § 27. Result of Hearing. The character of the land is conclusively determined by the judgment in either a contest or protest proceeding.¹ It may be held to be wholly or in part mineral or agricultural land.

2. SEGREGATION SURVEY. Where it is held to be partly of each class a segregation survey may be had, through the local land office, on application made by the proper party.²

3. JUDGMENT NOT EQUIVALENT TO PATENT. A judgment in favor of the mineral claimant is not equivalent to a patent for the land embraced therein.³

4. SUBSEQUENT LEGAL PROCEEDINGS. After the land department shall have disposed of the questions within its jurisdiction if any legal right of either party to the proceedings has been invaded, he may seek redress in the courts.⁴

3. Min. Reg. par. 111.

4. Litchfield v. Reg. & Rec., 76 U. S. 575; Kirwan v. Murphy, 189 U. S. 35.

§ 28. State Lands. Congress has granted to certain of the states for educational purposes and for internal improvements, certain parts of the public domain not known to be mineral in character at the time of the grant and the right to select other lands in lieu thereof, if mineral in character or if covered by a prior valid subsisting claim.¹

2. WHEN TITLE PASSES. Title does not pass to the state under such a grant until the land is surveyed and the survey is approved² if the grant is a present one,³ or until the land is selected by the state and the selection is approved, certified to or "listed" to the state by the land department of the United States,⁴ which is equivalent to patent, when the selection is of lieu or indemnity land.⁵

3. WHEN CLOSED TO THE PROSPECTOR. Land which has passed to the state by grant or certification is no longer open to exploration, occupation or mineral location.⁶

4. RIGHTS ON STATE PATENTED LAND. Where it happens that a subsisting mineral location is covered by a non-mineral patent the mineral claimant, in order to sustain his rights, must prove the greater mineral value than agricultural value of the land at the time the patent issued.⁷

Discovery of mineral subsequent to the issuance of a non-mineral patent inures to the benefit of the patentee.⁸

5. LAND DEPARTMENT. The land-grant-aided states maintain land departments of their own which are not a part of the land department of the United States. This because a state may administer its public lands in any way that it sees fit, so long as it does not conflict with the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.⁹

6. REGISTER OF STATE LAND OFFICE. In California the state surveyor-general is ex-officio register and the assistant deputy surveyor-general is ex-officio deputy register of the state land office.¹⁰

7. CONTESTS. If the question involved in a contest is as to the survey of state lands, or one purely of fact, etc., the register may proceed to hear and determine the same; but when, in his judgment a question of law is involved, or when either party demands a trial in the state courts he must make an order referring the contest to the superior court of the county in which the land is situated.¹¹

8. PLEADING. When the proceeding is referred to a court for determination each party thereto becomes an actor therein¹² and whether plaintiff, defendant or intervenor,¹³ he must state in his pleadings all the facts upon which he relies as showing his right to become the purchaser and the steps he has taken to avail himself of and secure his right to make the purchase.¹⁴ The facts must be set out so that the court can discern that the application is in due form of law, or rather that it complies with the requirements of the law.¹⁵

9. PROTESTANT. Where a party merely protests against the application of another party, he must state the facts constituting the grounds therefor, as, for instance, that he has acquired the title from the United States, or that he has the right of pre-emption, stating the facts upon which his right is based.¹⁶

10. EFFECT OF JUDGMENT. Upon filing with the surveyor-general or register, as the case may be, a copy of the final judgment of the court, that officer must approve the survey or location, or issue the certificate of purchase or other evidence of title in accordance with such judgment.¹⁷

11. PAYMENT FOR LAND. When the full amount of the purchase price has been paid the purchaser becomes vested with the ownership of the land described in the certificate of purchase, and can make the same disposition of the land as could any other owner. The patent is but evidence of his title.¹⁸

12. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. Contests relating to applications to purchase state school lands can only be brought within five years from and after the date on which the certificate of purchase may have been issued.¹⁹ No suit can be brought upon a patent or grant from the state of California after ten years from its date²⁰ unless the same is judicially declared to be void, in which case the suit must be brought within five years thereafter.²¹

13. RECENT CALIFORNIAN LEGISLATION. Under the provisions of a recent act of the legislature of the state of California any person claiming or deraigning title under an unrecorded deed or patent from that state is authorized to bring suit to quiet title against the state to the land embraced therein, or any part thereof, within one year from the twenty-fourth day of March, 1911.²²

14. SCHOOL LANDS WITHDRAWN FROM SALE. School lands (16th and 36th sections) situated within a military, Indian, national or state forest reservation, national park or national monument are withdrawn from sale by the state.²³

§ 28a. Conservation. By legislative enactment, taking effect April 8, 1911, there was created and established in California, a committee to be known as the Conservation Committee of the State of California the province of which is to gather data and information concerning the subjects of forestry, water, the use of water, water power, electricity, electrical and other power, mines and mining, mineral and other lands, dredging, reclamation and irrigation and for revising, systematizing and reforming the laws of the state upon, concerning, regarding or appertaining to said subjects.¹

1. Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 822.

§ 29. Railroad Lands. Land grants to certain transcontinental railroads have from time to time been made by Congress upon substantially similar terms and conditions as to certain of the states as to the character of the land within the limits of the grant; coal and iron deposits therein, however, being excluded from the operation of the mining laws.¹

2. CLASSIFICATION OF LAND. There is no provision in any of these grants for the demarcation of mineral lands therein except that the land within the grant to the N. P. R. Co. within the States of Montana and Idaho is subject to examination and classification by a commission appointed under an act of Congress.²

3. INCONCLUSIVENESS OF CLASSIFICATION. The return of this commission as to the character of land is not conclusive.³

4. SUBSEQUENT DISCOVERY OF MINERAL. After title has passed to a railroad company no mineral rights in the land covered thereby can be initiated thereon without its consent.⁴

5. REJECTION OF APPLICATION FOR PATENT. Where it appears that an application for a mineral patent embraces land within a railroad grant the application will be rejected by the local land officers. The applicant may appeal from the order of rejection and apply for a hearing to determine the character of the land.⁵

6. LAND DEPARTMENT. Land-grant-aided railroads usually maintain land departments in order to facilitate the disposal of such lands. Such departments are, of course, unconnected with the United States land department.

CHAPTER V.

SURVEYS.

- § 35. Public land surveys—province of land department—questions of fact—duty of surveyor—division and numbering of the public lands—meander lines—high water mark—recent Californian legislation.
- § 36. Official surveys—lode claims—placer claims—connecting line—reference to connecting line—maps—map must be supported by evidence—testimony of surveyor—fabricated survey—map not proof of lode.
- § 37. Segregation survey—when ordered—township records.
- § 38. Adverse claim survey—what plat of must show—when survey not necessary—not made by surveyor-general.
- § 39. Appeal.
- § 40. Surveys under state laws—surface survey—record—evidence—underground survey—service of order.

§ 35. Public Land Surveys. There are two classes of surveys, public and official. The first refers to the system of public-land surveys and the second to the survey made in an application for patent for a mining claim. Both classes of surveys are made by or under the direction of the proper surveyor-general.

2. PROVINCE OF LAND DEPARTMENT. It is the peculiar province of the land department to consider and determine what lands have been surveyed, what are to be surveyed, what have been disposed of, what remains to be disposed of, and what are reserved.¹ Its action, when within the scope of its authority, is unassailable in the courts, except in direct proceedings.²

3. QUESTIONS OF FACT. The land department may make and correct surveys of either class,³ and while the boundaries of a surveyed tract may not be open to dispute, yet where the lines run by such a survey lie on the ground, and whether any particular tract is on one side or the other of that line are questions of fact which are open to inquiry in the courts.⁴

4. DUTY OF SURVEYOR. Every surveyor when making a public survey is required to note in his field book the true situation of all mines, salt licks, salt springs and mill seats which come to his knowledge, all water courses over which the line he runs may pass, and also the quality of the land.⁵ The report of the surveyor in this regard is the basis of the surveyor-general's return as to the character of the land. This classification of the land is not conclusive.⁶

5. DIVISION AND NUMBERING OF THE PUBLIC LANDS. By the public surveys the public lands are, generally, divided into townships of 6 miles square. The corners of the townships are marked with progressive numbers from the beginning. Each distance of a mile between such corners is distinctly marked with marks different from those of the corners.⁷ No marks are required by law to be placed at the quarter sections. Interior lines of sections are protracted by the United States Surveyor-General.⁸

The sections are 1 mile square, contain 640 acres, and are numbered, respectively, beginning with the number "1," in the north-east section of the township, thence running to the north-west section thereof, which is numbered "6," thence west and east, alternately through the township, with progressive numbers to the southeast section of the township, which is numbered "36."⁹

6. MEANDER LINES. A meander line is an irregular line having no certain significance.¹⁰ Such lines are not run as boundaries of a tract, but for the purpose of defining the sinuosities of the banks of a stream or lake upon which the tract may border, and also as a means of ascertaining the quantity of land in the tract subject to sale and which is to be paid for by the purchaser.¹¹ A proprietor of lands bordering on a stream, lake or pond, not navigable unless restricted by the terms of his grant, holds to the center of such stream, pond or lake.¹²

7. HIGH WATER MARK. Land below high-water mark of a meandered stream should not be included in the survey of a mining claim.¹³

8. RECENT CALIFORNIAN LEGISLATION. Under a recent Act of the legislature of the state of California the public lands of that state which are embraced within the original meander lines of streams and lakes the waters of which contain minerals in commercial quantities are withdrawn from selection and sale. Such lands may, however, be leased from the state at the rate of $2.50 an acre and a royalty on the mineral extracted.¹⁴

7. Rev. Stats. § 2395; Finch v. Ogden, 175 Fed. 20; Johnson v. Johnson, 14 Ida. 561.

8. Chapman v. Pollack, 70 Cal. 487. The smallest subdivision except under the placer mining laws is a tract of 40 acres—that is, a tract in square form constituting one quarter of a quarter section—except where, owing to certain peculiar local conditions a tract irregular in shape and dimensions is noted upon the plat of survey as a legal subdivision. Wm. F. Roedde, 39 L. D. 365; see § 211, note 9, post.

Potter*, ante; Foss v. Johnstone, (Cal. A.) 110 Pac. 294; see Lux v. Haggin, 69 Cal. 255. The law of California, with respect to the incidents attaching to land bordering upon waters, is settled by section 830 of the Civil Code as follows:—
 Except where the grant under which the land is held indicates a different intent, the owner of the up-land, when it borders on tide water takes to ordinary high-water mark; when it borders upon a navigable lake or stream, where there is no tide, the owner takes to the edge of the lake or stream, at low water mark; when it borders upon any other water, the owner takes to the middle of the lake or stream. See Packer v. Bird, 137 U. S. 661.

14. Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 1154.

2. LODE CLAIMS. The claimant of a lode claim is not compelled at any time to follow the lines of the public surveys.²

3. PLACER CLAIMS. A placer location is the subject of official survey when laid upon unsurveyed land or is a fractional part of an irregularly-shaped surveyed tract.³

4. CONNECTING LINE. Unless good cause is shown therefor the line connecting the location with the public survey should be given in the official survey.⁴

5. REFERENCE TO CONNECTING LINE. A failure to incorporate proper reference to such line in the published notice of application for patent renders the application defective, and proceedings must be commenced anew.⁵

6. MAPS. A map in itself proves nothing, unless it is shown by competent evidence to be a correct representation of the relative positions of the objects it purports to delineate.⁶

7. MAP MUST BE SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE. In the case of an unpatented mining claim a map purporting to show the lines of the location is of no probative value unless supported by the evidence of some one who knows the position of the monuments which define those lines; for it is by the location monuments alone that their beginning and direction can be determined.⁷

8. TESTIMONY OF SURVEYOR. A surveyor may properly testify as to the correctness of a plat that is made by him, although partly copied from the government survey and partly made from his own observation.⁸

9. FABRICATED SURVEY. A map based upon a fabricated public survey may be referred to in aid of the description of a mining claim.⁹

10. MAP NOT PROOF OF LODGE. The marking of an ideal lode line across an official survey and diagram thereof does not have the effect of putting a lode into the ground if there is no vein or lode there. The facts may be shown.¹⁰

§ 37. Segregation Survey. A segregation survey, as the term is used in mining law, means a survey which is expressly made for¹ or has the effect of, separating mineral from agricultural land.² An official survey has, but not always conclusively, the same effect.³

2. WHEN ORDERED. A segregation survey is ordered at the expense of the proper party.⁴

Such a survey may be ordered upon the application and at the expense of a non-mineral claimant after the approval of an official survey which is not followed by further patent proceedings thereon. In that event such claimant must establish the mineral character of the land embraced within the lines of the official survey.⁵

3. TOWNSHIP RECORDS. The segregation of a mining claim from the public domain does not appear upon the official township records until after entry has been made and approved for patent.⁶

4. Min. Reg. par. 108.

5. Min. Reg. par. 37(c).

6. Min. Reg. par. 37(a).

§ 38. Adverse Claim Survey. An adverse claim survey is one made in support of an adverse claim filed in the local land office in opposition to an application for patent for an overlapping mining claim.

2. WHAT PLAT OF MUST SHOW. The plat of such a survey must show the adverse claimant's entire location, its relative situation or position with the one against which he claims, and the extent of the conflict.

3. WHEN SURVEY NOT NECESSARY. Neither survey nor plat is necessary where the respective locations are described by legal subdivisions.¹

4. NOT MADE BY SURVEYOR-GENERAL. Unlike the other surveys before mentioned this survey is not made by or under the direction of the surveyor-general.²

1. Rev. Stats. § 2326; Min. Reg. par. 82.

2. Min. Reg. par. 82; Anchor v. Howe, 50 Fed. 366.

§ 39. Appeal. An appeal lies from the ruling of the surveyor-general in relation to a survey or its amendment, in like manner as in other land office matters.¹

1. Emma Lode, 7 L. D. 169.

§ 40. Surveys under State Law—Surface Survey. The establishment or identification by survey of the exterior limits of a location prior to an official survey of the claim is usually provided for by local statute.¹

2. RECORD. The field notes of such a survey accompanied by the certificate of the surveyor making the same should be incorporated into the recorded or the amended notice of location.²

3. EVIDENCE. Such survey and certificate become a part of the record of the claim. Such record is prima facie evidence of the facts therein contained.³

4. UNDERGROUND SURVEY. The court in which an action is pending and in which say the extra-lateral right is involved, may, upon the application of either party to the controversy, good cause being shown therefor, order a survey of the underground workings of the mining property of the other party.⁴

5. SERVICE OF ORDER. Upon due service of the order the survey may be made.⁵

1. The Californian Mining Act provides that "Where a locator, or his assigns, has the boundaries and corners of his claims established by a United States deputy mineral survey(or), or a licensed surveyor of this state, and his claim connected with the corner of the public or minor surveys of an established initial point, and incorporates into the record of the claim the field notes of such survey, and attaches to and files with such location notice, a certificate of the surveyor, setting forth: first, that said survey was actually made by him, giving the date thereof; second, the name of the claim surveyed and the location thereof; third, that the description incorporated in the declaratory statement is sufficient to identify; such survey and certificate becomes a part of the record, and such record is prima facie evidence of the facts therein contained." C. C. § 14261; see Cal. Stats. 1907, p. 310.

2. C. C., § 14261.
3. Id.
4. See § 85 post.

The provisions of the law of California upon this subject are as follows: "The court in which an action is pending for the recovery of real property, or for damages for an injury thereto, or a judge thereof may, on motion, upon notice by either party for good cause shown, grant an order allowing to such party the right to enter upon the property and make survey and measurement thereof, and of any tunnels, shafts, or drifts therein, for the purpose of the action, even though entry for such purpose has to be made through other lands belonging to parties to the action." C. C. P. § 742.

"The order must describe the property, and a copy thereof must be served on the owner or occupant; and thereupon such party may enter upon the property, with necessary surveyors and assistants, and make such survey and measurement; but if any unnecessary injury be done to the property he is liable therefor." C. C. P. § 743.

5. C. C. P. § 743.

CHAPTER VI.

LAND DISTRICTS.

- § 41. Land district—additional land districts and changes therein.
- § 42. Mineral district.
- § 43. Mining district—extent—changing boundaries—persons—corporation—regularity of proceedings—officers of district—duties of recorder.

§ 41. Land District. A land district is a division of a state or territory, as the case may be, created by law, in which is located such a district for the disposition of the public lands therein.¹

2. ADDITIONAL LAND DISTRICTS AND CHANGES THEREIN. The President is authorized to establish additional land districts,² change or re-establish the boundaries thereof,³ and discontinue⁴ or consolidate districts.⁵

§ 42. Mineral District. The term "mineral district" as used in acts of Congress is said to be neither known in the law or fact as the designation of any well-defined or exact locality, and there being no method of proceeding known to the law by which a district can be prospected, surveyed and established or declared to be a "mineral district," the term is void and incapable of definite signification or local application and is without effect.¹

§ 43. Mining District. A mining district is a section of country designated by name, having described, or understood, boundaries and subject to the customs, rules and regulations adopted and prescribed by the miners therein.¹

2. EXTENT. There is no limit to its territorial extent.²

3. CHANGING BOUNDARIES. The boundaries of a district may be changed if vested rights are not thereby interfered with.³

4. PERSONS. No certain number of persons are necessary to effect its organization.⁴

5. CORPORATION. A corporation may take part in the formation of a mining district.⁵

6. REGULARITY OF PROCEEDINGS. The regularity of the mode in which the district was organized will not be inquired into by the courts unless some fraud be shown.⁶

7. OFFICERS OF DISTRICT. The officers of a district are usually limited to a "Mining Recorder," who is elected by the miners thereof and therein, for a specified term.

8. DUTIES OF RECORDER. He should keep proper books for recording instruments therein.⁷ Errors of recordation are not necessarily fatal.⁸

MINERAL LANDS.

- § 45. Land subject to location—land valuable for its mineral deposits—classification of land—who may question character of land.
- § 46. Land not subject to location—Indian lands—allotments—patents.
- § 47. Mineral deposits.

§ 45. Land Subject to Location. All valuable mineral deposits in land belonging to the United States, both surveyed or unsurveyed, and the lands in which they are found, are free and open to exploration; occupation and purchase.¹ This includes mineral land within a forest reservation,² the unpatented parts of a Congressional grant to a railroad company³ or to a state,⁴ or of an unconfirmed Mexican grant,⁵ or land within the limits of an unpatented town-site,⁶ or when known to be mineral at the date of the application for patent therefor,⁷ or an unlocated or unpatented "known vein" within the exterior limits of a patented or unpatented placer mining claim.⁸

2. LAND VALUABLE FOR ITS MINERAL DEPOSITS. Land valuable for its mineral deposits is land which contains minerals in sufficient quantities to justify exploitation and development; that is, land which is "chiefly valuable" for other than agricultural purposes, whether the deposit is metallic or non-metallic, and all such lands as are chiefly valuable for their deposits of a mineral character which are useful in the arts or valuable for purposes of manufacture.⁹

3. CLASSIFICATION OF LAND. There is no certain, well-defined, obvious line of demarcation between mineral and non-mineral land.¹⁰ No land can be valuable mineral land unless it contains a deposit of mineral in some form, metalliferous or non-metalliferous in quantity sufficient to justify expenditures in the effort to extract it.¹¹

4. WHO MAY QUESTION CHARACTER OF LAND. The question of the character of land can be raised only by the United States or those claiming under them¹² and is conclusively determined in and by the land department.¹³ The question usually arises at the instance of some party connected with the paramount title, who claims the land to be non-mineral.¹⁴

2. 29 Stats. 11; 30 Stats. 36; see H. H. Yard, 38 L. D. 59. The land department has full authority, of its own motion or at the instance of others, to inquire into and determine whether mining locations within National Forest Reserves were preceded by the requisite discovery of mineral; whether the lands are of the character subject to occupation and purchase under the mining laws notwithstanding the locator has not applied for patent; and if the location be found to be invalid the lands covered thereby will be administered as part of the public domain, subject to the reservation for forest purposes, without regard to the location. *H. 13. Burfenning v. Chicago R. Co., 163 U. S. 321; Standard Co. v. Habishaw, ante. There must be some point of time when the character of the land must be finally determined; and for the interest of all concerned there can be no better point to determine this question than at the time of issuing the patent. Cowell v. Lammers, 21 Fed. 200.

When the question of the character of land is raised it must be tried out, and until patent has been issued the question as to the character of land at the date of entry is an open one, subject to investigation and determination by the land department. American Co., ante.

§ 46. Land Not Subject to Location. Land is not subject to mineral location when lying within the States of Michigan, Minnesota,¹ Missouri, Kansas,² Alabama,³ or within a subsisting Indian,⁴ military,⁵ naval,⁶ and, possibly, a park,⁷ or a reservoir⁸ reservation; or when withdrawn from sale by authority of Congress or by an executive order, express or implied,⁹ or when situated below high tide,¹⁰ (except, in a limited way, in Alaska),¹¹ or when the bed of a navigable river;¹² or coal or iron lands within the limits of a Congressional land grant to a railroad company¹³ or within its rights of way¹⁴ or its indemnity limits, or land within the limits of a Congressional land grant to a state, after approval of survey or certification by the land department;¹⁵ or any mineral springs¹⁶ (not salt springs¹⁷); or land which is occupied, under color of title, (unless it can be done peaceably¹⁸) or land which has passed into private ownership.¹⁹

2. INDIAN LANDS. Although no mineral location may be laid upon land within an Indian reservation, mineral land therein may be leased for a period not to exceed ten years by authority of the council speaking for the Indians, upon such terms and conditions as the agent in charge of such reservation may recommend, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.²⁰

3. ALLOTMENTS. The character of the land embraced in an allotment in severalty or in a trust or first patent may be examined into, but the party instigating the attack thereon secures no preferential right to the land involved in the event of cancellation.²¹

4. PATENTS. Patents in fee-simple, without restriction as to incumbrance or taxation, may issue at any time that the Secretary of the Interior is satisfied that the allottee is competent and capable of managing his affairs;²² formerly an interval of twenty-five years, possibly longer, might elapse between the issuance of the first and second patents.²³

§ 50. In General. No definition of the term "vein, lode and ledge" is given in the mining act.¹

2. INTERCHANGEABLE TERMS. In that act those terms are used interchangeably, the object being to give them a more comprehensive meaning than the technical definitions convey. Their meaning as used therein is that which is so called by miners.²

3. MINERS' USE OF TERMS. Miners used the terms "vein, lode and ledge" before geologists attempted to give them a definition.³

4. COMMON USE. The terms "vein, lode and ledge" are now used synonymously by miners, Congress and the courts.⁴

5. THE MINER'S VEIN OR LODE. To the miner a vein or lode is any body of ore, quartz or other mineral-bearing substance lying within the crust of the earth, bounded on each side by the country rock, greatly varying in extent across and through the country for greater or less distances.⁵

6. MINERS' DISTINCTION BETWEEN VEIN AND LODE. Among practical miners, generally, narrow veins are designated simply as "veins," while veins of great thickness are called "great veins"⁶ or "lodes." This distinction, of course, is not scientific.

7. VEIN WITHIN LODE. A "lode" may, and often does, contain more than one "vein."⁷ It is then popularly called a "broad lode" or zone.

8. SYNONYMOUS TERMS. The term "lode" is a Cornish word nearly synonymous with the term vein.⁸

9. STATUTORY MEANING. The terms "vein, lode and ledge," within the meaning of the mining act is whatever the miner could follow and find ore.⁹

10. JUDICIAL DEFINITIONS. Various courts have at different times given a definition of what constitutes a vein, lode and ledge, within the meaning of that act.

11. GENERAL RULE. The definitions that have been given by the courts, as a general rule, apply to the peculiar character of the ore deposits or vein matter and of the country rock in the particular district where the claims are located.

12. NO CONFLICT. There is no conflict in the decisions but the result is that some definitions have been given in some of the states that are not deemed wholly applicable to the conditions and surroundings of mining districts in other states, or other districts in the same state.

13. VARIOUS DEFINITIONS. So, many definitions of veins have been given, varying according to the facts under consideration.

14. NO ARBITRARY DEFINITION. The terms are not susceptible of an arbitrary definition, applicable to every case. In a measure, conditions of locality and deposit control.¹⁰

15. APPROVED DEFINITION. An approved definition is as follows: "A zone or belt of mineralized rock lying within boundaries clearly separating it from neighboring rock. It includes all deposits of mineral matter found through a mineralized zone or belt coming from the same source, impressed with the same forms and appearing to have been created by the same processes."¹¹

This definition, expressed in other words, is that a "lode" designates any zone or belt of mineralized rock lying within boundaries clearly separating it from the neighboring rock. It further implies a oneness, genetically, of the ore deposits included within its boundaries.

16. GRAVEL DEPOSITS. The above definition does not apply to gravel deposits inclosed within defined boundaries.¹²

17. CHARACTERISTICS OF A VEIN OR LODE. In the books and among miners, veins and lodes are invested with many characteristics, as that they lie in fissures or other openings in the country rock; that they contain materials differing or in some respects corresponding with the country rock; that they are of a tabular form and a banded structure; that some one or several things are generally associated with the valuable ores; that they have selvages and slickensides in the fissures and openings, and the like. Some of these characteristics are said to be common to all lodes and veins, and others are of rare occurrence.¹³

18. ELEMENTS OF A VEIN OR LODE. The elements of a vein or lode are mineral or mineral-bearing rock and boundaries in place in the general mass of the mountain. When one of these is well established very slight evidence may be accepted as to the existence of the other.¹⁴ But every seam or crevice in the rock does not constitute a vein or lode nor every ridge of stained rock its croppings.¹⁵ The vein or lode need be continuous only in the sense that it may be traced through the surrounding rocks.¹⁶

It need not have well-defined walls.¹⁷ It may vary in direction, width, dip and value, split or divide into branches, both in length and in depth. These branches may or may not again unite.¹⁸

That it is occasionally found in the general course of the vein or shoot in pockets deeper down into the earth or higher up, does not affect its character as a vein, lode or ledge.¹⁹

19. FISSURE VEINS. A fissure vein, in mining parlance, is a longitudinal opening with a foreign substance in it.²⁰

True fissures often exist and are continuous without having any filling in certain points or places of mineral matter. A majority of such lodes have in addition to the clean fissure filling of mineral, a considerable amount of decomposed rock, clay, etc.²¹

Metalliferous rock in place, not in fissure, may be found under such conditions within clearly defined boundaries as to require recognition as a vein or lode.²²

A broad metalliferous zone, having within its limits true fissure veins, plainly bounded, cannot be regarded as a "vein" or "lode," although such zone may have boundaries of its own which can be traced.²³

20. BROAD LODES. The term "lode" has become extensively used in the classification of ore deposits that are not comprehended by the definition of a vein. Such an ore occurrence is called by the courts a "broad lode" or zone.²⁴

21. WALLS OF BROAD LODE. A broad lode may be without distinct walls, in which case its legal width is determined by the lines beyond which indications sufficient to encourage its further exploitation, with the hope of profit, do not appear.²⁵

22. INDIVISIBILITY OF A BROAD LODE. The ownership of the apex of a broad lode or vein confers the right to all mineral extending into adjoining territory, although adversely held, when its formation is such as to present a unity of the whole mass as a vein or lode. It is usually treated as a unit and indivisible in point of width as respects the right to pursue it extra-laterally beneath the surface because, usually, the width of the vein or lode is so irregular and its strike and dip depart so far from right lines that it is altogether impracticable, if not impossible, to continue the longitudinal bisection at the apex throughout the vein or lode, on its dip. Where two or more mining claims longitudinally bisect or divide the apex of a vein or lode, the senior claim takes the entire width of the vein or lode, on its dip, if it is in other respects so located as to give the extra-lateral right.²⁶

23. SEPARATE VEINS WITHIN ZONE. Where mineral deposits are separated into well-defined parts, traceable for a great distance in their length and depth, and having distinct foot and hanging walls, each part is a separate vein within the meaning of the mining laws giving the right to follow the dip of the vein beyond the side lines, although there are many ore-bearing cracks and seams running out from each vein, and sometimes extending over to the other.²⁷ Ore bodies formed off from and unconnected with a fissure vein do not form a separate vein, lodge, ledge, or mineral deposit.²⁸

24. BLIND VEIN. A blind vein or lode is one which does not crop upon the surface²⁹ and has its top or apex below the surface of the ground.³⁰ Such veins belong to the surface location.³¹

25. BLANKET VEIN. Blanket vein is a term applicable to a horizontal vein or deposit which may have no distinct apex.³²

26. SECONDARY OR INCIDENTAL VEIN. A secondary or incidental vein or lode is a vein or lode within a mining claim or location other than the one located or intended to be located.³³

27. EXTRA-LATERAL RIGHT TO SECONDARY VEIN. The extra-lateral right to secondary veins is not confined to such veins as apex within the same segment of the claim in which the apex of the discovery vein exists.³⁴ But no extra-lateral right attaches thereto should the vein or lode happen to extend transversely to the vein or lode located or intended to be located, although it may have its apex within the lines of such location.³⁵

28. SINGLE VEIN. A "single vein" in the sense in which the term is used by miners is a single ore deposit of identical origin, age and character throughout.³⁶ A single small vein is weighed and measured by the same law and entitled to the same consideration as the "mother lode," and very often is far more valuable in the eyes of the miner.³⁷

29. INTERSECTING VEINS. Veins or lodes may intersect upon their strike or dip, and below the point of union become one vein or lode, in which case the prior locator takes the same below the point of union, including all the space of intersection.³⁸

30. APEX OF INTERSECTING VEINS. Where two or more veins or lodes with an apex in different mining claims unite in their dip within the lines of a third claim the owners of the latter claim have no right in either vein or lode beyond the point of union.³⁹

31. CROSS VEINS. Where two or more veins or lodes cross each other, priority of title governs and the senior locator is entitled to all the mineral within the space of intersection of the veins or lodes, but the junior locator has the right of way through the space of intersection for the convenient working of the mine.⁴⁰

32. SPACE OF INTERSECTION. There is some ambiguity in the term "space of intersection," that is, whether it means through the space of intersection of the veins or lodes or through the space of intersection of the locations.⁴¹

33. CONTACT VEIN. A contact vein is one where each of the inclosing walls is of a different character or formation. One of such walls may be composed of limestone and the other wall be of porphyry.⁴²

34. KNOWN VEIN. A "known vein," as the term is used in the mining act, is one that contains mineral in such quantity and quality as to justify expenditure for the purpose of its extraction.⁴³ Its existence is not established by indications of outcroppings.⁴⁴ The amount of ore, the facility for reaching and working it, as well as the product per ton, are all to be considered in determining whether the vein or lode is one which justifies exploitation and working.⁴⁵

35. LEDGE MATTER. Ledge or vein matter is the matrix, or gangue, of all veins or lodes. By its peculiarities the experienced miner easily recognizes the vein, lode or ledge, when discovered.⁴⁶ Ledge or vein matter, of itself, may not warrant a location.⁴⁷ The filling of the vein or lode must be considered with special reference to the district where the vein or lode is found.

36. IN PLACE. The term "in place" indicates the body of the country which has not been affected by the action of the elements, which may remain in its original state and condition, as distinguished from the superficial mass which may lie above it.⁴⁸

37. ROCK IN PLACE. The term "rock in place" has always received a liberal construction. It means that which is inclosed and embraced in the fixed and immovable rock forming the general mass of the mountain as distinguished from merely on the surface, or covered only by float, wash, slide, soil, waste, drift, debris, boulders and gravel.⁴⁹

It does not mean merely hard rock, merely quartz rock, but any combination of rock broken up, mixed up with minerals and other things.⁵⁰ It is not material where the rock or mineral was originally formed or deposited⁵¹; if it is in its original position, although somewhat broken up and shattered by the movement of the country or other causes, it is in place.⁵² It is immaterial, if in its original place, that the vein or lode matter is loose, broken, disintegrated, or solid material.⁵³

38. OTHER ROCK IN PLACE. The term "other rock in place," as used in the mining act, means any rocky substance containing mineral matter.⁵⁴

39. VEIN OR LODE IN PLACE. A vein or lode is in place if the mineral is continuous to the extent that it may maintain that character, whether deposited in that form or removed bodily with its inclosing rocks to the place in which it may be found.⁵⁵

40. VEIN OR LODE NOT IN PLACE. A vein or lode cannot be in place unless it is within the general mass of the mountain. It must be inclosed by or held within the general mass of fixed and immovable rock. It is not enough to find the vein or lode lying on the top of fixed or immovable rock, for that which is on top is not within, and that which is without the rock in place cannot be said to be within it, and the mineral must be in place within definite boundaries.⁵⁶ A vein or lode is not in place if not fixed in rock—in a loose state⁵⁷ or if found lying on the top of fixed or immovable rock.⁵⁸

41. COUNTRY ROCK. Country or neighboring rock designates the mass of rock, whether granite, gneiss, syenite, porphyry, or any other of the many different kinds of rock which may surround and inclose a vein or lode.⁵⁹

42. HORSE. An intrusion of country, or neighboring rock, into a vein or lode is called a "horse" or "rider."⁶⁰

43. DYKES. Dykes are characteristically of igneous rocks and are matter between or through sedimentary beds.⁶¹

44. OUTCROPPINGS. Outcroppings are the edges of the strata appearing at the surface of the ground or which appear immediately under the soil and surface debris.⁶² They relate to the vein or lode and mean the presentation of the mineral to the naked eye on the surface of the earth.⁶³ The term "outcrop" or "outcroppings" is sometimes used synonymously with the terms "top" and "apex."⁶⁴

45. IDENTITY OF VEIN AND OUTCROP. The vein or lode which the miner pursues from its outcrop must, of course, be the same which he pursues outside of his side lines.⁶⁵

46. OUTCROPPINGS NOT ESSENTIAL. While it is on the line of the croppings that lode claims are most generally, but not always accurately, laid without regard to the surface, whether level or inclined,⁶⁶ it is not necessary that the vein or lode shall crop upon the surface that locations may be made upon it. If the vein or lode lies entirely beneath the surface its course may be ascertained by underground work at different points, or if slightly covered by foreign matter the course of the apex may be ascertained by ordinary surface explorations and locations be made substantially following its course.⁶⁷

A location is not invalid because its length is not along the vein or lode.⁶⁸

47. TOP OR APEX. The term "top or apex," as used synonymously, may mean either a point⁶⁹ or a line of great length,⁷⁰ and designates the summit or edge of a vein or lode on,⁷¹ or at any depth, below the surface,⁷² if it should be a "blind" vein or lode.

48. HIGHEST POINT. The highest point in a vein or lode is the ascent along the line of its dip or outcroppings and beyond which the vein or lode extends no further, so that it is the end or reversely the beginning of the vein or lode.⁷³

49. LEGAL TOP OR APEX. For the purpose of discovery and purchase under the mining act, the legal apex or top of a vein or lode dipping out of the ground disposed of under the placer or non-mineral laws is that portion of the vein or lode within the public lands which would constitute its actual apex if the vein or lode had no actual existence in the ground previously disposed of.⁷⁴

50. DISCOVERY OF TOP OR APEX. Any portion of the apex on the course or strike of the vein or lode within the limits of the claim is sufficient discovery to entitle the locator to obtain title.⁷⁵ The vein or lode beyond the end lines of the claim is subject to further discovery and location.⁷⁶

51. LOCATION MUST INCLUDE TOP OR APEX. A location of a lode claim must be upon the top or apex of a vein or lode in order to enable the locator to perfect his location and obtain title.⁷⁷

52. COURSE OR STRIKE. The course or strike of a vein or lode is the direction of the vein or lode across or through the country.⁷⁸

53. PRACTICAL RULE. The most practical rule is to regard the course of the vein or lode as that which is indicated by surface outcrop or surface explorations and workings.⁷⁹

54. FOLLOWING COURSE OR STRIKE. To follow the course, strike or trend is to work lengthwise of the vein or lode on a level, that is, advancing along the vein or lode, neither rising towards the surface of the ground nor descending, but going on a level with the plane of the earth's surface⁸⁰ within the perpendicular planes of the end lines of the location, whether this be more upon the course or strike than the dip of the vein or lode.⁸¹

55. DIP OR DOWNWARD COURSE. The term "dip" is a miner's word not found in the mining act. The term there used is "downward course," which is synonymous with the term "dip."

The direction of the vein or lode as it goes downward into the earth is called the dip. It may vary from a perpendicular to the earth's surface to an angle perhaps only a few degrees below the horizon. The same vein or lode may have different dips.⁸²

56. MEASURING DIP. It is practically the universal custom to measure the dip by its angular deflection from the horizontal. A dip of 20 degrees means 20 degrees from the horizontal.

57. EASEMENT OR SERVITUDE. The right to follow the dip, also termed the "extra-lateral" right, is a sort of easement or servitude laid upon the mining claim adjoining.⁸³

58. FOLLOWING THE DIP. The miner follows the dip of the vein or lode when he works downward, leaving the apex further from and above him at each advance.⁸⁴

59. WALLS OF VEIN OR LODE. The term "wall" in mining parlance is a body of rock bounding a vein or lode on either or both sides thereof and serving as a line of demarcation between the vein or lode and the neighboring or country rock.⁸⁵ The wall rock may be barren or be more or less impregnated with mineral.⁸⁶

A wall is called the "hanging wall" or the "foot wall" according to its relative position to the vein or lode with which it is connected.⁸⁷ Both the walls of a vein or lode may be of a similar character as to formation,⁸⁸ yet have different colors; one wall may be composed of yellow and the other wall be of purple porphyry⁸⁹ or one wall may be of limestone and the complementary wall be of porphyry⁹⁰ or other dissimilar rocky substances.

60. BOUNDARIES OF VEIN OR LÖDE. To the practical miner the walls, in connection with the fissure, are only of importance as indicating the boundaries within which he may look for and reasonably expect to find the ore he seeks.⁹¹ It is not essential that both walls of a vein or lode be disclosed; their existence and continuance may be determined by assay and analysis.⁹² The clay, the selvages, slickensides, striation, and ribbing of the walls are frequently as strong evidence of the indication of permanency and continuity as the existence of the quartz itself.⁹³

61. INDICATIONS. The mere indication or presence of mineral is not sufficient to establish the existence of a vein or lode. The mineral must exist in such quantities as to justify the expenditure of money for the development of the mineral and the extraction thereof.⁹⁴

62. IMPREGNATIONS. An impregnation, to the extent to which it may be traced as a body of ore, is as fully within the broad terms of the act of Congress as any other form of deposit.⁹⁵

CHAPTER IX.

GRUB STAKE CONTRACTS — MINING PARTNERSHIPS — CO-TENANTS.

- § 57. Grub stake—in general—nature of contract—trustees—essential requisites—consideration—termination—acquired rights—duty of outfitter—duty of prospector—what is not a grub stake.
- § 58. Mining partnerships—peculiar rules applicable—essential difference between mining and general partnerships—how created—general partners—trustees—control—debts—liens—accounting—dissolution—sale.
- § 59. Co-tenants—not mining partners—trustees—termination of trust—corporation not co-tenant—incohate rights—divestiture of title—exclusion from patent—when rights barred—actions—questioning title—working the claim—accounting—contribution—liability for loss and debts—adverse possession.

§ 57. Grub Stake—In General. A grub stake or prospecting contract is an agreement, not within the Statute of Frauds and, therefore, not necessarily in writing,* except in Oregon¹ and Nevada,² by which one of the parties thereto is to furnish to the other supplies, money, or both, to and while the other is prospecting for and obtaining mineral land, by location, for their joint advantage or in such proportions as may be agreed upon.³

2. NATURE OF CONTRACT. The contract is in the nature of a qualified partnership.⁴ It does not constitute a "mining partnership" unless the parties thereto actually engage in the joint working of property,⁵ otherwise the parties are tenants in common in the property acquired.⁶

3. TRUSTEES. As the parties are trustees or agents for each other in the prosecution of the joint adventure,⁷ all locations made during the existence of the partnership inure to the benefit of each, whether made in the name of only one of them, or in the name of a third person, at the instigation of either.⁸

4. ESSENTIAL REQUISITES. In order to have a right in property under the grub stake it is essential that the property was acquired by means of the grub stake and pursuant to the provisions of the grub-stake contract.⁹

5. CONSIDERATION. The contract must be based upon an adequate consideration and be clear, definite, just and reasonable.¹⁰

6. TERMINATION. The contract may expire by limitation of time, be dissolved by mutual consent,¹¹ or, if its terms permit, at the option of either party,¹² be abandoned or become impracticable.¹³

7. ACCRUED RIGHTS. Accrued rights are not disturbed by its termination,¹⁴ and in the absence of fraud either party may locate unappropriated discoveries known to him during the existence of the contract.¹⁵

8. DUTY OF OUTFITTER. The outfitter must furnish the supplies agreed upon or the contract will fail.¹⁶

9. DUTY OF PROSPECTOR. It is the duty of the prospector to use reasonable diligence and make reasonable exertions in seeking mineral deposits,¹⁷ and within a reasonable time make proper location covering discovery.¹⁸

10. WHAT IS NOT A GRUB STAKE. Payment of wages and promising to give the prospector an interest in property obtained is not a grub-stake contract, but one of hiring.¹⁹ Neither is an exchange of interests in subsisting claims such a contract.²⁰

2. PECULIAR RULES APPLICABLE. Many of the rules of general partnership obtain in mining partnerships, but the latter have some rules peculiar to themselves.²

3. ESSENTIAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MINING AND GENERAL PARTNERSHIPS. The essential difference is that dissolution does not result from the death or bankruptcy of a partner,³ and a partner has no right to decide what new partners shall be admitted to the firm.⁴

4. HOW CREATED. A mining partnership is created when the owners of a mining claim or shares therein, or lessees of a mining claim unite in the actual working of such claim for the purpose of extracting mineral therefrom, sharing the losses and profits arising from such working, although no express agreement to form a partnership is entered into between them.⁵

5. GENERAL PARTNERS. The parties may become general partners as a result of their own agreement.⁶

6. TRUSTEES. The partners are in the relation of trustees for each other.⁷

7. CONTROL. The property worked and the business of the firm may be controlled by a majority of the members of the partnership acting for the best interests of all concerned.⁸

8. DEBTS. Each partner is jointly liable for the debts of the firm.⁹

9. LIENS. The property worked is not necessarily property owned by the partnership;¹⁰ if it be so, it is subject to the lien of each member of the firm for debt due to himself or to the creditors of the firm.¹¹

10. ACCOUNTING. One mining partner may sue his co-partner for an accounting.¹²

11. DISSOLUTION. The partnership may be dissolved at the will of one of the partners¹³ or by the abandonment¹⁴ or sale of the property.¹⁵

12. SALE. A partner may properly sell his interest at a greater price than that received by the others.¹⁶

1. Kahn v. Smelt. Co., 102 U. S. 641; Congdon v. Olds, 18 Mont. 487.

2. Skillman v. Lachman, 23 Cal. 198; Congdon v. Olds, ante.

The law of California provides that: § 2511. A mining partnership exists when two or more persons who own or acquire a mining claim for the purpose of working it and extracting the mineral therefrom actually engage in working the same.

§ 2512. An express agreement to become partners or to share the profits and losses of mining is not necessary to the formation or existence of a mining partnership. The relation arises from the ownership of shares or interests in the mine and working the same for the purpose of extracting the minerals therefrom.

§ 2513. A member of a mining partnership shares in the profits and losses thereof in the proportion which the interest or share he owns in the mine bears to the whole partnership capital or whole number of shares.

§ 2514. Each member of a mining partnership has a lien on the partnership property for the debts due the creditors thereof, and for money advanced by him for its use. This lien exists notwithstanding there is an agreement among the partners that it must not.

§ 2515. The mining ground owned and worked by partners in mining, whether purchased with partnership funds or not, is partnership property.

§ 2516. One of the partners in a mining partnership may convey his interest in the mine and business without dissolving the partnership. The purchaser, from the date of his purchase, becomes a member of the partnership.

§ 2517. A purchaser of an interest in the mining ground of a mining partnership takes it subject to the liens existing in favor of the partners for debts due all creditors thereof, or advances made for the benefit of the partnership, unless he purchases in good faith, for a valuable consideration, without notice of such lien.

§ 2518. A purchaser of the interest of a partner in a mine when the partnership is engaged in working it, takes with notice of all liens resulting from the relation of the partners to each other and to the creditors of the partnership.

- § 2520. The decision of the members owning a majority of the shares or interests in a mining partnership binds it in the conduct of its business. C. C., §§ 2511-2520.

§ 59. Co-tenants. Co-tenancy arises from the joint location of or ownership in a mining claim.¹

2. NOT MINING PARTNERS. Co-tenants are not "mining partners" unless they unite in working the claim.²

3. TRUSTEES. A co-tenant becomes a trustee for his co-tenants when he re-locates the claim³ or permits its re-location by a third person with whom he is in collusion, unless there has been due severance of the relations of co-tenancy⁴ or he obtains patent in his own name for the claim held in co-tenancy⁵ or purchases an outstanding title to such claim.⁶

4. TERMINATION OF TRUST. The trust may be terminated by agreement or laches⁷ or by the statute of limitations.⁸

5. CORPORATION NOT CO-TENANT. A stockholder in a corporation is in no sense a co-tenant with the corporation nor with the other shareholders of the corporate property.⁹

6. INCHOATE RIGHTS. The holder of a sheriff's certificate of purchase under an execution sale and as the assignee of judgments which are liens against the claim or interest therein is not a co-tenant.¹⁰

7. DIVESTITURE OF TITLE. The title of a co-tenant may be divested by failure of the other co-tenants to make the annual expenditure on the claim, although they may have agreed with him to make the same;¹¹ or by his failure, after due notice, to contribute his proportion of such expenditure;¹² or by the actual adverse possession for the statutory period of the other co-tenants, or some one of them,¹³ evidenced by ouster;¹⁴ or by their obtaining a patent from the government in their own names.¹⁵

8. EXCLUSION FROM PATENT. A co-owner excluded by his co-tenants from an application for a United States patent may,¹⁶ but he is not compelled to, file an adverse claim¹⁷ or a protest¹⁸ or institute legal proceedings to enforce the trust during the pendency of patent proceedings;¹⁹ although he may so do.²⁰

9. WHEN RIGHTS BARRED. The excluded co-tenant may maintain a suit to enforce the trust after the issuance of the patent to the excluding co-tenants²¹ when not barred by laches, the statute of limitations, or the intervention of the rights of third parties, without notice.²²

10. ACTIONS. A co-tenant may maintain an action for the recovery of the claim without joining his co-tenants.²³

11. QUESTIONING TITLE. A co-tenant cannot question the common title upon a contest between him and his co-owners; nor purchase an adverse title and set it up against his co-tenants if they are willing to reimburse him for the amount so expended²⁴ within a reasonable time, or offer to contribute their proportion thereof, provided that the purchasing co-tenant wishes to be paid and conducts himself accordingly.²⁵

12. WORKING THE CLAIM. In the absence of a local statute prohibiting such action²⁶ or an agreement to the contrary between the co-tenants, a co-tenant who does not exclude his co-tenants may work the claim and remove mineral therefrom without being charged with waste or liable to the other co-tenants for damages or subject to an injunction at the instance of his co-tenants.²⁷

13. ACCOUNTING. The working co-owner is liable to the non-participating or non-assenting co-owners for their pro rata share in the net results.²⁸

14. CONTRIBUTION. In the absence of a ratification the operating co-owner has no claim for contribution from them²⁹ except in a partition suit where the court may adjust the equities between them.³⁰

15. LIABILITY FOR LOSS AND DEBTS. As a rule the working co-tenant must alone sustain any loss which results from his working of the property, and he is alone responsible for the debts thereby contracted.³¹

16. ADVERSE POSSESSION. Hostility of possession under claim of title exclusive of any other right will conclude the right of the excluded co-tenants, if continued for sufficient time under the statute of limitations,³² and bar an accounting.³³

CHAPTER X.

MINING LEASES AND LICENSES.

§ 61. Mining leases—in general—covenants—provision as to stoping—royalty.

§ 62. Licenses in general—intent controls—test—when revocable—when irrevocable—injunction.

§ 61. Mining Leases—In General. Each mining lease has its own peculiar details. It is sometimes coupled with an option to purchase the property leased, in which case they are separate and independent agreements.¹ Time is always of the essence of the lease.² It is a contract of labor and not a lease if it provides that the lessor shall have a certain part of the mineral extracted as a return for working the property for a fixed time.³

2. COVENANTS. A covenant to work the property continuously means continuously to the end of the term.⁴ But a mere covenant to work the property is not tantamount to an agreement to work continuously.⁵

3. PROVISION AS TO STOPING. A provision that ore may be stoped only from a certain named level includes the right to stope ore between such level and the next level immediately below.⁶

4. ROYALTY. Where a lease provides for a royalty there is an implied covenant on the part of the lessee for diligent search and operation and the lessee is bound to proceed with his mining operations with reasonable diligence.⁷ Acts of the lessor that hinder and delay the lessee in his mining operations serve to extend the time for the extraction of mineral beyond that which is fixed in the lease.⁸

§ 62. Licenses—In General. A license, as it affects real property, is a privilege or permit, oral or written, with or without consideration,¹ to do a particular act or series of acts, upon the estate of another without possessing any estate therein,² and which otherwise would be unlawful.³

2. INTENT CONTROLS. It is the intention of the parties, as expressed in the instrument, and not its form, that determines whether it is a license or a lease. A quitclaim deed may, in effect, be a license;⁴ or a grant, bargain and sale deed may contain covenants to that effect.^{4a}

2^a. TEST. If the contract gives exclusive possession it is a lease, if it merely confers the privilege of occupation, under the owner, it is a license.^{5a}

3. WHEN REVOCABLE. A mere license is revocable at will and is unassignable, although based upon a consideration.⁵

4. WHEN IRREVOCABLE. When coupled with an interest a license is irrevocable and assignable.⁶

5. INJUNCTION. Where the license has been revoked, the licensee refuses to surrender possession, is insolvent, and is committing waste and destroying the substance of the licensor's estate the latter is entitled to an injunction.⁷

CHAPTER XI.

OPTIONS—DEEDS—EXAMINATION OF TITLE.

- § 66. Options—distinction between option and contract—consideration—sufficient consideration—duty of owner—damages—default.
- § 67. Deeds—what passes by deed—unnecessary recital—creation of independent estates—effect of quitclaim deed—title of corporation—title of association—attack by grantor—agreement for deed—description—statute of limitations—taxation.
- § 68. Examination of title—unappropriated land—character of location—form of location—cross vein—known vein—discovery—boundaries—annual expenditure—receiver's receipt—conclusiveness of patent—inconclusiveness of patent.

§ 66. Options. An option is a privilege to purchase a certain property, at an agreed price, within a certain time.¹ It may be a license or a covenant running with the land.² It may be coupled with a lease.³ Time is of the essence of the contract⁴ whether so therein expressly stated or not.⁵

2. DISTINCTION BETWEEN OPTION AND CONTRACT. The distinction between a contract to purchase or sell real estate and an option to purchase is that the contract to purchase or sell creates a mutual obligation on the one party to sell and on the other to purchase while an option merely gives the right to purchase within a limited time without imposing any obligation to purchase. That is, an option is a right acquired by contract to accept or reject a present offer within a limited or reasonable time in the future.⁶

3. CONSIDERATION. Unless based upon a sufficient consideration an option is merely a continuing offer of sale which may be withdrawn at any time before acceptance.⁷

4. SUFFICIENT CONSIDERATION. A consideration of one dollar, in the absence of fraud or bad faith⁸ or the making of expenditures upon the property,⁹ as, for instance, the performance of the annual assessment work thereon is a sufficient consideration.¹⁰

5. DUTY OF OWNER. It is essential that the owner of the property shall ascertain, in due time, whether the option holder has performed the annual assessment work upon an unpatented claim should he have agreed to do so, and if not so done by the latter to himself cause the same to be done in time sufficient to save the claim from forfeiture.¹¹

6. DAMAGES. Where the option holder defaults in such particular the amount of damages is the amount of the annual expenditure and not the value of the claim that may be forfeited.¹²

7. DEFAULT. If it is provided that in default of any of the payments the property shall revert back to the grantor of the option it is not necessary in case of such default to rescind the contract nor offer to return the payments made, nor wait until final payment was due and in default before bringing suit in ejectment.¹³

1. Richardson v. Hardwick, 106 U. S. 252; Marthinson v. King, 150 Fed. 48; Ide v. Leiser, 10 Mont. 5; Snider v. Yarborough, (Mont.) 115 Pac. 411; Hanley v. Watterson, 38 W. Va. 214. See, generally, Pollard v. Sayre, 45 Colo. 195; Botsford v. Van Riper, (Nev.) 110 Pac. 705; Anderson v. Phegley, (Or.) 110 Pac. 975.

It is provided in California that:—

§ 1577. Whenever, in any estate now being administered, or that may hereafter be administered, it shall appear to the superior court, or a judge thereof, to be for the advantage of the estate to raise money upon a note or notes to be secured by a mortgage of the real property of any decedent, or of a minor, or an incompetent person, or any part thereof, or to make a lease of said realty, or any part thereof, or to agree to sell a claim, or mining claims, or real property worked as a mine, the court or judge, as often as occasion therefor shall arise in the administration of any estate, may on a petition, notice, and hearing as provided in this article, authorize, empower and direct the executor or administrator, or guardian of such minor or incompetent person, to mortgage such real estate, or any part thereof, and to execute a note or notes to be secured by such mortgage, or to lease such real estate, or any part thereof, or to enter into an agreement to sell such real estate, or any part thereof.

§ 1580. To obtain an order to enter into an agreement for the sale of a mining claim, or claims, or real property, worked as a mine, the proceedings to be taken and the effect thereof shall be as follows:

First. The executor, administrator, guardian of a minor, or of an incompetent person, or any person interested in the estate of such decedents, minors, or incompetent persons, may file a verified petition showing:

1. The advantage or advantages that may accrue to the estate from entering into such an agreement.

2. A general description of the property affected by said agreement.

3. The terms and general conditions of the proposed agreement.

4. The names of the legatees and devisees, if any, and of the heirs of the deceased, or of the minor, or of the incompetent person, so far as known to the petitioner.

Second. Upon filing such petition an order shall be made by the court or judge requiring all persons interested in the estate to appear before the court or judge, at a time and place specified, not less than two or more than four weeks thereafter, then and there to show cause why an agreement for the sale of the realty should not be made, and referring to the petition on file for further particulars.

Third. The order to show cause must be personally served on the persons interested in the estate at least ten days before the time appointed for hearing the petition, or it may be published for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county if there be one, and if there is none then in some newspaper of general circulation in the county.

Fourth. At the time and place appointed to show cause, or at such other time and place to which the hearing may be postponed the power to make all needful postponements being hereby vested in the court or jury, the court or judge having first received satisfactory proof of personal service or publication of the order to show cause, must proceed to hear the petition, and any objections that may have been filed or presented thereto. If, after a full hearing, the court or judge is satisfied that it will be for the advantage of the estate to enter into the proposed agreement for the sale of the mines or real estate, an order must be made authorizing, empowering and directing the executor, administrator or the guardian to make such agreement. The order may prescribe the terms and conditions of such agreement.

Fifth. After the making of the order to enter into said agreement, the executor, administrator or guardian of a minor or of an incompetent person shall execute, acknowledge and deliver an agreement containing the conditions specified in the order, setting forth in the agreement that it is made by authority of the order, and giving the date of such order. A certified copy of the order shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which the land affected by the agreement or any portion thereof is situated. C. C. P., §§ 1577-1580.

The provisions of the probate law of California in relation to the summary sale of mines and mining interests are as follows:—

§ 1529. When it appears from the inventory of the estate of any decedent that his estate consists in whole or in part of mines, or interests in mines, such mines or interests may be sold under the order of the court having jurisdiction of the estate, as hereinafter provided.

§ 1530. The executor or the administrator, or any heir at law, or creditor of the estate, or any partner or member of any mining company, in which interests or shares are held or owned by the estate, may file in the court a petition in writing, setting forth the general facts of the estate being then in due course of administration, and particularly describing the mine, interest, or shares which it is desired to sell, and particularly the condition and situation of the mines or mining interests, or of the mining company in which such interests or shares are held, and the grounds upon which the sale is asked to be made.

§ 1531. Upon the presentation of such petition, the court, or a judge thereof, must make an order directing all persons interested to appear before such court, at a time and place specified, not less than four or more than ten weeks from the time of making such order, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the executor or administrator to sell such mine, mining interests, shares, or stocks, as are set forth in the petition and belonging to the estate. A copy of the order to show cause must be personally served on all persons interested in the estate, at least ten days before the time appointed for hearing the petition, or published at least four successive weeks in such newspaper as such court or judge shall specify. If all persons interested in the estate signify in writing their assent to such sale, the notice may be dispensed with.

§ 1532. If, upon hearing the petition, it appears to the satisfaction of the court that it is to the interest of the estate that such mining property or interests of the estate should be sold, or that an immediate sale is necessary in order to secure the just rights or interests of the mining partners, or tenants in common, such court must make an order authorizing the executor or administrator to sell such mining interests, mines, or shares, as hereinafter provided.

§ 1533. After the order of sale is made, all further proceedings for the sale of such mining property, and for the notice, report, and confirmation thereof, must be in conformity with the provisions of article four of this chapter. C. C. P., §§ 1529-1533.

§ 67. Deeds. A mining claim being real estate it can be transferred only by operation of law¹ or by an instrument in writing,² but a discoverer of mineral may transfer his right of location by parol.³

2. WHAT PASSES BY DEED. It is sufficient if it be clear from the language used that the grantor intended to pass the title to the property and whatever is incident and appurtenant thereto.⁴

3. UNNECESSARY RECITAL. It is not necessary to insert in a deed a clause conveying the "dips, spurs and angles" of the lode or vein conveyed.⁵

4. CREATION OF INDEPENDENT ESTATES. Independent estates may be carved out of the same land, as, where the owner of the surface grants only the right to the underlying mineral.⁶

The term "surface" has been defined as that part of the land which is capable of being used for agricultural purposes.⁷

A deed for a specific portion of an unpatented claim renders each an independent claim subject to all the incidents of separate ownership as to discovery,⁸ (if not previously made), and as to annual expenditure.

5. EFFECT OF QUITCLAIM DEED. Ordinarily a quitclaim deed conveys only the present title of the grantor, but if executed during the pendency of patent proceedings in behalf of the grantor the title acquired by the issuance of patent inures to the benefit of the grantee named in the quitclaim deed.⁹

6. TITLE OF CORPORATION. Title to mining ground will not pass to or from a corporation if the assent of the stockholders is not given,¹⁰ or, if a foreign corporation, if it has not filed its articles of incorporation in the foreign state as required by local statute.^{10a}

7. TITLE OF ASSOCIATION. A deed to an unincorporated association of persons as to the firm of "A. B. & Co." passes the title to "B." alone.¹¹ A deed to an unincorporated mining company is not void for want of a grantee therein capable of taking under it.¹²

8. ATTACK BY GRANTOR. A grantor cannot attack the validity of the location conveyed¹³ nor re-locate the claim upon the failure of the grantee to make the necessary annual expenditure upon the claim.¹⁴

9. AGREEMENT FOR DEED. A party may agree to sell one or more mining claims to which he may not then have title, and to convey a good and sufficient title upon the performance of all the conditions assumed by the purchaser.¹⁵

10. DESCRIPTION. It is sufficient that the property can be identified.¹⁶ Hence a mining claim which has a known descriptive name may be sufficiently described by such name, coupled, when possible, with a proper reference to the record or the patent.¹⁷

A conveyance of ground "lying east of the grantor's patented mining ground" carries no right to the vein or lode which may dip under the ground conveyed, as it does not purport to grant any part of the patented ground.¹⁸

11. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. Where independent estates exist in the same land, possession of the surface does not carry with it possession of the minerals under the statute of limitations.¹⁹

12. TAXATION. Independent estates in the same land are each subject to separate taxation.²⁰

When the surface of land is owned by one, and the mineral beneath, with the right to extract the same, is owned by another, it is immaterial whether the two interests have been created by a conveyance of the surface, with a reservation of the mineral, or by a grant of the mineral, with a reservation of the surface. In either case the obligation to protect the surface is the same. And it is well settled that the grant of the surface, with a reservation of the minerals, and a right to extract the same, does not permit the destruction of the surface, unless the right to do so has been expressed in terms so plain as to admit of no doubt. *Catron v. Va. 385; see § 122-7.

2. UNAPPROPRIATED LAND. Such an abstract does not show that the land embraced in the location was subject to appropriation² or whether or not there is an adverse claimant or a party in adverse possession.³

3. CHARACTER OF LOCATION. It does not show that the mineral deposit (if any) therein is of such a nature as to warrant the character of location made.⁴

4. FORM OF LOCATION. It does not show that the location is laid along instead of across the vein or lode⁵ or that it is upon the strike and not the dip thereof.⁶

5. CROSS VEIN. It does not show that, if, a lode claim, there is not a cross or united vein or lode therein having priority of title.⁷

6. KNOWN VEIN. It may not show that, if a placer claim, there is not a known vein or lode therein.⁸

7. DISCOVERY. It does not show that "discovery" has been made.⁹

8. BOUNDARIES. It can not show that the claim is so demarked that its boundaries can be readily traced.¹⁰

9. ANNUAL EXPENDITURE. It does not conclusively show that the proper annual expenditure has been made.¹¹

10. RECEIVER'S RECEIPT. The receiver's receipt is not conclusive because it is subject to cancellation.¹²

11. CONCLUSIVENESS OF PATENT. The patent is conclusive evidence, if a lode claim, that the end lines are parallel;¹³ and that no adverse claims exist.¹⁴

12. INCONCLUSIVENESS OF PATENT. Unless because of lapse of time¹⁵ the patent is not conclusive of sufficient discovery,¹⁶ that the location is valid,¹⁷ that the location accords with the mode of occurrence of the mineral therein,¹⁸ that the title is vested in the patentee,¹⁹ that the claim is free from subsisting lien,²⁰ that the claim on the ground is correctly described,²¹ that a tunnel claimant may not have a better right to blind veins²² or a townsite,²³ or a placer²⁴ patentee to a known vein therein, or that its issuance was within the jurisdiction of the land department.²⁵

CHAPTER XII.

POSSESSION—ABANDONMENT—FORFEITURE.

- § 71. Possession—actual possession—actual possession not required—actual possession without boundaries—constructive possession—boundaries without discovery—presumption as to ownership—evidence of ownership—adverse possession—general principle—continuity of possession—insufficient adverse possession—effect of patent.
- § 72. Abandonment—intent controls—how effected—co-tenant—not abandonment—deed—proof—test—pleading.
- § 73. Forfeiture—proof—burden of proof—reasonable doubt—pleading—absence of right.

§ 71. Possession. A valid location of a mining claim carries with it the right of possession.¹ Location does not follow from possession,² but location will be presumed from possession maintained for a sufficient time under the statute of limitations.³

2. ACTUAL POSSESSION. Actual possession means a subjection to the will and dominion of the claimant.⁴

3. ACTUAL POSSESSION NOT REQUIRED. The "actual possession" which is applied to agricultural lands and which is understood to be a possessio pedis is not required in a completely located mining claim.⁵

4. ACTUAL POSSESSION WITHOUT BOUNDARIES. Actual possession without boundaries or discovery protects only that part of the location which is being worked.⁶

5. CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION. Where a claim lacks none of the essential elements of location and the requisite expenditure is made thereon it may be held by constructive possession.⁷

6. BOUNDARIES WITHOUT DISCOVERY. Constructive possession extends to the entire location if its boundaries are clearly defined although there may be an absence of discovery therein, provided, that the discovery is being sought by actual exploitation of the ground.⁸

7. PRESUMPTION AS TO OWNERSHIP. Every locator is presumed to be the owner of his claim and of the mineral therein until some one else shows a better right thereto.⁹

8. EVIDENCE OF OWNERSHIP. Working the property,¹⁰ living thereon,¹¹ or the presence of a watchman is evidence of possession.¹²

9. ADVERSE POSSESSION. Adverse possession to ripen into a title by prescription must be in consonance with the laws of the state within which the claim may lie.¹³

10. GENERAL PRINCIPLE. The acts of dominion must be adapted to the particular land, its condition, locality and appropriate use,¹⁴ for he who asserts an exclusive ownership over land must perform acts in harmony with his claim of title.¹⁵

11. CONTINUITY OF POSSESSION. An interval in the continuity of the possession necessary to constitute adverse possession will not necessarily defeat the adverse right.¹⁶

12. INSUFFICIENT ADVERSE POSSESSION. The occasional use of mining ground without the knowledge of the owner or the repudiation of his rights;¹⁷ or secret underground working will not establish an adverse right¹⁸ nor will such right arise from the possession of the dip of a vein or lode without possession of the top or apex thereof.¹⁹

13. EFFECT OF PATENT. An adverse right will be lost if not made the subject of an adverse claim when patent is adversely applied for.²⁰ The adverse right must commence anew from and after the date of the patent.²¹

But, while the pedis possessio is thus protected, it must yield to an actual location on a valid discovery made by one who has located peaceably, and neither clandestinely nor with fraudulent purpose. § 72. Abandonment. Abandonment is a voluntary act¹ and operates instantly² to extinguish all rights in the property abandoned.³

2. INTENT CONTROLS. Unlike forfeiture, (as that term is used and understood in the mining law⁴), it does not depend upon lapse of time⁵ nor the act of another for loss of right in the property,⁶ but on the intention of its claimant, to be determined from all the facts and circumstances of the case.⁷

3. HOW EFFECTED. Abandonment may consist of departure from the claim without intention to repossess it and regardless of who may appropriate it,⁸ by verbal permission to another to re-locate it in whole or in part,⁹ or by a written relinquishment of all rights to the claim.¹⁰ The abandonment may be as to the whole or a part of the claim.¹¹

4. CO-TENANT. A co-tenant may abandon his individual interest in a claim without prejudice to the rights of his co-owners therein.¹²

5. NOT ABANDONMENT. A part of a claim intentionally excluded from an application for patent is not abandoned if the claimant retains possession of such part and makes the annual expenditure thereon;¹³ nor does error in excluding a part of a claim from such an application operate as an abandonment thereof. It may be included in an amendment or re-survey.¹⁴

6. DEED. A deed executed after abandonment conveys no interest in the claim abandoned.¹⁵

7. PROOF. In order to sustain an allegation of abandonment it must appear that there was a leaving of the claim without any intention of making any further use of it.¹⁶ The burden of proof of the intent to abandon rests upon him who asserts it and the proof must be clear and convincing.¹⁷

8. TEST. The intention to return is the test.¹⁸

9. PLEADING. The courts do not agree as to whether abandonment may be proved in the absence of an allegation thereof.¹⁹

- By legislative enactment in California it is provided that:—
- § 1. All abandoned mining shafts, pits, or other abandoned excavations dangerous to passers-by or livestock shall be securely covered or fenced, and kept so, by the owners of the land or persons in charge of the same, on which such shafts, pits or other excavations are located.  - § 2. All abandoned mining shafts, pits or other excavations situated on unoccupied public lands may be securely covered or fenced by order of the board of supervisors of the county wherein the same is situated, and it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to keep the same securely fenced or covered whenever it appears to them, by proof submitted, that the same is dangerous or unsafe to man or beast. The cost of said covering to be a county charge.

§ 73. Forfeiture. Forfeiture is the loss of the right to a mining claim by adverse re-location¹ and rests upon the fact of the non-observance of the requirements of the mining laws and district rules² which is taken advantage of by another.³ A mere failure to make the requisite annual expenditure while it may cause a forfeiture does not constitute an abandonment.⁴

2. PROOF. The law should be liberally construed to prevent a forfeiture⁵ and the proof must be clear and convincing.⁶

3. BURDEN OF PROOF. The burden of proof of forfeiture is cast upon him who asserts it.⁷

4. REASONABLE DOUBT. Every reasonable doubt will be resolved in favor of the validity of a mining location,⁸ as the courts are reluctant to enforce forfeiture.⁹

5. PLEADING. The burden of pleading forfeiture is upon him who asserts it.¹⁰

6. ABSENCE OF RIGHT. The question of forfeiture cannot be raised by one claiming the ground under a void location.¹¹

§ 76. Condemnation Proceedings. The Federal government's general sovereignty of eminent domain within a state or territory¹ is not delegated to the mining claimant.

2. CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION. The power to exercise the right of eminent domain by a mining claimant exists by virtue of a local constitutional provision.

3. LIMITATION OF POWER. In the absence of such a provision a local legislature has no power to authorize the taking of private property for mining purposes.²

4. PUBLIC USE. When mining is expressly declared, by a constitutional provision, to be a public use, as in Colorado,³ Nevada,⁴ and Utah⁵ a local statute authorizing the taking of land, by a mining company for its own purposes, as, for instance, a right of way through another's mining claim for a tunnel in operating its mining claim is a taking for a public use.⁶

1. § 1238 (C. C. P.) 1. The right of eminent domain may be exercised in behalf of the following public uses.

5. Roads, tunnels, ditches, flumes, pipes and dumping places for working mines, also outlets, natural or otherwise, for the flow, deposit, or conduct of tailings or refuse matter from mines, also an occupancy in common by the owners or possessors of different mines of any place for the flow, deposit, or conduct of tailings or refuse matter from their several mines.

10. Oil pipe lines.

12. Canals, reservoirs, dams, ditches, flumes, aqueducts and pipes and outlets, natural or otherwise, for supplying, storing, and distributing water for the operation of machinery for the purpose of generating and transmitting electricity for the supply of mines, quarries, railroads, tramways, mills and factories with electric power; and also for the applying of electricity to light or heat mines, quarries, mills, factories, incorporated cities and counties, villages or towns; and also for furnishing electricity for lighting, heating or power purposes to individuals or corporations, together with lands, buildings and all other improvements in or upon which to erect, install, place, use or operate machinery for the purpose of generating and transmitting electricity for any of the purposes or uses above set forth.

13. Electric power lines, electric heat lines, and electric light, heat and power lines. See § 76-2, § 76, note 2, ante.

§ 1239. The following is a classification of the estates and rights in lands subject to be taken for public use.

1. A fee simple, when taken for public buildings or grounds, or for permanent buildings, for reservoirs and dams, and permanent flooding occasioned thereby, or for an outlet for a flow, or a place for the deposit of debris or tailings of a mine.

2. An easement, when taken for any other use, (here follows proviso as to taking by a municipal corporation).

3. The right of entry upon and occupation of lands, and the right to take therefrom such earth, gravel, stones, trees, and timber as may be necessary for some public use.

See C. C. P., §§ 1240, 1241, 1248; see § 28-14, ante.

§ 77. Easements. Easements for the working, drainage and complete development of mining claims have been left by Congress to local law.¹ Rights of way over public lands are granted by Congress.²

2. VESTED RIGHTS. All patents granted, or pre-emption or homesteads allowed are subject to vested and accrued water rights, or rights to ditches and reservoirs used in connection with such water rights, as may have been acquired under or recognized by the provisions of the mining act.³

3. RIGHT OF WAY. No legal proceedings are necessary to establish a right of way over public lands.⁴ An unpatented mining claim being property⁵ no right of way can be acquired therein or thereunder without the acquiescence of the owner thereof except by condemnation proceedings under a valid local statute.⁶

4. DAMAGES. When in the construction of any ditch or canal, the possession of any settler on the public domain is injured or damaged, the party committing such injury or damage is liable therefor to the party injured.⁷

By legislative enactment in California, "All mining locations and mining claims shall be subject to a reservation of the right of way through or over any mining claims, ditches, roads, canals, cuts, tunnels, and other easements for the purpose of working other mines; provided, that any damage occasioned thereby shall be assessed and paid for in the manner provided by law for land taken for public use under the right of eminent domain. 7. Rev. Stats., § 2339; Jennison v. Kirk, 98 U. S. 453; Titcomb v. Kirk, 51 Cal. 288; Yunker v. Nichols, ante.

§ 78. Laches. Laches is the neglect or failure to actively assert a right in or to property within a reasonable time, under the facts of the particular case, after a cause of action, in relation thereto, has arisen.

2. UNLIKE LIMITATIONS. Laches is not like limitation, a mere matter of time, but principally a question of the inequity of permitting the claim to be enforced; an inequity founded, for instance, upon some change in the condition or the relation of the party or parties.¹

3. EQUITABLE DEFENSE. Inexcusable delay for a period short of the time provided by the statute of limitations may constitute laches, and is an equitable defense wholly independent and outside of the statute of limitations, whenever the relief sought is wholly equitable.²

4. DELAY. Delay cannot be excused except by some actual hindrance or impediment caused by the fraud or concealment of the party in possession.³

5. MEASURE OF DILIGENCE. In some cases the diligence required is measured by months rather than years; in others a delay of 2, 3, or 4 years has been held fatal.⁴ The speculative character of a mining claim requires prompt action in asserting an adverse right therein.⁵

6. PLEADING LACHES. When a suit is brought within the time limited by the statute of limitations the burden is upon the defendant to show, by demurrer or answer, that unusual conditions or extraordinary circumstances exist which require the application of the doctrine of laches.⁶

7. PLAINTIFF'S ALLEGATIONS. When suit is brought after the statutory time has elapsed the burden is on the plaintiff to show by suitable allegations in the complaint that it would be inequitable to apply it to his case.⁷

§ 79. Liens. A lien upon a mining claim may be created by contract, as, by mortgage,¹ by operation of law, as, for taxes,² by a judgment of a court,³ or by a proceeding under a mechanic's lien law.⁴

2. NOT IMPAIRED BY PATENT. No lien which has attached to a mining claim is impaired by the issuance of a patent therefor.⁵

3. LOSS OF LIEN. A lien may be waived;⁶ or lost by the effluxion of time.⁷

4. MECHANIC'S LIEN. A mechanic's lien is a creature of a local statute, which should be consulted and substantially followed.⁸

5. PURPOSE. Its purpose is to secure the unpaid wages of those doing manual labor in or upon a mining claim or mill or reduction works;⁹ also the debt due to the material-man, that is, the person who furnishes materials actually used in the improvement, alteration or repair of such property.¹⁰

6. CONTRACT ESSENTIAL. The work must be done or the materials must be furnished under a contract, express or implied, with one in lawful possession of the property as the owner, agent, receiver, lessee,¹¹ or one working the claim under an option or working bond.¹²

7. PROTECTION OF OWNER. When property is being worked by one other than the owner the latter usually protects the property from possible lien by posting notice thereon to the effect that the property is being so worked and that he will not be responsible for any debt or charge created thereby.¹³

8. STATUTORY REQUIREMENT. Sometimes a local statute requires that such a notice, to be effective, must be verified and recorded within a certain number of days after its posting upon the property.^{13a}

9. INDEMNIFICATION. It is not unusual for the owner to exact an indemnity bond from the party working the property or to require that all persons employed in or furnishing materials to the claim shall contract in writing to look only to the latter person and not to the property for their pay.¹⁴

10. SUBORDINATE TO MORTGAGE. Claims for materials, supplies and labor furnished to a mining claim before the appointment of a receiver are subordinate to a prior mortgage.¹⁵

§ 80. Master and Servant. The master must provide the servant with a reasonably safe place to work¹ and reasonably safe appliances to work with.²

2. FELLOW SERVANTS. The master is not liable for injury to a servant resulting from the negligence of a fellow servant.³

3. ASSUMPTION OF RISK. Where a servant enters upon or continues in a dangerous employment with either knowledge of the danger or full opportunity to observe the conditions making the employment dangerous he assumes the risk of such employment.⁴

4. LEGISLATIVE SAFEGUARDS. In California and elsewhere it is provided under what circumstances the mine owner shall furnish a second means of escape from quartz mines,⁵ distinct means of ingress and egress from and ventilation of coal mines,⁶ a uniform system of bell signals to be used in all mines⁷ and the liability to be incurred by acts of omission.

5. LIMITING HOURS OF LABOR. In California, as in other mining states, the hours for persons employed in underground work and in the reduction and refining of ores and metals is limited to 8 hours in every 24 hours for each person so employed, except in cases of emergency, where life or property is in imminent danger.⁸

5. Quartz Mines. § 1. It shall not be lawful for any corporation, association, owner, or owners of any quartz mining claims within the State of California, where such corporation, association, owner, or owners employ twelve men dally, to sink down into such mine or mines any perpendicular shaft or incline beyond a depth from the surface of three hundred feet without providing a second mode of egress from such mine, by shaft or tunnel, to connect with the main shaft at a depth of not less than one hundred feet from the surface.

§ 2. It shall be the duty of each corporation, association, owner, or owners of any quartz mine or mines in this state, where it becomes necessary to work such mines beyond the depth of three hundred feet, and where the number of men employed therein daily shall be twelve or more, to proceed to sink another shaft or construct a tunnel so as to connect with the main working shaft of such mine as a mode of escape from underground accident, or otherwise.

And all corporations, associations, owner, or owners of mines as aforesaid, working at a greater depth than three hundred feet, not having any other mode of egress than from the main shaft, shall proceed as herein provided.

§ 3. When any corporation, association, owner, or owners of any quartz mine in this state shall fail to provide for the proper egress as herein contemplated, and therein shall be hurt or injured, and from such injury might have escaped if the second mode of egress had existed, such corporation, association, owner, or owners of the mine where the injuries shall have occurred shall be liable to the person injured in all damages that may accrue by reason thereof; and an action at law in a court of competent jurisdiction may be maintained against the owner or owners of such mine, which owners shall be jointly or severally liable for such damages. And where death shall ensue from injuries received from any negligence on the part of the owners thereof, by reason of their failure to comply with any of the provisions of this act, the heirs or relatives surviving the deceased may commence an action for the recovery of such damages as provided by an act entitled an act requiring compensation for causing death by wrongful act, neglect, or default, approved April twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two. 6. Coal Mines. § 1. The owner or agent of every coal mine shall make or cause to be made an accurate map or plan of the workings of such coal mine, on a scale of 100 feet to the inch.

§ 2. A true copy of which map or plan shall be kept at the office of the owner or owners of the mine, open to the inspection of all persons, and one copy of such map or plan shall be kept at the mines by the agent or other person having charge of the mines, open to the inspection of the workmen.

§ 3. The owner or agent of every coal mine shall provide at least two shafts, or slopes, or outlets, separated by natural strata of not less than 150 feet in breadth, by which shafts, slopes, or outlets distinct means of ingress and egress are always available to the persons employed in the coal mine; provided, that if a new tunnel, slope, or shaft will be required for the additional opening, work upon the same shall commence immediately after the passage of this act, and continue until its final completion, with reasonable dispatch.

§ 4. The owner or agent of every coal mine shall provide and establish for every such mine an adequate amount of ventilation, of not less than 55 cubic feet per second of pure air, or 3300 feet per minute, for every 50 men working in such mine, and as much more as circumstances may require, which shall be circulated through to the face of each and every working place throughout the entire mine, to dilute and render harmless and expel therefrom the noxious, poisonous gases, to such an extent that the entire mine shall be in a fit state for men to work therein, and be free from danger to the health and lives of the men by reason of such noxious and poisonous gases, and all workings shall be kept clear of standing gas.

§ 5. To secure the ventilation of every coal mine, and provide for the health and safety of the men employed therein, otherwise and in every respect, the owner, or agent, as the case may be, in charge of every coal mine, shall employ a competent and practical inside overseer, who shall keep a careful watch over the ventilating apparatus, over the air-ways, the travelling-ways, the pumps and sumps, the timbering, to see as the miners advance in their excavations that all loose coal, slate, or rock overhead is carefully secured against falling; over the arrangements for signaling from the bottom to the top, and from the top to the bottom of the shaft or slope, and all things connected with and appertaining to the safety of the men at work in the mine. He, or his assistants, shall examine carefully the workings of all mines generating explosive gases, every morning before the miners enter, and shall ascertain that the mine is free from danger, and the workmen shall not enter the mine until such examination has been made and reported, and the cause of danger, if any, be removed.

§ 6. The overseer shall see that hoisting machinery is kept constantly in repair and ready for use, to hoist the workmen in or out of the mine.

§ 7. The word "owner" in this act shall apply to lessee as well.

§ 8. For any injury to person or property occasioned by any violation of this act, or any wilful failure to comply with its provisions, a right of action shall accrue to the party injured for any direct damages he or she may have sustained thereby, before any court of competent jurisdiction.

§ 9. For any wilful failure or negligence on the part of the overseer of any coal mine, he shall be liable to conviction of misdemeanor, and punished according to law; provided, that if such wilful failure or negligence is the cause of the death of any person, the overseer, upon conviction, shall be deemed guilty of manslaughter.

§ 10. All boilers used for generating steam in and about coal mines shall be kept in good order, and the owner or agent thereof shall have them examined and inspected, by a competent boiler-maker, as often as once in three months.

§ 11. This act shall not apply to opening a new coal mine.

§ 12. This act shall take effect immediately.

Bell Signal Act. § 1. Every person, company, corporation, or individual, operating any mine within the State of California—gold, silver, copper, lead, coal, or any other metal or substance—where it is necessary to use signals by means of bell or otherwise, for shafts, inclines, drifts, crosscuts, tunnels, and underground workings, shall, after the passage of this bill adopt, use and put in force the following system or code of mine bell signals, as follows:—

1 bell, to hoist. (See Rule 2.)

1 bell, to stop if in motion.

2 bells, to lower. (See Rule 2.)

3 bells, man to be hoisted, run slow. (See Rule 2.)

4 bells, start pump, if not running, or stop pump if running.

1—3 bells, start or stop air compressor.

5 bells, send down tools. (See Rule 4.)

6 bells, send down timbers. (See Rule 4.)

7 bells, accident; move bucket or cage by verbal orders only.

1—4 bells, foreman wanted.

2—1—1 bells, done hoisting, until called.

2—1—2 bells, done hoisting for the day.

2—2—2 bells, change buckets from ore to water, or vice versa.

3—2—1 bells, ready to shoot in the shaft. (See Rule 3.)

Engineer's signal, that he is ready to hoist, is to raise the bucket or cage two feet and lower it again. (See Rule 3.)

Levels shall be designated and inserted in notice hereinafter mentioned. (See Rule 5.)

§ 2. For the purpose of enforcing and properly understanding the above code of signals, the following rules are hereby established:—

Rule 1—In giving signals make strokes on bell at regular intervals. The bar (—) must take the same time as for one stroke of the bell, and no more. If timber, tools, the foreman, bucket or cage are wanted to stop at any level in the mine, signal by number of strokes on the bell, number of the level, first before giving the signal for timber, tools, etc. Time between signals to be double bars (— —). Examples:—

6 — 5 would mean stop at sixth level with tools.

4 — 1 — 1 — 1 — 1 would mean stop at fourth level, man on hoist.

2 — 1 — 4 would mean stop at second level with foreman.

Rule 2—No person must get off or on the bucket or cage while the same is in motion. When men are to be hoisted give the signal for men. Men must then get on bucket or cage, then give the signal to hoist.

Bell cord must be in reach of man on the bucket or cage at stations.

Rule 3.—After signal "Ready to shoot in shaft," engineer must give his signal when he is ready to hoist. Miners must then give the signal of "Men to be hoisted," then "spit fuse," get into the bucket, and give the signal to hoist.

Rule 4—All timbers, tools, etc., "longer than the depth of the bucket," to be hoisted or lowered, must be securely lashed at the upper end to the cable. Miners must know they will ride up or down the shaft without catching on rocks or timbers and be thrown out.

Rule 5—The foreman will see that one printed sheet of these signals and rules for each level and one for the engine-room are attached to a board not less than twelve inches wide by thirty-six inches long, and securely fasten the board up where signals can be easily read at the places above stated.

Rule 6—The above signals and rules must be obeyed. Any violation will be sufficient grounds for discharging the party or parties so doing. No person, company, corporation, or individuals operating any mine within the State of California, shall be responsible for accidents that may happen to men disobeying the above rules and signals. Said notice and rules shall be signed by the person or superintendent having charge of the mine, who shall designate the name of the corporation or owner of the mine.

§ 3. Any person or company failing to carry out any of the provisions of this act shall be responsible for all damages arising to or incurred by any person working in said mine during the time of such failure.

The law of California limiting the hours of labor is as follows: § 1. That the period of employment for all persons who are employed or engaged in work in underground mines in search of minerals, whether base or precious, or who are engaged in such underground mines for other purposes, or who are employed or engaged in other underground workings whether for the purpose of tunneling, making excavations or to accomplish any other purpose or design, or who are employed in smelters and other institutions for the reduction or refining of ores or metals, shall not exceed eight hours within any twenty-four hours, and the hours of employment in such employment or work day shall be consecutive, excluding, however, any intermission of time for lunch or meals; provided that, in the case of emergency where life or property is in imminent danger, the period may be a longer time during the continuance of the exigency or emergency.

§ 2. Any person who shall violate any provision of this act, and any person who as foreman, manager, director or officers of a corporation, or as the employer or superior officer of any person, shall command, persuade or allow any person to violate any provision of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than three hundred dollars ($300.00), or by imprisonment of not more than three months. And the court shall have discretion to impose both fine and imprisonment as herein provided.

§ 80a. Recent Californian Legislation. Recent Californian legislation in relation to the subject of this title is "An Act relating to the liability of employers for injuries or death sustained by their employees, providing for compensation for the accidental injury of employees, establishing an industrial accident board, defining its powers and providing for a review of its awards." Approved April 8, 1911.¹

§ 81. Partition. Mining claims are subject to partition,¹ although the paramount title thereto may be in the United States.² A suit therefor usually results in a decree for the sale of the property.³

2. AGREED PARTITION. A mining claim may be partitioned by agreement between the parties.⁴

3. ARBITRATION. The question of title to a mining claim is not a subject for arbitration.⁵

4. MINING RIGHT. A bare "mining right" is usufructuary in its character and is not in its nature capable of partition.⁶

Mining property from its very nature is not susceptible of partition. The ores are unevenly distributed, while the values are purely conjectural until tested by extended development and careful tests, which can only be obtained as the result of a vast expenditure of money and time; so that it is known in advance of bringing the suit for partition that the only feasible relief that can be awarded is a decree for the sale of the property. Brown v. Challis, ante; see Hall v. Vernon, 47 W. Va. 295.

§ 82. Patent. A patent may be cancelled by a direct proceeding in equity when issued by the Land Department through an error of law or when the patent is obtained in fraud of the rights of the Government,¹ provided, that suit is brought within 6 years from the date of its issuance.²

2. BONA FIDE PURCHASER. A sale to a bona fide purchaser, for value, without notice, will bar an action against a patentee or his transferee.³

3. BURDEN OF PROOF. The burden of proof is on the attacking party.⁴

4. FRAUDULENT PATENTEE. A person wrongfully or fraudulently obtaining a patent for land which properly belongs to another, or whether acting in good faith, will be treated in equity as trustee for the equitable owner and be required to transfer the legal title to him.⁵

5. NOT ATTACK UPON PATENT. This proceeding is not an annulment or setting aside of the patent wrongfully issued,⁶ but is based upon the theory that the title evidenced by the patent inured to the benefit of such trustor.⁷

6. STATUS OF TRUSTOR. Where it is sought to have the patentee declared the trustee for another, not named in the patent, the plaintiff, in such a suit, in the absence of any contract between the parties, must allege and clearly prove that he occupies such a status as to entitle him to control the legal title.⁸

7. FRAUD. If charges of fraud are made they must be specific and show that the fraud must, necessarily, have affected the action of the land department in issuing the patent.⁹

8. APPLICATION TO SUE. If a party is not entitled to control the legal title yet seeks to annul the patent or limit its operation he must make application to the Government to take the proper steps to that end, as such a suit can be maintained only by and in the name of the United States.¹⁰

9. FALSE TESTIMONY INSUFFICIENT. False testimony or forged documents will not defeat the patent if the disputed matter has actually been presented to or considered by the appropriate tribunal.¹¹ To be considered, the perjury must be extrinsic or collateral to the matter determined.¹²

§ 83. Rescission. A rescission can be effected only by placing or offering to place the party against whom the rescission is sought in the position in which he stood in relation to the property at the time the contract or option was entered into, unless the property is of no value.¹

2. CONDITION PRECEDENT. Restoration is a condition precedent to suit for rescission; it must be promptly made and suit be brought within a reasonable time thereafter.²

3. APPLICATION OF RULE. This rule applies with peculiar force in relation to mining property because of its fluctuating and speculative character.³

4. GROUND FOR RESCISSION. The "salting" of a mining claim which is the subject of a contract or option, or an error as to the amount of "ore in sight" therein, are sufficient grounds for rescission.⁴

5. SALTING. "Salting" consists in placing, usually surreptitiously, valuable mineral from a foreign source in such form and place within the claim as the characteristics of the latter may require, or, in like manner, tampering with the samples of ore or mineral taken therefrom or with the assays thereof, or the amalgam or other matter in the mill or other reduction works, with the intent and for the purpose to thereby give increased apparent, but misleading and inflated value to the property which is the subject of the option or contract of sale thereof and, so, induce its sale at a price greater than its mineral value warrants.

6. UNINTENTIONAL SALTING. A faulty method of prospecting or of sampling may result in a party "salting himself." This, for instance, may be by "driving" after drilling in an auriferous free gravel deposit.

7. REMEDIES. In the event of a sale of a salted property the party who has been thus defrauded may keep the property and sue for damages, or repudiate the contract, restore the property and demand the return of his money, provided, that he acts within a reasonable time after discovery of the fraud.⁵

8. INSUFFICIENT GROUNDS FOR RESCISSION. The following are instances of insufficient grounds for rescission, viz: Where the purchaser is to find out for himself whether the claim is valuable or not;⁶ concealment of the mineral value of the land⁷ or the output of adjoining property, provided, there be no wilful misstatement of a material fact intended to mislead the seller as to the value of the land.⁸

9. MARKETABLE TITLE. The want of a marketable title prior to the expiration of the time to purchase the property⁹ or mere reliance upon rumors of a defect in the title¹⁰ are insufficient.

10. Moore v. Pooley, 17 Ida. 57.

§ 84. Statute of Limitations. Under the provisions of the mining act in regard to State or Territorial statute of limitations, the latter statute becomes the foundation upon which actively to assert a right, and is not limited as in other cases, to be used as a defense against an adversary's attack.

2. ESTABLISHES RIGHT TO PATENT. Where claims have been held and worked for a period equal to the term prescribed by the statute of limitations for mining claims for the state or territory where the same is situated, evidence of such possession and working is sufficient to establish a right to a patent thereto in the absence of any adverse claim,¹ provided, the statutory expenditure has been made thereon.²

3. CONTROLLING FACTOR. The statute of limitations thus becomes a controlling factor as the basis of a claimant's right to a mining claim in contradistinction from its ordinary use as a shield for defense against an adverse attack.³

4. CALIFORNIAN PROVISIONS. In California the time for commencing an action for the recovery of real property is limited to five years after the plaintiff or his ancestor, predecessor or grantor was seized or possessed of the property in question; ⁴ the time for commencing an action for trespass upon real property is limited to three years ⁵ and the time for commencing an action for relief on the ground of fraud is limited to three years after the discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake. ⁶

§ 85. Trespass. In cases of trespass upon a mining, timber, or like claim an injunction will be granted to restrain the commission of acts by which the substance of the estate is injured, destroyed or carried away. ¹

2. IGNORANCE OF BOUNDARY. The fact that the trespass is due to ignorance of the dividing line between two claims is no excuse or justification ² as one is bound to know the boundaries of his own property and to refrain from injuring the property of others. ³

3. TEST OF TRESPASS. A trespass may be due to mistake ⁴ or be intentional. ⁵ The test which determines whether one was a wilful or an innocent trespasser is not his violation of or compliance with the law, but his honest belief at the time he committed the injury. ⁶

4. INJUNCTIONAL PROCEEDINGS. The courts are more liberal in granting a writ of injunction in mining cases than in those affecting other real estate, ⁷ because of the necessity of preventing injury which can not be accurately estimated and therefore cannot be adequately compensated, or in order that neither party may get the advantage of the other during the litigation by force or violence.⁸ The doubt should be resolved in favor of granting the writ.⁹

5. DENIAL OF INJUNCTION. In an action of ejectment the defendant cannot be restrained from entering upon or from "working" the property in dispute, provided, he does not commit waste or extract or remove ore therefrom.¹⁰ Co-tenants in possession will not be enjoined from working a mining claim in the ordinary way.¹¹

6. RIGHT OF INSPECTION. Incident to an action in trespass is the right, by one having a real interest therein, to inspect, examine and survey the property involved in the action.^{11a}

7. GROUNDS FOR ORDER. From the very nature of the case the ignorance of the party invoking the aid of the court and the want of the means to acquire the information necessary to make out his case are of the greatest import; if these facts appear, and the circumstances otherwise appearing to the court in the evidence furnish reasonable ground for the belief that an inspection will aid the court in the investigation of the case the order should be granted.¹²

8. SUBSTANCE OF ORDER. The order for the examination, inspection and survey of the defendant's claim should strictly limit the examination to the workings of which it is necessary for the moving party to have knowledge and to the making of surveys and maps thereof.¹³

9. DAMAGES. The ultimate recovery against a trespasser, must be determined largely upon the question of the good or bad faith of the undertaking.¹⁴ Where the trespass is wilful the measure of damages is the enhanced value of the mineral at the mouth of the shaft, or where it was finally converted to the use of the defendant.¹⁵ If an innocent trespass the measure of damages is the value of the mineral as it was in the ground before its disturbance.¹⁶

10. GOOD FAITH OF TRESPASSER. Good faith is not necessarily dependent upon ignorance of an adverse claim; ¹⁷ but an intentional or reckless omission to ascertain the rights or the boundaries of land of the victim for the purpose of maintaining ignorance regarding them, or the reckless disregard of them, is as fatal to the claim of a trespasser to limit the recovery of damages against him to the lower measure as is an intentional or wilful trespass or taking.¹⁸

11. PLEADING. Where the damage is irreparable, the insolvency of the defendant need not be pleaded, as it is the nature of the injury and not the incapacity of the party to respond in damages which determines the right to an injunction in cases of trespass or waste.¹⁹

12. MODEL. A model of a mine may not be admissible in evidence because not a perfect mechanical fac simile thereof, but it may be admitted in connection with and for the purpose of explaining the testimony of witnesses.²⁰

§ 87. Assays. An assay is a means of ascertaining the commercial value of a mineralized substance, as, for example, ore or black sand, or the product of a mill or smelter, either by a "fire" or a "wet" process,¹ and termed "Ordinary assays," "Commercial assays," "Specimen assays," "Control assays," and "Umpire assays."

2. ASSAY VALUE. The term "assay value" means the standard assay value of gold everywhere.²

3. VALUE OF ASSAY. An average assay value of several samples cannot be taken as an absolute mathematical demonstration of the value of an ore body,³ nor is the assay return necessarily conclusive of the value of the thing assayed.⁴

4. CAR AND MILL SAMPLES. As car samples always run above the true value of the ore, mill samples are a better test thereof.⁵

1. Puget Co., 96 Fed. 90.
2. Vietti v. Nesbitt, 22 Nev. 390. A judgment for the conversion of silver bullion, payable in coin, should be based upon the coin or market value of the bullion, and not upon an arbitrary standard of value above its market value. Fox v. Hale & Norcross Co., 108 Cal. 369.
3. Golden Reward Co. v. Buxton Co., 97 Fed. 413; Pittsburg Co. v. Glick, 7 Colo. A. 43. An assay may tend to prove discovery. Healey v. Rupp, 28 Colo. 102.

5. Fox v. Hale & Norcross Co., ante; Vietti v. Nesbitt, ante.

§ 88. Blanket Sluices. A blanket sluice consists of a double line of flat, wooden troughs, set at a proper grade or inclination, and lined with blankets over which the mill tailings are to flow, with the result that there is deposited upon the blankets a portion of the quicksilver that is always escaping from the mill, and a portion of the ore, known as "sulphurets" which is heavier and richer than the rest of the tailings, but resists amalgamation.

2. CONCENTRATES. The material so caught in the blanket sluice is called "concentrates."¹

1. Fox v. Hale & Norcross Co., 108 Cal. 369.

§ 89. Claim. The word "claim" in mining parlance when used as a noun has a definite meaning, denoting, when coupled with the name of a miner, a particular piece of ground to which he has a recognized, vested and exclusive right of possession for the purpose of extracting precious metals and minerals therefrom.¹

2. APPLICATION OF TERM. The term "claim" is applied indifferently to both lode and placer claims.²

3. PERFECTED CLAIM. As used in the mining act the term means a claim not yet perfected by patent.³

4. CONTIGUOUS CLAIMS. The term "contiguous" means touching sides, adjoining, adjacent. Two tracts of land touching only at a point, are not contiguous.⁴

1. N. P. R. Co. v. Sanders, 49 Fed. 129.

2. Sweet v. Webber, 7 Colo. 443.

3. Iron Co. v. Campbell, 135 U. S. 286.

A mining claim, until a patent therefor has been issued, is held by peculiar title,—a title which is never complete and absolute, and which can only be maintained by the annual expenditure thereon by law required. Bay State Co. v. Brown, 21 Fed. 167.

4. Hidden Treasure, 35 L. D. 485. Cited in Anvil Co. v. Code, 182 Fed. 205; see § 194, note 35, post.

§ 90. Conspicuous Place. A "conspicuous place" is a discovery shaft¹ or shaft house² or the placing of the plat and notice of intention to apply for a patent in a box and fastening the same on a tree, or otherwise placing such matter at an elevation above the level of the ground so it can be seen by those going over the land, or so that it might not be obscured by the snow falling at the season of the year when posted.³

2. PENALTY. A failure to post such matter in a "conspicuous place" will, in patent proceedings, make a new posting necessary.⁴

1. Ferguson v. Hanson, 21 L. D. 336.

2. Gowdy v. Kismet Co., 22 L. D. 624; see Louisville Lode Case, 1 L. D. 548.

3. Ferguson v. Hanson, ante.

4. Id.; Tom Moore Co. v. Nesmith, 36 L. D. 199.

§ 91. Corporation. A corporation is a legal entity and can have no greater rights than an individual in acquiring public land.¹

2. LOCATION RIGHTS. A corporation, regardless of the number of its stockholders, may lawfully locate no greater area than is allowable in the case of an individual.²

1. Igo Bridge Ex. Placer, 38 L. D. 281; see Gird v. Cal. Oil Co., 60 Fed. 531; see also U. S. v. Trinidad Co., 137 U. S. 160.

2. Id.; see also Nome & Sinook Co. v. Snyder, 187 Fed. 385.

1. See Cary Act, 37 L. D. 489; Jeremy Co. v. Thompson, 20 L. D. 299.

For statutes and regulations governing entries and proofs under the Desert Land laws, see Circular 39 L. D. 253. For relief of assignees of entries in Imperial Co., Cal., see 39 L. D. 277.

§ 93. Entry. The term "entry" as applied in the appropriation of public land means that act by which an individual acquires an inceptive right to a portion of the unappropriated soil of the country.¹

The term is also applied to an adverse re-location.²

2. PREFERENTIAL RIGHT. A preferential right of entry is a privilege to make the statutory entry of a particular tract in preference to others.³

3. CERTIFICATE OF ENTRY. A certificate of entry is equivalent to a patent issued. When in fact the patent does issue it relates back to the inception of the right of the patentee, and cuts off intervening claimants.⁴

4. ISSUANCE. The certificate of entry is issued by the receiver of the proper district land office to the party entitled by law thereto.⁵

5. EFFECT OF ISSUANCE. The contract of purchase is complete when the certificate of entry is executed and delivered. The land then ceases to be a part of the public domain. Patent issues in due course.

In the mean time the government holds the naked legal title in trust for the entryman.⁶

6. CANCELLATION. It is the province of the land department to investigate the legality of an entry prior to patent and cancel the certificate of entry, in whole or in part, so as to conform the entry to the law.⁷ If the cancellation is based upon a misconstruction of the law it can be corrected by the courts.⁸

7. REPAYMENT. When an entry is rejected, in whole or in part, and there is no fraud nor attempted fraud in connection with the application, the purchase money and commissions paid to the Government will be refunded by it to the applicant or his legal representatives upon verified demand made through the local or general land office.⁹

See § 104. post.

1. Sturr v. Beck, 133 U. S. 541; see Witherspoon v. Duncan, 71 U. S. 210. Under the Homestead law three things are needed to be done in order to constitute an entry on public land: First, the applicant must make an affidavit setting forth the facts which entitle him to make such entry; second, he must make a formal application; third, he must make payment of the money required. When these three requisites are complied with, and the certificate of entry is issued to him, the entry is made—the land is entered. Hastings Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357; see McLemore v. Express Co., 158 Cal. 559; see § 104-7-8.

§ 94. Exemptions. Exemption laws are grants of personal privileges to debtors which may be waived by contract or surrender or by neglect to claim before sale.¹

2. CALIFORNIAN PROVISION. In California the following property of a miner is exempt from execution or attachment, viz.: The cabin or dwelling of a miner, not exceeding in value the sum of $500; also his sluices, pipes, hose, windlass, derrick, cars, pumps, tools, implements, and appliances necessary for carrying on any mining operation, not exceeding in value the aggregate sum of $500; and two horses, mules or oxen with their harness, and food for such horses, mules or oxen for one month, when necessary to be used on any whim, windlass, derrick, car pump, or hoisting gear; and also his mining claim, actually worked by him, not exceeding in value the sum of $1,000.²

1. Spitley v. Frost, 15 Fed. 299; see Conde v. Sweeney, 12 Cal. A. Dec. 647.
2. C. C. P., § 690, sub. 5.

§ 95. Fixtures. A fixture is an article affixed to the freehold.¹

2. EXAMPLES. Engines, boilers, hoisting works, mills, pumps, electric hoist firmly bolted to the substructure upon which it rests, the superstructure and engine house sufficiently affixed to the soil for mining purposes, a gallows frame together with the gallows, hoist and transformers forming integral parts of one mechanism are fixtures.²

3. CALIFORNIAN PROVISION. In California, sluice boxes, flumes, hose, pipes, railway tracks, cars, blacksmith shops, mills, and all other machinery or tools used in working or developing a mine, are deemed to be affixed to the mine.³

4. CHARACTER OF TITLE IMMATERIAL. It is immaterial whether the fixtures be attached to property held by a possessory or a fee-simple title.⁴

4. Merritt v. Judd, ante; Roseville Alta Co. v. Iowa Gulch Co., 15 Colo. 29.

§ 96. Location. The term "location" refers to the acts constituting the appropriation of a portion of the public domain under the mining law¹ not necessarily coupled with discovery.² It includes a lode or a placer claim³ not yet perfected by patent.⁴

2. LOCATION AND MINING CLAIM. The terms "location" and "mining claim" are used interchangeably,⁵ although a "mining claim" may consist of several locations.⁶

3. CONSOLIDATED LOCATIONS. It is common to consolidate two or more locations into one claim and thereafter to treat and work them as one claim. Thereafter they are in law and in fact only parts of one claim.⁷

4. TECHNICAL LOCATIONS. What may be termed a technical location is one made under the provisions of the mining act, irrespective of the mode of occurrence of the mineral therein.

5. ILLUSTRATIONS. Cinnabar occurs, generally, in fibrous or amorphous masses imbedded in shales or slate rock. Lead is frequently found between strata in flat cavities, in beds within sand stones and rudimentary limestones—formations which would not answer to veins or lodes when speaking with scientific accuracy,⁸ yet each of these formations, to be included within a valid location, must be located as a "lode claim."⁹ Unmineralized marble, occurring in vein formation, that is rock in place, must be located as a "placer claim,"¹⁰ but sand rock, or sedimentary sandstone formation, in the general mass of the mountain, bearing mineral, is rock in place and must be located as a lode claim.^{10a}

6. LOCATION AS PROPERTY. A location perfected under the law, that is, a valid location, is property in the highest sense of that term,¹¹ although until patent issues, the fee remains in the United States.¹²

7. INCIDENTS OF OWNERSHIP. It may be bought, conveyed,¹³ sold under judicial decree,¹⁴ leased,¹⁵ made a homestead under a state law,¹⁶ mortgaged,¹⁷ or pass by descent,¹⁸ without in any manner infringing the title of the United States.¹⁹

8. NOT COMMUNITY PROPERTY. While unpatented it is not community property,²⁰ nor subject to the right of dower.²¹

9. TAXATION. While unpatented it is not subject to taxation,²² but the possessory right thereto and the product from the location may be taxed and the lien be enforced by a sale of the right of possession.²³

The tax deed conveys merely such right without affecting the interest of the United States. Elder v. Wood, ante. See § 67-12; § 122-7.

§ 97. Markings. Stakes or posts, or piles of stone or boulders, blazing trees along the boundaries of the claim, or at the corners thereof, cutting away undergrowth, making a trail through the timber along the sides or ends of the claim, putting up a stake at the point of discovery, blazing stumps, posting a notice at the point of discovery, posting a notice on the ground, placing such notice in a tin can, and attaching it to a stake, fastening such notice to a tree, or placing it in a box, are all markings.¹

1. Meydenbauer v. Stevens, 78 Fed. 787; see Book v. Justice Co., 58 Fed. 106.

§ 98. Mine. A "mine" is a work for the excavation of minerals by means of pits, shafts, levels, tunnels, etc., as opposed to a "quarry," where the whole excavation is open.¹

2. EXISTENCE DETERMINED. In general the existence of a mine is determined by the mode in which the mineral is obtained, and not by its chemical or geological character.²

3. SYNONYMS. The term "mine" as used in the mining act appears to be synonymous with the term "vein or lode."³ The term "mine" is also defined as including only mines valuable for their minerals or valuable mineral deposits.⁴

4. DESCRIPTIVE NAME. When the term is used as a part of the descriptive name of a mining property it means the "whole claim or body of mining ground."⁵

5. WANT OF IDENTITY. A mine or mining ground has no necessary identity with land patented as a placer claim.⁶

1. Murray v. Allred, 100 Tenn. 100; see People v. Bell, 237 Ill. 332; Escott v. Crescent Co., (Or.) 106 Pac. 452.

A prospect is a parcel of mineral land from which the miner hopes to obtain mineral or metals of value at a profit by further development work.

5. Smith v. Sherman, 12 Mont. 524; see § 67-10, ante.
6. Byrnes Estate, 112 Cal. 176.

§ 99. Mineral. Mineral is any constituent of the earth's crust, more especially an inorganic body, occurring in nature homogeneous and having a definite chemical composition which can be expressed by a chemical formula, and having certain distinguishing characteristics¹ and which is capable of being got from the earth for the purpose of profit.

2. MINERAL SUBSTANCES. The term "mineral" includes coal, metal, ores of all kinds, clay, stone, slate, cropolites, salt, paint stone and similar substances.²

3. WITHIN PURVIEW OF MINING LAWS. Whatever is recognized as mineral by the standard authorities on the subject, whether of metallic or other substances when the same is found in the public lands, in quantity and quality sufficient to render the land more valuable on account thereof than for agricultural purposes is within the purview of the mining laws.³

4. FLOAT. The term "float" or "float rock" means bunches, blotches, pieces, or boulders of quartz or rock lying detached from, or resting upon the earth's surface without any walls.⁴

5. ORE. Ore is a compound of metal and some other substance.⁵

6. ORE IN SIGHT. "Ore in sight" means ore-bearing rock so separated and blocked off by being worked around on two or more sides, that it is subject to examination and measurement.⁶

A contract of purchase of mining property may be rescinded when based upon a mathematical error of an expert as to the amount of "ore in sight."⁷

7. ORE, PERSONAL PROPERTY. Ore, or other mineral product, becomes personal property when detached from the soil in which it is imbedded.⁸

8. PLACERS. The term "placers," as used in the mining act of Congress, means ground within defined boundaries chiefly valuable for its deposits, metallic or non-metallic, in earth, sand or gravel, not in place, that is, in a loose state, upon or near the surface or occupying the bed of ancient rivers or valleys and may, in most cases, be collected by washing or amalgamation, without milling.⁹

"Placers" include all forms of deposit excepting veins of quartz or other rock in place.¹⁰

9. PLACER WORKINGS. Placer workings are surface workings.¹¹

10. ZONE. A metal zone is equivalent to a mineral zone,¹² yet the terms "mineral" and "metal" are not synonymous.¹³

§ 100. Miner's Inch. The term "miner's inch" is not definite without specification of the head or pressure.¹

2. CALIFORNIAN PROVISION. In California the standard miner's inch of water is equivalent to one and one half cubic feet of water per minute, measured through any aperture or orifice.²

1. Longmire v. Smith, 26 Wash. 439; see also Dougherty v. Haggin, 56 Cal. 522.
2. Cal. Stats. 1901, p. 660.

§ 101. Prospecting and Mining. Prospecting and mining are generic terms which include the whole mode of obtaining metals and minerals.¹

2. PROCESS OF MINING. The process of mining is the prospecting or developing of ground by shaft, tunnel, or other opening, whether mineral is extracted at a profit or at all; by quarrying; or by dredging the bed or banks of a water way for the purpose of obtaining mineral therefrom.²

3. PROCESS OF MILLING. Milling and the reduction of ores by smelting, cyaniding, etc., is the separating of the materials found together in the earth, the one from the other, and extracting from the mass the particular natural product desired.³

4. BUSINESS OF MINING. The business of mining for the benefit of the mine owner (unless otherwise provided by law) is as much a private affair as that of the farm or factory and the right of eminent domain cannot be invoked in aid of it.⁴

5. INSTRUMENTALITIES. The true meaning of such expressions as shafts, tunnels, levels, uprisings, cross cuts, inclines, etc., when applied to mines signifies instrumentalities whereby and through which such mines are opened, developed, prospected and worked.⁵

6. SUPERINTENDENT. A superintendent of a mine has no implied general authority to borrow money to carry on mining operations and can only do so by express authority of the owner. But he has implied authority to bind the owner in the employment of labor and materials to run the mine, and incur, if necessary, debts for that purpose; and incidental to such authority he may execute and deliver to employees, or persons furnishing materials necessary to run the mine, written evidences in the form of memoranda, orders or checks for such amounts as may be due thereon.⁶

7. SHIFT BOSS. The term "shift boss" means a master workman who directs the work of the set of men engaged upon a particular shift; that is, a set of workmen who work in turns with other sets.⁷

8. MINER. A miner is one who mines, a digger for metals and other minerals. He is not necessarily a mechanic, handcraftsman or artisan, and the term imports neither learning nor skill.⁸

as payment for wages of any evidence of indebtedness, unless the same is negotiable and payable without discount, and is payable on demand at some bank or other established place of business within the state, is prohibited, under penalty of both fine and imprisonment. Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 259; see Id., p. 1268.

§ 102. Mining Claim. Independent of acts of Congress providing a mode for the acquisition of title to the mineral lands of the United States, the term "mining claim" has always been applied to a portion of such lands to which the right of exclusive possession and enjoyment, by a private person or persons, has been asserted by actual occupation, or by compliance with the local mining laws, or district rules.¹

2. STATUTORY MEANING. As the term "mining claim" is used in the mining act, a mining claim is that portion of a vein or lode and of the adjoining surface, or of the surface and subjacent material to which a claimant has acquired the right of possession by virtue of a compliance with such statute and the local laws and rules of the district in which the location may be situated.²

3. DISTINCTION BETWEEN MINING CLAIM AND LOCATION. A mining claim is a parcel of land containing precious metals in its soil or rock. A location is the act of appropriating such parcel, according to certain established rules.³

4. DISTINCTION BETWEEN MINING CLAIM AND MINING GROUND. No land can be a "mining claim" unless based upon a location, or its equivalent; otherwise it may be "mining ground" or a "mine."⁴

The terms "valuable for minerals" and "valuable for mineral deposits" are not equivalent to the term "mining ground."⁵ Hence, land from which a mineral substance is obtained from the earth by the process of mining may with propriety be called mining ground or mining land.⁶

5. NAVIGABLE RIVER. The bed of a navigable river is not subject to mining location, but if mining is conducted thereon by dredging, it is "mining ground."⁷

6. MEXICAN GRANT. Land within a Mexican grant is not a mining claim within the purview of a state law giving to a miner a lien for his unpaid work upon a "mining claim," although many "mines" may have been opened within its boundaries.⁸

7. AGRICULTURAL PATENT. Under such a law land covered by an agricultural patent and worked for its mineral deposits is "mining ground" and not a "mining claim."⁹

8. OIL CLAIM. Land worked as an oil claim,¹⁰ or as a coal mine,¹¹ is a mining claim under such a statute.

9. DITCH. A ditch appurtenant to and furnishing water to a mining claim, is mining ground within the meaning of a statute, requiring the consent of a majority of the stockholders of a corporation to a sale of its mining ground.¹²

10. UNWORKED PLACER. A patented mining claim, unworked for years, is not a mine in the sense of a statute providing for the summary sale of mines in a probate proceeding.¹³

§ 103. Mining Right. A "mining right" upon a specific piece of ground is a right to enter upon and occupy the ground for the purpose of working it, either by underground excavation or open workings, to obtain from it the minerals or ores which may be deposited therein. By implication the grant of such right carries with it whatever is incident to it, and necessary to its beneficial enjoyment.¹

2. SPECIES OF TRADE. The working of a mine under a bare "mining right" has been uniformly considered by courts of equity as a species of trade.²

3. LEGAL RELATIONS. The legal relations existing between two or more persons interested in such a right is that of a qualified partnership and the remedies relating to a mining partnership are available for the assertion or violation of any right arising out of it.³

4. MINING TITLE. By "mining title" as employed in Rev. Stats., § 910, is meant the title which the miner obtains by his discovery and location, followed up by a compliance with the statutory regulations to preserve his right of possession.⁴

1. Smith v. Cooley, 65 Cal. 46; People v. Bell, 237 Ill. 332. See Armstrong v. Maryland Co., 67 W. Va. 589; see Last Chance Co. v. Bunker Hill Co., 131 Fed. 579; see § 81-4, ante.

A "mineral right" imports title or right to all that is mineral in the land. McGraw v. Lakin, 67 W. Va. 385.

2. Smith v. Cooley, ante.

3. Id.; see § 58, ante.

4. Gillis v. Downey, 85 Fed. 483.

§ 104. Public Land. The term "public land" as used in the legislation of Congress means such lands as are subject to appropriation as a mining claim¹ or subject to sale, or other disposition, under general laws.²

2. DISTINCTION BETWEEN PUBLIC LAND AND PUBLIC USE. There is a clear distinction between public lands and lands that have been severed from the public domain and reserved for sale, or other disposition under general laws. Such reservation severs the land from the mass of the public domain and appropriates it to a public use.³

3. UNOCCUPIED AND UNAPPROPRIATED LAND. The terms "unoccupied" and "unappropriated" refer to land that is not in the possession of one who claims the right of possession thereto by virtue of a compliance with the law.⁴

4. VACANT LAND. Land is not vacant when occupied as a mining claim without discovery by one who is diligently prospecting it for the minerals which it may contain.⁵

5. OCCUPANCY AND IMPROVEMENTS. Mere occupancy of the public lands and making improvements thereon give no vested right therein as against the United States and consequently not against any purchaser from them.⁶

6. PUBLIC MINERAL LAND. Public mineral land is land belonging to the United States containing a deposit of mineral in some form, metalliferous or non-metalliferous, in quantity and quality sufficient to justify expenditures in the effort to extract it and subject to occupation and purchase under the mining laws.⁷

7. HOMESTEADS. One who has a valid homestead entry upon lands classed as agricultural, but subject to the mineral laws, may be divested of his right by a showing that the land is more valuable for mineral than agricultural purposes, if made at any time before final proof and payment are made and final receipt issues.⁸

8. POSSESSION. The homestead entryman is entitled to exclusive possession as against all adverse claimants except one having a valid prior, equal or superior right. A person qualified to make a mining location and having a valid prior location has such right of possession as against the homestead entryman. But a contestant for a mining claim or location is not entitled to either joint or adverse possession as against the homestead entryman.⁹

Every competent locator has the right to initiate a lawful claim to unappropriated public land by a peaceable adverse entry upon it while it is in the possession of those who have no superior right to acquire the title or to hold the possession. Any other rule would make the wrongful occupation of public land by a trespasser superior in right to a lawful entry of it under the acts of Congress by a competent locator. Thallman v. Thomas, 111 Fed. 277; Malone v. Jackson, 137 Fed. 878; see also Nev. Sierra Co. v. Home Oil Co., 98 Fed. 673; Chrisman v. Miller, 140 Cal. 440.

§ 105. Salt Lick. A salt lick is so called in the Western country from the fact that deer and other wild animals resort to it, and lick or drink the brackish water. And in this respect no distinction is perceived between a "lick" as frequently used and a "salt spring."¹

1. Indiana v. Miller, 13 Fed. Cas. 7022.

§ 106. Scrip. The term "scrip," sometimes called "indemnity certificates" or "land warrants," has not been judicially defined.

2. WRITTEN AUTHORIZATION. It is a written authorization, created by legislative enactment, whereby the holder thereof is entitled to acquire public non-mineral land, in the certain quantity therein named upon the surrender of the scrip to the officers of the land office for the district of lands subject to sale and wherein the selected land may lie, or as otherwise provided by law.

3. SELECTION. The scrip may be laid upon surveyed or unsurveyed non-mineral land, as the terms of the particular act creating it may permit.

4. SALE. The scrip is subject to assignment and sale in the open market. Its price, per acre, therein is governed by the law of supply and demand.

5. GUARANTEE. The seller should, properly, guarantee its acceptance by the government as the doctrine of a bona fide purchaser does not apply to one who purchases from a pre-emptor before patent issues.¹

§ 107. Tunnel Right. A grant of a tunnel right through a specific piece of ground is a right to enter upon and occupy the ground for the purpose of prosecuting work in the tunnel, and to extract therefrom waste rock or earth necessary to complete the running of the tunnel, and making such use thereof, after completion, as may be necessary to work the mining ground or lode owned by the party running the tunnel.

2. IMPLIED RIGHTS. By implication the grant of such a right carries with it every incident and appurtenant thereto, including the right to dump the waste rock at the mouth of the tunnel on the land owned by the grantor at the time of the conveyance of the tunnel right, such right or easement being necessary for the full and free enjoyment of the tunnel right.¹

CHAPTER XV.

COAL LANDS.

§ 108. In general—entry—preferential right—consolidation.

§ 108. In General. Coal lands are mineral lands¹ and subject to location as such² when not within the limits of a railroad grant.³

The fee-simple title thereto is acquired under the coal-land laws.⁴ Land classed as coal land may be patented as non-mineral and the underlying coal be reserved to the government.⁵

2. ENTRY. Coal lands are subject to patent, by legal subdivisions,⁶ except in Alaska,⁷ to a limited extent,⁸ by a qualified person or association of persons or a corporation⁹ under the provisions of the coal-land laws only.¹⁰

3. PREFERENTIAL RIGHT. Location is not a condition precedent to, but when coupled with actual possession and improvements gives a preferential, that is, exclusive¹¹ right of entry.

4. CONSOLIDATION. There is no limitation as to the purchase or sale of coal lands after due entry thereof.¹²

ERRATUM

[The following matter, having been accidentally omitted in the transcription of the original notes upon the subject, it is here inserted.]

§ 110. 4a. Intra-limital Rights. Where there are two conflicting lode locations, within each of which there is a portion of the apex of the same lode or vein, the doctrine of extra-lateral rights has no application, as the rights of the junior locator cease at the point where the vein or lode passes a surface boundary line of the senior location.¹ This, precisely as in cases of controversy where locations overlap each other lengthwise on the strike of the vein or lode.²

2. PROOF OF PRIORITY. Where the patent for either of such claims does not give the date of the location such date may be proved de hors the patent.³

CHAPTER XVI.

LODE CLAIMS.

§ 110. In general—top or apex—surface rights—subsurface rights—presumption—departure from surface lines.

§ 111. Limitation of subsurface rights—form of location—exceptions—priority of location—priority immaterial.

§ 113. Unlawful intrusion—exception.

§ 110. In General. A lode claim is that portion of a vein or lode, and of the adjoining surface, which has been acquired by a compliance with the law.¹

2. TOP OR APEX. A lode claim must include the top or apex of a vein or lode, however small the latter may be.²

3. SURFACE RIGHTS. The locator has the exclusive right of possession and enjoyment of all the surface within the lines of his location.³

Courts cannot enlarge a location nor make a new location by running either new end or side lines.⁴

4. SUBSURFACE RIGHTS. The locator has the exclusive right of possession and enjoyment of all veins, lodes and ledges throughout their entire depth, the top or apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extended downward vertically⁵ whether the vein or lode extends to the end lines or not,⁶ or departs from the side lines of the claim,⁷ provided, no right has attached in favor of other parties at the time the location was made.⁸

5. PRESUMPTION. Until the contrary is shown it is presumed that a lode location includes a vein or lode.⁹

6. DEPARTURE FROM SURFACE LINES. Where the vein or lode passes through one of the parallel end lines and one of the side lines of a location, the extralateral right is bounded by the vertical plane of such end line, and a parallel plane passing downward through the point where the top or apex crosses the side line.¹⁰ Where a vein or lode, upon its strike

crosses an end line, departs from the claim through a side line and at some distance re-enters the claim and passes through the complementary end line of the claim so as to "belly" beyond the side line into adjacent territory, the extra-lateral right to such vein or lode is bounded by each end line and the several points at which the vein or lode intersects such side line.¹¹

1. Mt. Diablo Co. v. Callison, 17 Fed. Cas. 9886.

The mining act of California provides that: "Any person, a citizen of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become such, who discovers a vein or lode of quartz, or other rock in place, bearing gold, silver, cinnabar, lead, tin, copper or other valuable deposit, may locate a claim upon such vein or lode by defining the boundaries of the claim, in the manner hereinafter described, and by posting a notice of such location, at the point of discovery, which notice must contain:

First. The name of the lode or claim.

Second. The name of the locator or locators.

Third. The number of linear feet claimed in length along the course of the vein, each way from the point of discovery, with the width on each side of the center of the claim, and the general course of the vein or lode, as near as may be.

Fourth. The date of the location.

Fifth. Such a description of the claim by reference to some natural object or permanent monument as will identify the claim located. C. C., § 1426.

The locator must define the boundaries of his claim so that they may be readily traced, and in no case shall the claim extend more than 1500 feet along the course of the vein or lode, nor more than 300 feet on either side thereof, measured from the center line of the vein at the surface. C. C., § 1426a.

Within 30 days after the posting of his notice of location upon a lode-mining claim, the locator shall record a true copy thereof in the office of the County Recorder of the county in which such claim is situated, for which service the County Recorder shall receive a fee of $1. C. C., § 1426b.

§ 111. Limitation of Subsurface Rights. Subsurface rights are controlled by the form of the surface location,¹ and sometimes by questions of priority.²

2. FORM OF LOCATION. No extra-lateral right attaches to an irregularly shaped location as when in the shape of a horseshoe³ or of an isosceles triangle.⁴ The extra-lateral right is limited by the side lines when they cross the vein or lode.⁵

3. EXCEPTIONS. The extra-lateral right attaches to irregularly shaped locations which were made prior to the act of 1872.⁶ It does not attach to a horizontal vein or lode,⁷ nor to a vein or lode not "in place,"⁸ nor to a "blind vein or lode" within the limits of a placer location.⁹

4. PRIORITY OF LOCATION. The extra-lateral right may be lost for want of priority of location,¹⁰ as where two or more veins unite,¹¹ intersect or cross each other.¹²

5. PRIORITY IMMATERIAL. The dates of the respective locations or patents are immaterial in the pursuit of a vein or lode, the top or apex of which is in a claim adversely held,¹³ except where the vein or lode upon its dip enters ground which has been previously patented as agricultural in character.¹⁴

§ 112. Dip Right. The right to follow a vein or lode upon its dip or downward course outside the side lines of a lode claim¹ to any depth below the surface, although laterally its inclination shall carry it far from the perpendicular,² is usually called the extra-lateral right.³

2. BASIS OF RIGHT. The dip right is based upon the supposition that the end lines of the location correspond substantially with the strike of the vein or lode at its apex.⁴

3. IDENTITY OF VEIN. It is essential that the identity of the vein or lode pursued into adjoining ground be preserved. It must be continuous. Its identity is not destroyed by interruptions or closure of the fissure if the extent thereof does not prevent the tracing of the vein or lode through the fissure to be identical in its parts as a geological fact.⁵

4. WANT OF IDENTITY. The want of identity and continuity of a vein or lode may be established by assays of samples taken from a "fault" therein, consisting of country rock.⁶

CHAPTER XVII.

MILL-SITES.

§ 116. In general—limitations—character of land—mining and milling purposes—who may locate—location—annual expenditure—patent.

§ 116. In General. Non-mineral land not adjacent to a vein or lode,¹ but which may be in contact with the side line of a lode claim,² not within the limits of a Congressional land grant³ nor within reserved or appropriated territory,⁴ may, to the extent of 5 acres, be located for "mining and milling purposes."⁵

2. LIMITATIONS. A mill-site cannot be appropriated merely for water⁶ nor for the purpose of securing timber growing upon the land;⁷ but both a mill-site and a water right may be located upon the same tract of land.⁸ Satisfactory and sufficient reason should exist for the inclusion of more than one mill-site in an application for patent for a group of claims.⁹ If there be several mill-sites applied for they should not, perhaps, aggregate more than 5 acres.¹⁰

The law makes no provision for acquiring land as a mill-site additional to or in connection with an existing mill-site.¹¹

3. CHARACTER OF LAND. The character of the land must be determined of the date the right attached to the mill-site, as changed conditions in the character of the ground cannot affect the right of the mill-site claimant.¹²

4. MINING AND MILLING PURPOSES. The term "mining and milling purposes" means more than a colorable use.¹³ The land must be used in good faith in connection with the ostensible purpose for which it was located.¹⁴ Whether the land is so "used and occupied"¹⁵ is a question of both law and fact.¹⁶

5. WHO MAY LOCATE. The right to locate a mill-site is limited to the proprietor of a non-contiguous vein or lode or the owner of a quartz mill or reduction works, not owning a mine in connection therewith.¹⁷

6. LOCATION. In the ordinary sense a mill-site is not a mining claim¹⁸ although in the case of a town-site patent it was held to be within the term "any mining claim or possession held under existing laws."¹⁹ Other than in the matter of discovery it should be located in the same manner as a placer claim.²⁰

7. ANNUAL EXPENDITURE. There is no specific time within which a mill-site shall commence to be used as such²¹ nor is annual expenditure required thereon.²²

8. PATENT. A mill-site is subject to patent independently or in conjunction with one or more mining claims²³ upon proof of its non-mineral character²⁴ and its reasonable use for mining, milling or smelting purposes.²⁵

The mining act of California provides that: The proprietor of a vein or lode claim or mine, or the owner of a quartz mill or reduction works, or any person qualified by the laws of the United States, may locate not more than five acres of non-mineral land as a mill site. Such location shall be made in the same manner as hereinbefore required for locating placer claims. C. C. S., 1426j. The locator of a mill-site claim or location shall, within thirty days from the date of his location, record a true copy of his location notice with the county recorder of the county in which such location is situated, for which service the recorder shall receive a fee of one dollar. - § 126. Salt claims—character of deposit—limitation—nitrate and borate lands.
- § 127. Tailings—deposition of tailings.

§ 119. In General. The term “placer claim” means ground that includes valuable deposits not in place, that is not fixed in rock.¹ It is a location of a tract of land for the sake of loose deposits of mineral upon or near the surface.²

2. LOCATION RIGHTS. A valid placer location confers a qualified right to the surface,³ although no person can legally enter thereon and prospect for any vein or lode therein without the consent of the placer claimant.⁴ It also confers the right to all placer deposits and to all veins or lodes not known to exist at the time of the location;⁵ except where the claim was located prior to the act of 1872 “known veins” within its area are included therein.⁶

3. KNOWN VEIN. A vein or lode is not known to exist within the location by the mere existence of out-croppings⁷ but by ascertainment of its mineral value⁸ or by exploration and common repute.⁹

4. SUBSEQUENT DISCOVERY. The subsequent discovery of veins or lodes within a placer location and their successful working does not affect the good faith of the placer claimant. That must be determined by what was known at the time of the location.¹⁰

4a. CONFLICTING LOCATIONS. No reason can be suggested for permitting a junior locator of a placer claim to lay his lines across a claim already located.¹¹

A known vein or lode may be located by another party either before or after the issuance of the placer patent, if not included therein¹² or if not held by the placer claimant under a separate lode location.¹³

5. AREA OF PLACER LOCATION. A placer location must not exceed 20 acres for an individual¹⁴ or a corporation¹⁵ nor exceed 160 acres for an association of not less than eight bona fide locators.¹⁶

6. DISCOVERY, MARKING AND ANNUAL EXPENDITURE. Discovery, marking of the location and the annual expenditure thereon are the same for each separate location, irrespective of its size.¹⁷

7. PATENT. Placer claims are subject to patent under like circumstances and conditions and upon similar proceedings as are provided for lode claims.¹⁸

8. JOINT ENTRY. Two or more persons or associations of persons having contiguous placer claims of any size although such claims may be less than 10 acres each may make joint entry thereof.¹⁹

9. EFFECT OF EXCLUDING KNOWN VEIN. A placer claimant when in possession of a known vein within the limits of his location must include it within his placer application for patent, otherwise it is conclusively assumed he has no right thereto.²⁰

10. LIMITATION. A vein or lode claim within a placer location is limited, for patent, to 25 feet on each side of the vein or lode claim.²¹

Discovery work does not mean the doing of assessment work. It does not mean the pursuit of capital to prosecute the work. It does not mean any attempted holding by cabin, lumber pile or unused derrick. It means the diligent, continuous prosecution of the work with the expenditure of whatever money may be necessary to the end in view. McLemore v. Express Co., 158 Cal. 559; see Bishop v. Baisley, 28 Or. 119.

The Californian Mining Act provides that "The location of a placer claim shall be made in the following manner: By posting thereon, upon a tree, rock in place, stone, post or monument, a notice of location, containing the name of the claim, name of locator or locators, date of location, number of feet or acreage claimed, such a description of the claim by reference to some natural object or permanent monument as will identify the claim located, and by marking the boundaries so that they may be readily traced; provided, that where the United States survey has been extended over the land embraced in the location, the claim may be taken by legal subdivisions and no other reference than those of said survey need be required and the boundaries of a claim so located and described need not be staked or monumented. The description by legal subdivisions shall be deemed the equivalent of marking. C. C., § 1426c.

§ 120. Petroleum Oil Claims. Lands chiefly valuable for petroleum or other mineral oils are subject to location and patent under the provisions of the law relating to placer claims,¹ unless within area temporarily withdrawn by executive order previous to or under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved June 25, 1910.²

2. RIGHTS PRESERVED. The rights of any person who, at the date of any order of withdrawal is a bona fide occupant or claimant of oil or gas-bearing land, and who, at such date, is in diligent prosecution of work leading to discovery of oil or gas, is not affected or impaired by such order, so long as he shall continue in the diligent prosecution of such work.³

3. WITHDRAWALS. Withdrawals are either a law made or a joint resolution passed by Congress, or they are a proclamation by the President, or an order issued by officers of the land department or other proper officer. Thereby public lands are withdrawn from location, sale and entry under the laws affecting the public domain. They are sometimes made in recognition of what is about to occur and sometimes in recognition of what has occurred.⁴ A withdrawal by proclamation of the President takes effect from its date. An executive withdrawal operates from the time it is made or when received at the local land office, as its terms may dictate.⁵

4. WITHDRAWALS IN CALIFORNIA. On September 27, 1909, by order of the President, the withdrawal affecting the bulk of the Californian oil fields was made. Whether this withdrawal is valid or not is a much mooted question. In the opinion of the writer, the President had no authority to withdraw such lands.⁶

5. THE POWER OF THE PRESIDENT. The laws of the United States provide that land chiefly valuable for mineral shall be disposed of in a certain way. A withdrawal of lands from entry is a repeal or suspension of this statute as far as the withdrawn lands are concerned, and it is, of course, obvious that it is beyond the power of the President to repeal, or to suspend any statute unless expressly or impliedly given that authority in the statute itself.⁷

6. ACT OF JUNE 25, 1910. In order to cure such want of authority the act of June 25, 1910, was passed, expressly enabling the President to make withdrawals of lands containing oil, gas, phosphates and coal.⁸

7. CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE. Numerous questions may arise over the construction of this statute. It has not yet been passed upon by the courts, and the opinions here expressed are solely those of the writer.

8. PROTECTION UNDER SAVING CLAUSE. (a) The first question is, Who are protected under the saving clause of said statute? The statute requires continuous and actual operation on the land; hence the performance of the annual assessment work, the erection of houses, the building of roads or derricks unless followed by the commencement and prosecution of work would not be sufficient.⁹ If, however, a road or a water line were necessary for operation, and was being constructed at the time of the withdrawal, and, after withdrawal, was diligently carried to completion and the actual work of drilling diligently begun and carried on thereafter, it would be sufficient.

(b) If the withdrawals prior to this statute were invalid, of course, the diligent prosecution of work is only to be considered at the time of the subsequent withdrawal, and if work were being diligently prosecuted when the subsequent withdrawals were made, the situation at the time of the earlier and invalid withdrawals is immaterial.

(c) If the withdrawals prior to the statute were valid, and the locator was not at work at that time, but was at work when the withdrawal was made of the same land after the passage of the statute, what is the situation?

9. OPINION OF THE WRITER. In the opinion of the writer, the locator is protected if his location was made prior to the first withdrawal. The statute is disjunctive, it protects everyone at work at the time of any withdrawal "heretofore or hereafter made." If the President made a withdrawal before the passage of the Act, and again after the passage of the Act, and the locator is at work at the time of the second withdrawal, he is certainly at work at withdrawal "hereafter" made.

The reason we confine it to locations prior to the first withdrawal is again based on the peculiar phraseology of the statute which ex industria recites, "This Act shall not be construed as a recognition, abridgment or enlargement of any asserted rights or claims initiated upon any oil or gas-bearing lands after any withdrawal of such lands made prior to the passage of this Act," thereby clearly taking locations after the first withdrawal, provided, of course, it was valid, out of the protection of the statute.

10. PECULIAR CONDITIONS. Although "oil lands" may be located as placer claims a complication has arisen in applying the law relating to such locations which is not of very much importance in mining for solid minerals. To constitute a valid location of either class there must be a discovery of mineral. In mining for solid minerals the discovery ordinarily follows closely after or may even precede the location. On supposed oil lands it is often a matter of years from the date of the location to the date of actual discovery. During all this time no vested rights have accrued to the locator as against the government, and two very vital and complicated questions have arisen.

11. QUESTIONS ARISING FROM CONDITIONS. The first of these questions is to what extent is the location protected against third parties pending discovery? The second question is can the eight locators of an association claim convey their interests to one person prior to discovery, without destroying the validity of the location?

12. CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY. On both the above points there was such a hopeless conflict of authority that remedial legislation was absolutely essential.

13. ESTABLISHED LAW. There is, of course, the general and well established proposition of mining law that while a locator is in possession, at work in good faith, no person can make a valid location against him by a forcible, surreptitious or clandestine entry.

14. FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER. The above proposition can not only be established by well founded authorities in mining law, but in default of such decisions could be maintained under the forcible entry and detainer statutes. Up to the decision in Hanson v. Craig (170 Fed. 62), diligent work at any part of the location protected the whole claim.

15. POSSESSIO PEDIS. In the case just cited, however, the court confined the locator to his actual possession which effectually destroys the force of the former decisions by confining the oil land operator to such a small portion of land as to render his claim practically valueless.

16. CONVEYANCE BEFORE DISCOVERY. The question of the effect of conveyance before discovery within an association oil placer claim did not arise until the year 1909. The courts have repeatedly and consistently recognized the rights of the eight locators to vest all their interests in one person prior to discovery¹⁰ and the land department has issued patents for thousands of acres of land when this condition existed.^{10a}

17. DEPARTMENTAL RULING. In 1909, the Secretary of the Interior abandoned the prior course of conduct of the land department and held that if the eight locators conveyed before discovery to one person the location no longer carried 160 acres upon subsequent discovery, but only 20 acres.¹¹

18. CONFUSION IN LAND TITLES. The question of reversing the above decision has been very vigorously urged upon the Secretary, owing to the tremendous confusion in land titles resulting therefrom; but without effect.

19. RULE OF PROPERTY. The expression of the Secretary's opinion in that case was not only unnecessary to the decision but was contrary to prior court decisions and reversed the practice of the land department. The contrary has long been established as a rule of property and should be allowed to stand for that reason even if it were conceded that the strict literal construction of the statute as laid down in the case last cited were correct.

19a. REMEDIAL LEGISLATION. The doctrine of the H. H. Yard case (38 L. D. 59) and the Bakersfield Fuel & Oil Company's case (39 L. D. 460) has been definitely reversed by the Act of March 2, 1911,¹² in so far as the lands claimed contain petroleum, mineral oil or natural gas. In all such cases, therefore, a conveyance by the eight locators of an association claim to a lesser number, even though prior to discovery, does not defeat the right to patent 160 acres on a single discovery therein. All other placer locations still remain subject to the limitation announced in the Yard case.

19b. AMBIGUITY IN STATUTE. The recent statute, just referred to, is somewhat ambiguous. It only applies where "lands were not at the time of the inception of development on or under such claim withdrawn from mineral entry." The words "inception of development" will necessarily be construed in connection with the said enabling act of June 25, 1910, so as to mean the beginning of diligent prosecution of work leading to discovery of oil.

19c. CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE. The phrase "withdrawn from mineral entry" will be the basis of vigorous controversy with the land department, as to whether it refers to withdrawals made prior to said enabling act, or only to withdrawals made thereafter and in accordance therewith.

19d. VALIDITY OF WITHDRAWALS. On final analysis the decision depends upon the validity of the earlier withdrawal. If the withdrawal was beyond the power of the President, it cannot be regarded for any purpose.

20. DISCOVERY. In making the location the locator necessarily takes into consideration surface indications, geological formations, proximity to known mines or wells producing oil.¹³

21. INSUFFICIENT DISCOVERY. The fact that surface indications of petroleum oil or the geological formation of the country may be such as scientific research and practical experience has shown to be likely to lead to petroleum oil, in paying quantities, does not constitute a sufficient "discovery" within the meaning of the law. In order to support the location oil must be actually discovered within the limits of the location. Neither surface indications of the existence of oil therein, however strong, nor the existence of oil upon adjoining lands is sufficient discovery.¹⁴

22. POSSESSION WHILE MAKING DISCOVERY. While the locator, who has made his location in good faith is prospecting it for minerals, complies with the law as to expenditures and is in actual possession, the land covered by his location is not open to location by others.¹⁵

23. GOOD FAITH. The location must be made in good faith and the locator must use proper diligence to make discovery of oil. If he does not do so he will lose his rights under his location to parties who may afterwards, in good faith, acquire rights.¹⁶

24. SINGLE DISCOVERY. A single discovery of oil is sufficient when made in a well common to contiguous oil claims, provided the well does not deflect in its downward course.¹⁷

25. SCRIPPING. Adverse rights can be acquired by "scripping" only after the selector or "scripper" has shown by affidavit, filed in the proper land office, that the land located or selected by him is not in any manner occupied adversely to him. That opportunity has been given to prove the mineral character of the land by notice of the application published in a newspaper nearest to the claim, posted upon the land included in the selection and upon each and every non-contiguous tract thereof.¹⁸

1. 29 Stats. 526. All lands containing petroleum are not subject to location, but only such as are "chiefly valuable therefor." This is a subject of proof. If the oil is in such limited quantities that it cannot be worked at a profit, it is not "chiefly valuable" for its oil. Bay v. Oklahoma Co., 13 Okla. 425. Petroleum is a mineral substance obtained from the earth by the process of mining, and the land from which it is obtained may with propriety be called mining land. People v. Bell, 237 Ill. 332. That gilsonite should be located as a "lode claim," see Webb v. American Co., 157 Fed. 203. For boring of oil and salt wells in Washington, see Pierce's Wash. Code, § 6454.

2. Enabling Act. The President may, at any time in his discretion temporarily withdraw from settlement, location, sale, or entry any of the public lands of the United States including the District of Alaska and reserve the same for water-power sites, irrigation, classification of lands, or other public purposes to be specified in the orders of withdrawals, and such withdrawals or reservations shall remain in force until revoked by him or by an Act of Congress.

§ 2. That all lands withdrawn under the provisions of this Act shall at all times be open to exploration, discovery, occupation, and purchase, under the mining laws of the United States, so far as the same apply to minerals other than coal, oil, gas, and phosphates: Provided, That the rights of any person who, at the date of any order of withdrawal heretofore or hereafter made, is a bona fide occupant or claimant of oil or gas-bearing lands, and who, at such date, is in diligent prosecution of work leading to discovery of oil or gas, shall not be affected or impaired by such order, so long as such occupant or claimant shall continue in diligent prosecution of said work: And provided further, That this Act shall not be construed as a recognition, abridgment, or enlargement of any asserted rights or claims initiated upon any oil or gas-bearing lands after any withdrawal of such lands made prior to the passage of this Act: And provided further, That there shall be excepted from the force and effect of any withdrawal made under the provisions of this Act all lands which are, on the date of such withdrawal, embraced in any lawful homestead or desert-land entry theretofore made, or upon which any valid settlement has been made and is at said date being maintained and perfected pursuant to law; but the terms of this proviso shall not continue to apply to any particular tract of land unless the entryman or settler shall continue to comply with the law under which the entry or settlement was made; And provided further, That hereafter no forest reserve shall be created, nor shall any additions be made to one heretofore created within the limits of the States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, or Wyoming, except by Act of Congress.

§ 3. That the Secretary of the Interior shall report all such withdrawals to Congress at the beginning of its next regular session after the date of the withdrawals, 36 Stats. 847. As to the effect of this act upon coal land selections, see Milton S. Gunn, 39 L. D. 561.

12. Remedial Act. An act to protect the locators in good faith of oil and gas lands who shall have effected an actual discovery of oil or gas on the public lands of the United States, or their successors in interest.
That in no case shall patent be denied to or for any lands heretofore located or claimed under the mining laws of the United States containing petroleum, mineral oil, or gas solely because of any transfer or assignment thereof or of any interest or interests therein by the original locator or locators, or any of them, to any qualified persons or person, or corporation, prior to discovery of oil or gas therein, but if such claim is in all other respects valid and regular, patent therefor, not exceeding 160 acres in any one claim shall issue to the holder or holders thereof, as in other cases: Provided, however, That such lands were not at the time of inception of development on or under such claim withdrawn from mineral entry. 36 Stats., p. 1015.

14. Nev. Sierra Co. v. Home Oil Co., 98 Fed. 673; Olive Land Co. v. Olmstead, ante; Miller v. Chrisman, ante. It is the common experience of persons of ordinary intelligence that petroleum in valuable quantities is not found on the surface of the ground nor is it found in paying quantities seeping from the earth. Valuable oil is found by drilling or boring into the interior of the earth, and either flows or is pumped to the surface, and until some body or vein has been discovered from which the oil can be brought to the surface, it cannot be considered of sufficient importance to warrant a location under the mineral laws. Bay v. Oklahoma Co., ante. The disclosure of a stratum of bituminous sand stone or shale from which a small quantity of oil seeps, not sufficient to impress the land with any value for mining purposes, does not constitute a sufficient discovery to support a valid mining location. So. Western Co. v. A. & P. R. Co., 39 L. D. 335. To constitute a discovery there must be some thing more than conjecture, hope or indications. New England Co. v. Congdon, 152 Cal. 211.
15. Weed v. Snook, ante. One who in good faith makes his location, remains in possession, and with due diligence prosecutes his work toward a discovery, is fully protected against all form of forcible, fraudulent, surreptitious or clandestine entries or intrusions upon his possession. Such entry must always be peaceable, open and above board, and made in good faith, or no right can be founded upon it. McLemore v. Express Co., ante.

§ 120a. Natural Gas. Natural gas is a fluid mineral substance, subterranean in its origin and location, possessing in a restricted degree the properties of underground waters, and resembling water in some of its habits. Unlike water it is not generally distributed. Its physical occurrence is in limited quantities only, within circumscribed areas of greater or less extent. But the difference between natural gas and underground waters, whether flowing in channels or percolating the earth, is so marked that the principles which the courts apply to questions relating to the latter are not adapted to the adjustment of the difficulties arising from conflicting interests in the former.¹

1. Manf. Co. v. Indiana Co., 155 Ind. 461; see § 121a, post.

§ 121. Mining for Oil. The mining for mineral oils or natural gas cannot safely be conducted by awaiting developments of nearby land of similar character, as those substances, because of their wandering nature, belong to the owner of the land only so long as they remain therein.¹

2. NO LIMIT. There is no limit to the particular territorial area beneath the surface from which oils or gas may be drawn through any opening.²

3. UNLAWFUL DRAINAGE. The owner of superincumbent land cannot, lawfully, drain the property of another of its oils or gas simply for the purpose of depreciating its mineral value.³

4. POSSESSION OF LAND NOT POSSESSION OF OIL. Possession of the land is not necessarily the possession of the oils or gases that may be thereunder.⁴ The loss of the right to control the surface is not necessarily a loss of the right to mine. These may still be extracted through working thereunder, or upon adjacent territory.⁵

5. NUISANCE. Drilling or operating oil wells within navigable waters or upon the sea shore may constitute a nuisance,⁶ or upon un-navigable waters may be a trespass.⁷

6. CALIFORNIAN PROVISION. An oil well which is not drilled or which may be abandoned in violation of the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to prevent injury to oil, gas or petroleum-bearing strata or formations by the penetration or infiltration of water therein," will be declared to be a public nuisance.⁸

7. COMMENCING OPERATIONS To commence operations is the performance of some act which has a tendency to produce an intended result.⁹

8. DILIGENCE. To prosecute drilling with due diligence to success or abandonment means, that there must be a product capable of division between the parties in the proportions mentioned in the lease. Unless this is done, drilling is not prosecuted to success.¹⁰

9. TEST WELL. A test well is one that determines not only the presence of petroleum oil but its commercial value considering its abundance and accessibility. The information resulting should be such as a prudent and experienced investor would desire to know before expending his capital in labor or improvements for the profitable working of the property.¹¹

10. PARTNERSHIP. Where co-locators or other tenants in common of oil lands or leases thereof actually engage in working the property and share according to the interest of each, the profit and loss, the partnership relation exists between them, though there is no express agreement between them to be partners or to share profits or loss.

The presumption in such a case would be that of a mining partnership rather than an ordinary one, in the absence of an express agreement forming an ordinary partnership.¹²

11. LIMITATION. The authority of one member of a mining partnership to bind the other partners is limited; and without authority a partner cannot borrow money, execute notes, or accept bills of exchange, nor can a general superintendent or manager do so. The latter can bind the partners only in things that are necessary in the transaction of the particular business and which are usual and customary in such business.¹³

12. PARTITION. Partition of oil and gas owned by co-owners separate from the surface cannot be decreed except by sale and division of the proceeds. A judicial partition thereof by assignment of the oil and gas under sections of the surface is void.¹⁴

13. DAMAGES. Although the title to oil in place is not in the lessee he may recover damages from one, who without his consent enters upon the demised premises during the time of the lease, drills wells and removes and sells oil therefrom.¹⁵

8. The Californian legislative provisions as to drilling and abandonment of oil wells are as follows:—

§ 1. It shall be the duty of the owner of any well now drilled or that may be drilled in the state of California on lands producing or containing oil, gas or petroleum, to properly case such well or wells, with metal casing in accordance with most approved methods, and to effectually shut off all water overlying or underlying the oil-bearing strata and to effectually prevent any water from penetrating such oil-bearing strata.

§ 2. It shall be the duty of the owner of any well referred to in section 1 of this act, before abandoning the same to withdraw the casing therefrom, and to securely fill such well with clay, earth or cement mortar, or other good and sufficient materials, used alone or in suitable combination, and thoroughly pack and tamp the same into such well to a point as far above the upper oil-bearing strata as the commissioner hereinafter provided for may decide shall be necessary, and while withdrawing the casing therefrom to effectually and permanently shut off and exclude all water underlying and overlying said oil-bearing strata, and to the satisfaction of the commissioner, whether any oil-bearing strata has been encountered or not.

§ 3. It shall be the duty of the owner of any well referred to in section 1 of this act, to keep a careful and accurate log of the drilling of such well, such log to show the character and depth of the formations passed through or encountered in the drilling of such well, and particularly to show the location and depth of the water-bearing strata together with the character of the water encountered from time to time, and to show at what point such water was shut off, if at all, and if not so state in such log, and show the depth at which oil-bearing strata is encountered, the depth and character of the same, and whether all water overlying and underlying such oil-bearing strata was successfully and permanently shut off so as to prevent the percolation or penetration into such oil-bearing strata: said record of well to be kept on file and subject to the inspection of hereinafter mentioned commissioner at any time during business hours.

§ 4. The term "owner" as herein used shall mean and include each and every person, persons, partnership, co-partnership, association or corporation owning, leasing, managing, operating, drilling or possessing any well mentioned in sections 1 and 2 of this act: either as principal or principals, lessee or lessees of such principal or principals, contractor or contractors, and their and each of their employees. The term "oil-bearing strata" as herein used shall mean and include any bed, seam or stratum of rock or sand or other material which contains, includes, or yields earth oil, rock oil, or petroleum oil or natural gas or either of them.

In order to carry out the provisions of sections 1 and 2 of this act, upon petition of three or more operating oil companies, within the county, it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of said county to appoint a commissioner who shall be a practical oil man, whose term of office shall be until December 31st of the year following time of appointment or until his successor is appointed.

The duties of said commissioner shall be to see that the provisions of this act shall be enforced.

The compensation of said commissioner shall be fixed by the board of supervisors and shall be paid out of the general county fund.

Upon the filing of a complaint with said commissioner alleging the violation of any of the provisions of sections 1 or 2 of this act, it shall be the duty of the hereinbefore mentioned commissioner of the county, if so requested by the complainants, to make or cause to be made, a thorough investigation of the well in question, to determine whether or not any of the provisions of this act have been violated and for such purpose he is hereby empowered to appoint all necessary agents and assistants to conduct such examination and such agents and assistants may enter upon the premises where such well is situated and may take charge of such well for the purpose of making such investigations. If the defendant in the action shall be convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of sections 1 or 2 of this act, he shall, in addition to the penalties hereafter set forth pay all reasonable and proper costs incident to the making of such investigations.

Any well drilled and abandoned, in violation of sections 1 or 2 of this act is hereby declared a public nuisance.

If any well, under the provisions of sections 1 or 2 of this act be declared a public nuisance, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of the county in which such well is situated to enter upon the premises, take possession of such well and to abate said nuisance and to take all necessary steps to prevent the percolation or penetration of water into the oil-bearing strata. He shall keep an accurate account of the expense of such work and all expenses so incurred shall be a charge against the owner of such well and a lien upon the same.

Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Any owner of any well referred to in sections 1 or 2 of this act, who refuses to permit the commissioner to inspect the same or who wilfully hinders or delays the commissioner in the performance of his duty is guilty of a misdemeanor.

An act to prevent injury to oil, or petroleum-bearing strata, or formations by infiltration or intrusion of water therein approved March 24, 1903, is hereby repealed. Cal. Stats. 1909, p. 586.

See § 120a, ante.

1. § 1. All persons, firms, corporations, and associations are hereby prohibited from wilfully permitting any natural gas wastefully to escape into the atmosphere.

§ 2. All persons, firms, corporations and associations digging, drilling, excavating, constructing or owning or controlling any well from which natural gas flows shall upon abandonment of such well, cap or otherwise close the mouth of or entrance to the same in such a manner as to prevent the unnecessary or wasteful escape into the atmosphere of such natural gas. And no person, firm, corporation or association owning or controlling land in which such well or wells are situated shall wilfully permit natural gas flowing from such well or wells wastefully or unnecessarily to escape into the atmosphere.

§ 3. Any person, firm, corporation or association who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

§ 4. For the purposes of this act each day during which natural gas shall be wilfully allowed wastefully or unnecessarily to escape into the atmosphere shall be deemed a separate and distinct violation of this act.

§ 5. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately. (Approved March 25, 1911.) Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 499.

§ 122. Oil Land Leases. Because of the peculiar nature of petroleum oil, leases for lands of that character are governed by different principles from leases of other classes of real property.¹

2. CONSTRUCTION. This class of leases is construed most strongly against the lessee and favorably to the lessor² and the law will imply conditions to attain the end sought by its execution.³

3. IMPLIED COVENANTS. Where a lease of oil lands, with royalty to the lessor on the product is the sole and only consideration therefor it is necessarily implied, as of the essence of the contract, that the lessee shall work the wells with reasonable dispatch, for their mutual advantage⁴ and to prevent drainage by adverse operations in the vicinity of the demised land.⁵

4. FORFEITURE. If these conditions are not performed the lessor is warranted in re-entering and taking possession of the premises and terminating the lease. If the right of forfeiture could not be exercised under such circumstances, a lessor would be at the mercy of the lessee.⁶

5. VESTED RIGHT. When oil is found the right to produce it becomes a vested right and the lessee will be protected in extracting it, agreeably to the terms of the lease.⁷

6. PAYING QUANTITY. The phrase "paying quantity" is to be construed with reference to the operator, and by his judgment when exercised in good faith:⁸ There must also be taken into consideration the distance to market and the expense of marketing in determining whether oil can be marketed at a reasonable profit.⁹

7. TAXATION. Mining rights and privileges under an oil lease are subject to taxation separately from and in addition to the interest or estate of the lessor, whether the fee is in the United States or in the State within which the claim may lie.¹⁰

§ 123. Hydraulic Claims. In California hydraulic mining is defined by legislative enactment as "mining by means of the application of water under pressure through a nozzle against a natural bank."¹

2. RESTRICTION. Hydraulic mining is not of itself unlawful but is restricted within certain areas because detrimental to other interests.² Lands within the San Joaquin and Sacramento River Systems within the State of California may be mined only under the provisions of the Congressional act of March 1, 1892.³

3. CONSTITUTIONALITY OF ACT. The above act has been declared to be constitutional.⁴

4. MINING WITHOUT RESTRICTION. Mining on lands within the State of California, outside of the above mentioned areas may be carried on wherever and whenever the same will not result in material injury to navigable streams, or to land adjacent thereto.⁵

1. C. C., § 1425; see also Woodruff v. N. Bloomfield Co., 18 Fed. 753, in which hydraulic mining is judicially defined as "the process by which a bank of gold bearing earth and rock is excavated by a jet of water, discharged through the converging nozzle of a pipe, under a great pressure, the earth or debris being carried away by the same water, through sluices, and discharged on lower levels into the natural streams and water courses below, where the gravel or other material of the bank is cemented, or where the bank is composed of masses of pipe-clay, it is shattered by blasting with powder"; see, also, *U. § 124. Dredge Claims — In General. Mining rights cannot be acquired under the mining act in the bed or within or upon the banks of a navigable river.¹

The bed of an un-navigable river is open to location and patent, as public land, when the opposite banks thereof have not passed into private ownership. Proprietors bordering on such streams, unless restricted by the terms of their grant from the government, hold to the center of the stream, notwithstanding the running of meander lines on the banks thereof, as the true boundary of the land is the thread of the stream.²

2. LOCATION. When the bed of an un-navigable river is subject to location³ it is sufficient, under the mining act, to mark the location by the posting of a notice of location on some natural object in the stream,⁴ or on the bank,⁵ giving the measurements of the claim, identifying the stream and showing a definite relation between the stream and the object on which the notice is posted.⁶

§ 124a. Recent Californian Legislation. Under a legislative enactment in California, in effect April 14, 1911, the right to mine minerals contained in the waters of any stream or lake in that state may not be gained, in any manner, except by lease or express permission of the state. Such lease or permission cannot be granted for a longer period than 25 years.¹

2. UPLANDS. A leasehold interest, not exceeding 25 years, is the only lawful way of extracting minerals from land uncovered by the recession or drainage of the waters of inland lakes when the covering waters are so impregnated with minerals as to be valuable for the purpose of extracting such minerals.²

§ 125. Stone Claims—In General. Land chiefly valuable for building stone and not reserved for the benefit of the public schools or donated to any state may be acquired by location and patent under the provisions of the law in relation to placer mining claims.¹

2. CHARACTER OF LOCATION. Non-mineralized stone lying in vein formation must be located as a placer claim,² but if it be mineralized and constitute "rock in place" it must be located as a lode claim.³

3. TIMBER AND STONE ACT. Surveyed public land that does not contain a valuable mineral deposit and is uninhabited, unfitted for cultivation and valuable chiefly for timber or stone may be entered under the provisions of the "Timber and Stone act."⁴

4. AGRICULTURAL ENTRY. Where land is entered under the provisions of that act it is immaterial whether it can be marketed at a profit or not. In that event it is in the nature of an "agricultural entry."⁵

5. SALE BY ENTRYMAN. An entryman may legally sell his claim after entry and before the final certificate is issued by the Land Department, although the entry was made in behalf of another.⁶

6. RETURN OF FEES. The fee required to be paid at the time of the presentation of a timber and stone sworn statement should be returned to the applicant in all cases where for any reason other than fraud, the local officers reject such sworn statement at the time of the presentation or at any time prior to the submission of proof in pursuance of the published notice.⁷

§ 126. Salt Claims—In General. Under a special act all unoccupied public lands of the United States containing salt springs or deposits of salt,¹ that is common salt, or chloride of sodium, in its various forms of existence or deposit² may be located and patented under the provisions of the law in relation to placer claims.³

2. CHARACTER OF DEPOSIT. It is the actual production of salt, by the usual processes that brings a saline spring or deposit within the purview of the law.⁴

3. LIMITATION. The same person may not locate nor patent more than one claim.⁵

4. NITRATE AND BORATE LANDS. Lands chiefly valuable for nitrate or borate deposits are not within the provisions of the special act.⁶

TIMBER LANDS.

- § 129. In general—mineral land—mineral location—subsisting location—subsequent discovery.
- § 130. Timber cutting on mineral land—purposes—restriction—exceptional right.
- § 131. Timber cutting in forest reserves.
- § 132. Timber cutting on Indian lands—criminal offense.
- § 133. Timber cutting on abandoned military reservations.
- § 134. Damages—bona fide purchaser.

§ 129. In General. Surveyed land within the public domain chiefly valuable for timber but unfit for cultivation at the time of sale,¹ non-mineral in character, unoffered, unreserved, unappropriated, uninhabited and without improvements (except for ditch or canal purposes), save such as were made by or belong to the claimant² may be acquired under the provisions of the "Timber and Stone Act."³

2. MINERAL LAND. If the land be mineral in character the title thereto together with the timber thereon may be acquired under the mining laws.⁴

3. MINERAL LOCATION. Until the final entry of the land as "timber land" it is subject to mineral location.⁵

4. SUBSISTING LOCATION. Where, at the time of the issuance of a "timber patent" there was a valid subsisting mining claim upon the land covered thereby the patentee will be held as the trustee for the mineral claimant.⁶

5. SUBSEQUENT DISCOVERY. Discovery of mineral subsequent to the issuance of such a patent will inure to the benefit of the patentee.⁷

§ 130. Timber Cutting on Mineral Land. Timber on land belonging to the United States and known to be so valuable for its minerals as to justify expenditure for their extraction may be felled and removed by citizens and bona fide residents (not railroad corporations) of the "mining states" and other mineral districts of the United States.¹

2. PURPOSES. The timber may be used for building, agricultural, mining, smelting, roasting of ores, or "other domestic purposes."²

3. RESTRICTION. The "cutting" is subject to such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe.³

4. EXCEPTIONAL RIGHT. The right to cut is exceptional and quite narrow. The party claiming it must prove it.⁴

§ 131. Timber Cutting in Forest Reserves. The timber (and stone) found upon forest reservations may be used free of charge, by bona fide settlers, miners, residents and prospectors for minerals, for fire wood, fencing, buildings, mining, prospecting and "other domestic purposes" as may be needed by such persons within the state or territory wherein such reservations may be located; as permitted by the Secretary of Agriculture under regulations prescribed by him.¹

§ 132. Timber Cutting on Indian Lands. Where the fee remains in the United States, Indians residing on reservations or allotments may, from year to year, under such regulations as the President may prescribe fell, cut, remove, sell or otherwise dispose of the dead timber standing or fallen on such reservation or allotments for the sole benefit of such Indian or Indians.¹

2. CRIMINAL OFFENSE. Unlawful cutting of standing timber on such lands is a criminal offense.²

1. Fort Cameron Reserve, 2 L. D. 822.

§ 134. Damages. In an action to recover damages for cutting and carrying away timber from the public or Indian lands, the rules for assessing them are as follows. (1) When the defendant is a wilful trespasser, the full value of the property at the time of bringing the action, with no deduction for his labor and expense. (2) When the defendant is an unintentional or mistaken trespasser, the value at the time of the commission less the amount which such trespasser has added to its value.¹

2. BONA FIDE PURCHASER. A purchaser from a wilful trespasser, without notice of the wrong or the true ownership of the property, is only liable for the value thereof at the time of such purchase, and not for any labor or expense he may bestow upon it thereafter.²

TOWNSITES.

§ 135. In general—corporate authorities—county judge—trust—mineral reservation—insufficient mineral rights.

§ 136. Adverse suits.

§ 135. In General. When public land, not subject to entry under the agricultural pre-emption laws, is settled upon and occupied as a townsite, it may be entered as such.¹

2. CORPORATE AUTHORITIES. If the town or city be incorporated the entry may be made by the corporate authorities thereof.²

3. COUNTY JUDGE. If not incorporated the entry may be made by the judge of the county court for the county in which such town is situated.³

4. TRUST. The latter entry is made in trust for the several use and benefit of the occupants thereof, according to their respective interests.⁴

5. MINERAL RESERVATION. No title can be acquired under a townsite entry to any vein of gold, silver, cinnabar, copper, or lead, nor to any valid mining claim or possession held under existing law.⁵ Deposits not known to be of such extent and value as to justify expenditures for the purpose of extracting them at the time of the townsite entry will pass thereunder.⁶

6. INSUFFICIENT MINERAL RIGHT. A location will not be held to be a "valid mining claim and possession" where its claimant has had ample time and opportunity to show the mineral value of the land and has failed to do so.⁷ While a "mine" must be known to be such at the time of the townsite entry, although not in the possession of any person⁸ yet the possession of a mining claim upon which exploitation has been abandoned as unprofitable⁹ or mere indications of mineral before the entry¹⁰ will not defeat the townsite patent.

Reilly*, 2 Ariz. 442; Tombstone cases, 2 Ariz. 272. In controversies between mineral and townsite claimants the terms "lands known to be valuable for mineral," "mineral deposits," "known mines," "land containing known mines," are equivalent in meaning. CHAPTER XXI.

TUNNEL SITES.

§ 138. In general — beyond boundaries — assessment work — location of tunnel — location of blind veins — prior location — adverse location — line of tunnel — no annual expenditure — abandonment — patent.

§ 139. Dump.

§ 138. In General. A tunnel site, sometimes termed a "mining claim,"¹ may be located in unappropriated territory for the discovery of blind veins or lodes, not previously known to exist therein, but without inherent right in prosecuting such work to enter through property adversely held.²

2. BEYOND BOUNDARIES. A tunnel, outside of the boundaries of a lode claim may be run by the owner of the latter for the development of a vein or lode therein.³

3. ASSESSMENT WORK. Work done in such a tunnel may be counted as assessment work upon a lode claim or a group of contiguous locations.⁴

4. LOCATION OF TUNNEL. The mining act does not provide how a tunnel site shall be located. It leaves the matter to local statute or district rule.⁵

5. LOCATION OF BLIND VEINS. When discovered in the tunnel, blind veins or lodes may be located to the same extent and subject to the same proceedings as if discovered upon the surface, without further discovery.⁶ The tunnel claimants' rights thereto relate back to the date of the location of the tunnel-site.⁷

6. PRIOR LOCATION. Blind veins within a prior lode location are not subject to any right in the tunnel claimant.⁸

7. ADVERSE LOCATION. A location of blind veins or lodes on the "line" of the tunnel, made by other parties, subsequent to the commencement of, and while work is being prosecuted on the tunnel is invalid.⁹

8. LINE OF TUNNEL. The "line" of the tunnel is its width as designated by boundary marks.¹⁰

9. NO ANNUAL EXPENDITURE. No "assessment work" is required on a tunnel-site.

10. ABANDONMENT. Failure to prosecute work with reasonable diligence for 6 months is an abandonment of the right to all blind veins or lodes on the line thereof, not previously discovered by the tunnel claimant.¹¹

11. PATENT. A tunnel site cannot be patented. It may be made the subject of an "adverse" claim.¹² Money expended in running the tunnel is counted in an application for patent for veins or lodes discovered therein at the rate of $500 for each lode or vein applied for.¹³

The Californian mining act provides that "The locator of a tunnel right or location, shall locate his tunnel right or location by posting a notice of location at the place or point of commencement of the tunnel, which must contain: First. The name of the locator or locators. Second. The date of the location. Third. The proposed course or direction of the tunnel. Fourth. A description of the tunnel, with reference to some natural object or permanent monument as shall identify the claim or tunnel right. C. C., § 1426e.

The boundary lines of the tunnel shall be established by stakes or monuments placed along the lines at an interval of not more than 600 feet from the face or point of commencement of the tunnel to the terminus of 3000 feet therefrom." C. C., § 1426f.

CHAPTER XXII.

WATER RIGHTS.

- § 141. Real property—what may be appropriated—volume and extent—public grants—private grants.
- § 142. Rights of way.
- § 143. Appropriation—different systems—compliance with local statute—no constructive appropriations—measure of right—non-user—adverse user—interruption of right—prescriptive right.
- § 144. Diversion of water—adjacent water—pollution of water.
- § 145. Nuisance.
- § 146. Tide lands—not subject to location—temporary possession.

2. WHAT MAY BE APPROPRIATED. All surplus waters over and above that necessarily used for the purpose of irrigation and reclamation of desert land; part of the public domain, together with the waters of all lakes, rivers and other sources of water supply upon the public land and not navigable,² or elsewhere, when not appropriated, or in which no other person has or claims superior rights and interests, and by the latter only as far as there is a conflict, may be appropriated for mining purposes.³

3. VOLUME AND EXTENT. The volume or extent of the water is immaterial. It may run upon or beneath the surface of the land⁴ but it must be separate and distinct from the soil, whether produced by percolation, filtration or otherwise.⁵

4. PUBLIC GRANTS. Grants of the public lands by the government are made subject to all water rights that may have previously accrued to any person other than the patentee.⁶

5. PRIVATE GRANTS. Conveyances of water rights or agreements in relation thereto must be in writing.⁷

In California it is unlawful for any person, firm, association, or corporation to transport or carry through pipes, conduits, ditches, tunnels, or canals the water of any fresh water lake, pond, brook, creek, river, or stream of that state into any other state, for use therein. Action may be brought through the attorney-general of the state to prevent such proceeding. Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 271.

The waters in a non-navigable stream flowing over the public lands is a part thereof and the national government can sell or grant the same or the use thereof separate from the rest of the estate under such conditions as may seem to it proper. Howell v. Johnson, ante; see Snyder v. Colo. Co., 181 Fed. 62.

7. See note 1, ante.

§ 142. Rights of Way. Rights of way may be obtained through the public lands, forest and other reservations of the United States, and the national parks of California, for electrical plants, poles and lines for the generation and distribution of electrical power, etc., and for canals, ditches, pipes, pipe lines, flumes, tunnels or other water conduits, and for water plants, dams and reservoirs used to promote mining and for the reduction and milling of ores.¹

§ 143. Appropriation. The appropriation and use of water are regulated by local statutes which vary in effect and detail.¹

2. DIFFERENT SYSTEMS. The different systems in effect in different states are termed the "California doctrine" and the "Colorado doctrine."²

3. COMPLIANCE WITH LOCAL STATUTE. The rights of the appropriator do not wholly depend upon his compliance with the provisions of the local statute;³ a valid right may be acquired to water upon the public domain without strict observance thereof.⁴

4. NO CONSTRUCTIVE APPROPRIATION. There can be no constructive appropriation of water.⁵

5. MEASURE OF RIGHT. It is the extent of the water and not the amount claimed in the notice of appropriation which is the measure of the appropriator's right.⁶ Actual user for a beneficial purpose is the true and only test touching the question whether or not the claim has ripened into a valid appropriation.⁷

6. NON-USER. Non-user will not bar the right to water unless continued for the time which will bar an action to recover real property.⁸

7. ADVERSE USER. An adverse use of water for the statutory period of limitation must be open, notorious, peaceable, continuous, and under a claim or color of right. The gradual and imperceptible encroachment by a subsequent appropriator will not raise the bar of the statute.⁹

8. INTERRUPTION OF RIGHT. If any act is done by other parties claiming the water that operates as an interruption, however slight, it prevents the acquisition of any adverse right.¹⁰

1. Snyder v. Colo. Co., 181 Fed. 62. (Californian law of Appropriation. C. C. §§ 1410-1422.)

§ 1410. All water or the use of water within the State of California is the property of the people of the State of California, but the right to the use of running water flowing in a ravine or stream or down a canyon or ravine may be acquired by appropriation in the manner provided by law, provided that no water for the generation of electricity or electrical or other power may be appropriated for a longer period than 25 years, except by a municipal corporation, other than an irrigation district or a lighting district, or by an irrigation district when such electricity, electrical or other power is for use and distribution only within its own limits, and as subject to and mainly for the purpose of serving and carrying out irrigation or by a lighting district when such electricity, electrical or other power is for use and distribution only within its own limits. (Amended April 8, 1911.)

§ 1411. The appropriation must be for some useful or beneficial purpose, and when the appropriator or his successor in interest ceases to use it for such a purpose, the right ceases.

§ 1412. The person entitled to the use may change the place of diversion, if others are not injured by such change, and may extend the ditch, flume, pipe or aqueduct by which the diversion is made to places beyond that where the first use was made.

§ 1413. The water appropriated may be turned into the channel of another stream and mingled with its water, and then reclaimed; but in reclaiming it the water already appropriated by another must not be diminished.

§ 1414. As between appropriators, the one first in time is the first in right.

§ 1415. A person desiring to appropriate water must post a notice in writing, in a conspicuous place at the point of intended diversion, stating therein:

1. That he claims the water there flowing to the extent of (giving the number) inches, measured under a four inch pressure;

2. The purposes for which he claims it, and the place of intended use;

3. The means by which he intends to divert it, and the size of the flume, ditch, pipe, or aqueduct in which he intends to divert it. A copy of the notice must, within ten days after it is posted, be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which it is posted. After filing such copy for record, the place of intended diversion or the place of intended use or the means by which it is intended to divert the water, may be changed by the person posting said notice or his assigns, if others are not injured by such change. This provision applies to notices already filed as well as to notices hereafter filed.

§ 1416. Within sixty days after the notice is posted, the claimant must commence the excavation or construction of the works in which he intends to divert the water, or the survey, road or trail building necessarily incident thereto, and must prosecute the work diligently and uninterruptedly to completion, unless temporarily interrupted by snows or rain; provided, that if the erection of a dam has been recommended by the California debris commission at or near the place where it is intended to divert the water, the claimant shall have sixty days after the completion of such dam in which to commence the excavation or construction of the works in which he intends to divert the water; and provided further, that if it shall be necessary, by proceedings in eminent domain, to acquire water rights held by adverse riparian owners or to acquire sites for dams or power plants at the point of intended diversion or the point of intended use, as described in the notice of appropriation of said water, or if there shall be conflicting claims to the waters so appropriated, then the party so appropriating, or his assigns, shall have sixty days after the determination of legal proceedings by final judgment in which to commence to excavate or construct the works in which he intends to divert the water as provided in this section; and provided further, that if suits for such purpose are not already pending at the date of the passage of this act, they shall be commenced within sixty days after this act takes effect, and as to future appropriations of water, within sixty days after notice of such appropriation is posted as required by law; and such proceedings shall be prosecuted diligently to final judgment; but nothing in this act shall be construed to revive or renew appropriations of water heretofore made which have been abandoned and lost, as against subsequent claimants who have complied with this act. Amended (May 1, 1911) as to time for commencement of work by municipalities.

§ 1417. By "completion" is meant conducting the waters to the place of intended use.

§ 1418. By a compliance with the above rules the claimant's right to the use of the water relates back to the time the notice was posted.

§ 1419. A failure to comply with such rules deprives the claimants of the right to the use of the water as against a subsequent claimant who complies therewith.

§ 1420. Persons who have heretofore claimed the right to water and who have not constructed works in which to divert it, and who have not diverted nor applied it to some useful purpose, must, after this title takes effect and within twenty days thereafter, proceed as in this title provided, or their right ceases.

§ 1421. The recorder of each county must keep a book, in which he must record the notices provided for in this title.

§ 1422. If the place of intended diversion or any part of the route of intended conveyance of water so claimed, be within, and a part of, any national park, forest reservation, or other public reservation, and be so shown in the notice of appropriation of said water, then the claimant shall have sixty days, after the grant of authority to occupy and use such park or reservation for such intended purpose, within which to commence the excavation or construction of said works; provided that within sixty days after the posting of said notice of appropriation, as provided in section 1415 of the Civil Code, the claimant shall in good faith commence (and thereafter diligently and continuously, except when temporarily interrupted by snow or rain, prosecute to completion) such surveys and other work as under the regulations governing such park or reservations, may be required as preliminary to, or for use with, an application for such authority; and provided also that the claimant shall in good faith on completion of said survey and preliminary work, apply to the officer, board or body, having charge of such park or reservation, for such authority, and shall thereafter, prosecute said application with reasonable diligence. See § 141, notes 3 and 6, ante.

The appropriation of water within the State of California for generating electricity or electrical or other power is subject to the provisions of an act of the legislature of that state, that went into effect on April 8, 1911. This act, among other things, regulates, limits, fixes the terms and conditions and provides the manner of procedure of its appropriation and use for such purposes. Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 813.

§ 144. Diversion of Water. Water appropriated under the provisions of a local statute may be diverted to the place of intended use although within the public lands or upon a subsequent homestead entry or claim.¹

use² may be changed if without prejudice to pre-existing or intervening rights.³

2. ADJACENT WATER. The right to water adjacent to a placer location does not necessarily attach thereto although it may be necessary for the successful working of the claim.⁴

3. POLLUTION OF WATER. Water may not be unreasonably polluted⁵ nor be used in a way detrimental to others.⁶

§ 146. Tide Lands. Lands "under tide water" or "below high water mark," "lands flowed by the tide," and other expressions of similar import are usually employed in defining tide lands.¹ The term "shore line" means mean high water line.²

2. NOT SUBJECT TO LOCATION. Lands under tide water are vested in the United States³ and are not subject to location under the mining laws.⁴

3. TEMPORARY POSSESSION. In the District of Alaska temporary possession of tide lands may be had for mining purposes. Such occupation is subject to such general limitations as may be necessary to exempt navigation from artificial obstruction.⁵ Mill-site locations may not be made in said district within 60 feet of the shore line of navigable waters.⁶

1. Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S. 1. In California the words "tide lands" do not apply to or include the shore, or any part thereof, or the bed, or any part thereof, of the ocean or of any navigable canal or stream or bay or inlet within that state, between ordinary high and low water mark. All such land over which the ordinary tide ebbs and flows is withheld from sale. Pol. C., §3443a; see Pearl Oyster Co. v. Heuston, 57 Wash. 533.

CHAPTER XXIII.

NATURAL OBJECT—PERMANENT MONUMENT.

§ 149. Natural objects—reference.

§ 150. Permanent monuments.

§ 151. Purpose—record—presumptions—burden of proof.

§ 149. Natural Objects. A natural object is any fixed natural object, as, an arm of the sea, bay,¹ blazed tree,² boulder,³ buttes, cañon,⁴ mouth of a cañon,⁵ creek,⁶ croppings,⁷ gulch,⁸ the point of intersection of well known gulches, hill, inlet, lake or river,⁹ mountains,¹⁰ mountain peaks,¹¹ pillar of rock,¹² ravine,¹³ ridge or hogsback,¹⁴ stream,¹⁵ the confluence of streams,¹⁶ tree, when marked,¹⁷ forked tree,¹⁸ stump of tree,¹⁹ waterfall or cascade.²⁰

2. REFERENCE. It is not always possible to connect a location with a natural object. In such a case reference may be made to a permanent monument.²¹

§ 150. Permanent Monuments. A permanent monument may be any artificial distinctive mark or object of a lasting nature affixed to or carved from the soil or rock, as, for example, a city or town,¹ depot,² a race track inclosure,³ a named mining claim,⁴ permanent monuments of a mining claim,⁵ a cut or other excavation, as, a drift,⁶ prospect hole,⁷ shaft,⁸ or tunnel;⁹ a government monument,¹⁰ monuments of stone,¹¹ posts,¹² stakes firmly planted in the ground,¹³ a pile of rocks,¹⁴ a road,¹⁵ the point of intersection of roads.¹⁶

15. McCann v. McMillan, ante.
16. Drummond v. Long, 9 Colo. 538.

§ 151. Purpose. The purpose of requiring the record of a mining claim to contain a reference to a natural object or permanent monument¹ is to furnish an initial or starting point for the identification of the location.²

2. RECORD. A record which contains no reference to a natural object or permanent monument is invalid³ and inadmissible in evidence for any purpose.⁴ The record, or possibly, the location, may be held to be void because of the vague character of the reference in the record to the natural object or permanent monument.⁵ But mere imperfections therein should not render either void.⁶ The reference should be intelligible, not delusive, meaningless, or misleading;⁷ it should identify the location with reasonable certainty.⁸ Whether the reference is sufficient is a question of fact⁹ which may be aided by oral testimony.¹⁰

3. PRESUMPTIONS. Generally speaking, any object, or monument that will serve to identify the location will be regarded as sufficient; but it is not conclusively presumed that the same exists or that the reference thereto sufficiently describes the location.¹¹

In the absence of proof to the contrary it will be presumed that the object or monument referred to in the record exists,¹² that it is well known¹³ and best serves to identify the location,¹⁴ whether it is on or off the location,¹⁵ or was erected for the purpose of tying the location thereto.¹⁶

4. BURDEN OF PROOF. The burden of proof is upon the party claiming the insufficiency of the reference.¹⁷

It is well recognized that the ties of mining claims to some natural object or permanent monument are not, and were not intended to be as accurate and correct as they would be if tied by a competent surveyor. If that were true very few, if any, of many hundreds of mining claims located in good faith by prospectors and miners would be valid. Bismark Co. v. No. Sunbeam Co., 14 Ida. 516.

CHAPTER XXIV.

DISCOVERY.

- § 154. In general—location not complete without discovery—requisites of discovery—discovery may be insufficient—bisected discovery—single discovery in placer claim—place of discovery—absence of discovery.
- § 155. Character of lode discovery.
- § 156. Development of discovery—local provisions—essential act of location—discovery shaft.
- § 157. Proof of discovery—rule between rival claimants—reason for rule—test—contests between mineral claimants—mineralogical and geological conditions—supplementary evidence—testimony—discovery point—expert testimony—conclusive testimony—negative testimony.
- § 158. Loss of discovery—sale before discovery—sale after discovery.

§ 154. In General. Discovery is one of the sources of title to both lode and placer claims.¹ It may be original or adopted² but it must be actual.³ It cannot rest upon a mere guess,⁴ nor be based upon conjecture or the imaginary existence of mineral.⁵

2. LOCATION NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT DISCOVERY. No location is complete without discovery therein⁶ but it is not necessarily the first act of location.⁷ In the absence of an intervening right discovery subsequent to the other acts of location will validate the claim.⁸

3. REQUISITES OF DISCOVERY. There must be reasonable evidence of a vein or lode carrying mineral in a lode location or that it is valuable for placer mining if located as a placer claim.⁹

4. DISCOVERY MAY BE INSUFFICIENT. A discovery may be sufficient to sustain a location¹⁰ but may not be sufficient to sustain a claim of extra-lateral right,¹¹ nor, in either a lode or placer location to defeat the claim of an "agricultural" claimant.¹²

5. BISECTED DISCOVERY. A single discovery bisected by an end line common to two lode claims may be sufficient.¹³

6. SINGLE DISCOVERY IN PLACER CLAIM. A single discovery is sufficient in each placer location, irrespective of the character of deposit or size of the location except that before patent each 10-acre tract therein found to be non-mineral may be excluded therefrom.¹⁴

7. PLACE OF DISCOVERY. Discovery may be made upon the surface,¹⁵ or in a tunnel,¹⁶ or in a shaft,¹⁷ or be deep in the ground.¹⁸ A secret underground discovery will not prevail against a previously located surface discovery.¹⁹

8. ABSENCE OF DISCOVERY. In the absence of discovery the locator's rights depend upon actual possession and diligent prosecution of the work of discovery.²⁰ Otherwise the claim is subject to location peaceably and openly made by another.²¹ The one first making the discovery has the full right to the claim.²²

The term "discovery" has a technical meaning in mining. Upton v. Larkin, 7 Mont. 449; see McLemore v. Express Co., 158 Cal. 559. A mineral discovery subsequent to the grant of the title by the United States does not affect the title nor give the discoverer any right. Shaw v. Kellogg, 170 U. S. 312; Janette W. Riley, 33 L. § 155. Character of Lode Discovery. The discovery must be upon unappropriated territory.¹ It must be rock in place,² not necessarily in fissure,³ nor with well defined walls⁴ but must include the top or apex.⁵ It must occupy defined space and be capable of identification.⁶ It may be wide or narrow,⁷ be a seam or stringer,⁸ slightly interrupted, partially closed,⁹ pinched out in places or expand or swell out and as suddenly contract, forming "kidneys."¹⁰

It must bear mineral,¹¹ which may be rich or poor.¹² While uniformity is not required¹³ the mineral must not be fragmentary,¹⁴ although it may be unevenly distributed.¹⁵ It must not consist of pieces or bunches of quartz, not in place,¹⁶ nor of float rock,¹⁷ nor of boulders detached from the earth's crust.¹⁸

§ 156. Development of Discovery. The mining act does not require any particular manner of work, such as a shaft or its equivalent,¹ to determine discovery.

2. LOCAL PROVISIONS. Local statutes or district rules usually provide for the character, extent and the time within which such work shall be performed.

3. ESSENTIAL ACT OF LOCATION. When such work is required it is an essential act of location.² The claim is protected from adverse location during the period prescribed for such preliminary work.³

4. DISCOVERY SHAFT. The discovery shaft, or its equivalent, must be sunk or made upon otherwise unappropriated ground within the location.⁴ It should disclose mineral therein, but discovery may be shown elsewhere within the location.⁵

1. See Butte City Co. v. Baker, 196 U. S. 119; Gray v. Truby, 6 Colo. 278; Electro Mag. Co. v. VanAuken, 9 Colo. 204; Butte City Co. v. Baker, 196 U. S. 119.

The mere performance of the statutory acts of location, as the marking of the boundaries of the claim and the sinking of a shaft to a required depth without discovery of mineral will not validate the claim. McLaughlin v. Thompson, 2 Colo. A. 135.

3. Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 527.

§ 157. Proof of Discovery. The question of discovery is one of fact.¹ It may be raised between mineral claimants,² but not by a co-owner³ nor by a grantor of the property.⁴ It may be raised by one claiming the land to be more valuable for agricultural than for mining purposes.⁵

2. RULE BETWEEN RIVAL CLAIMANTS. When there is a controversy between two mineral claimants, the rule respecting the sufficiency of discovery of mineral is more liberal than when it is between a mineral claimant and one seeking to make an agricultural entry under the land laws.⁶

3. REASON FOR RULE. The reason for the above distinction is that when land is sought to be taken out of the category of agricultural lands the evidence of its mineral character should be reasonably clear, while in a controversy between rival claimants to mineral land, the question is simply which is entitled to priority; but even then the existence of mineral should be shown⁷ without, however, the weighing of scales to determine the value of the mineral found.⁸

4. TEST. When the contest is between a mineral claimant and one claiming under the general land laws or a railroad company claiming under its land grant⁹ the test is, not the mere existence of a mineral deposit, or the prospect of its existence, but, whether, as a present fact, it will pay to mine by the ordinary methods of mining.¹⁰

5. CONTESTS BETWEEN MINERAL CLAIMANTS. The courts are not in accord whether it is sufficient if the discovery be such as to justify an ordinarily prudent person, not necessarily a miner, in spending his time, labor and money in its development¹¹ or to be such as to cause him to be willing to make such expenditures.¹²

6. MINERALOGICAL AND GEOLOGICAL CONDITIONS. It has been held that the mineralogical and geological conditions that may exist in the ground and not whether a practical miner would feel justified in its exploitation, should control.¹³

7. SUPPLEMENTARY EVIDENCE. A locator may supplement evidence of discovery by showing the situation, character, value and mineralogical conditions of adjacent claims and proving, by the opinions of experienced miners, based upon the facts, that the discovery was sufficient to justify the locator in developing the claim.¹⁴

8. TESTIMONY. It may be shown that the outcroppings were mineralized,¹⁵ or probably carried mineral value.¹⁶ That a vein or lode was found or that indications existed which other miners followed on other ground in the same district; and on contiguous ground, in attempting to find mineral, and which, if followed, would lead to ore.¹⁷

9. DISCOVERY POINT. Discovery may be shown by proof of mineral at some point other than the discovery point.¹⁸

10. EXPERT TESTIMONY. Discovery may be shown by opinion evidence¹⁹ or by the testimony of an assayer.²⁰

11. CONCLUSIVE TESTIMONY. The patent may be conclusive evidence of discovery.²¹

12. NEGATIVE TESTIMONY. Negative testimony may disprove the claim of discovery.²²

14. While mere possibility that ground claimed as valuable for mineral, or that there are mere indications of the existence of mineral in the ground is not enough to justify a prudent person in expending money and work in exploration of it, yet where the evidence shows the actual existence of mineral in the claim, and such evidence is of sufficient weight to submit to the jury upon the issue of discovery, the locator has a right to strengthen his proof upon any of the elements which enter into what is comprehended by discovery. In doing so, he may supplement the showing that mineral actually did exist by introducing evidence of the fact that as a ground of justification for the expenditure of time and money, the adjacent ground in the immediate vicinity is rich in the same mineral, or that adjacent claims were developed into paying mines after development upon similar showings of mineral, or that geological conditions are so similar to that from the character of the mineral discovered, it is reasonable to expect to find mineral in valuable quantities in the exploitation of the ground staked. *Cascaden v. § 158. Loss of Discovery. All rights in a valid location will be lost if the place of discovery be patented to another,¹ unless a re-conveyance has been agreed upon,² or a new discovery is made elsewhere in the claim.³

2. SALE BEFORE DISCOVERY. A sale by a joint locator to the other locators, after marking the claim and before discovery,⁴ or a transfer of part of a claim after discovery and before fully marking the location carries no loss in the claim to the purchasers.⁵

3. SALE AFTER DISCOVERY. A sale of that portion of an unpatented location which contains the discovery does not invalidate the location.⁶

CHAPTER XXV.

LOCATORS.

- § 162. Rights of locators—basis of possession—forfeiture—abandonment.
- § 163. Citizens and aliens—location by alien—rights of alien—patent proceedings—presumption.
- § 164. Agents—no divestiture of title.
- § 165. Who cannot be locators.

§ 162. Rights of Locators. The character of the right which is granted by the United States to a locator is that no written instrument is necessary to create it.¹

2. BASIS OF POSSESSION. Valid location and annual expenditure give and continue the right of possession.²

3. FORFEITURE. The right to the location may be lost by a failure to do the necessary amount of work thereon or to contribute due proportion thereof.³

4. ABANDONMENT. The right of possession may be renounced and the claim or an interest therein be abandoned.⁴

1. Black v. Elkhorn Co., 163 U. S. 445; Daggett v. Yreka Co., 149 Cal. 357.

The right to a mining claim rests (1) on the laws of the United States, (2) on the laws of the State, and (3) on the local rules, regulations of the mining district wherein the same is situated. Johnson v. McLaughlin, 1 Ariz. 493. See U. S. v. Rizzinelli, 182 Fed. 675.

By the mining laws of the United States three classes of title are created, (1) title in fee simple, (2) title by possession, (3) the complete equitable title. The first vests in the grantee of the government an indefeasible title in the nature of an easement only. The first being an absolute grant by purchase and patent without condition, is not defeasible, while the second being a mere right of possession and enjoyment of profits without purchase and upon conditions, may be defeated at any time by the failure of the party in possession to comply with the conditions. The equitable title accrues immediately upon purchase, for the entry entitles the purchaser to a patent. So. End Co. v. Tinney, 22 Nev. 221.

3. Black v. Elkhorn Co., ante; see § 73, ante.
4. Id.; see § 72, ante.

§ 163. Citizens and Aliens. Mining claims within the United States¹ and the Philippine Islands² may be located by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such;³ and within the Philippine Islands by citizens thereof.⁴ Native born citizens of the Dominion of Canada are accorded certain reciprocal rights within the District of Alaska.⁵

2. LOCATION BY ALIEN. A location by an alien of a mining claim within the United States or the Philippine Islands is not void but is voidable.⁶

3. RIGHTS OF ALIEN. A location made by an alien is not subject to attack except by the government in direct proceedings termed "inquest of office found"⁷ or by the land department in the course of patent proceedings⁸ or by a party to a suit or action brought in opposition to a claim for patent.⁹ In no other way may persons legally raise the question of citizenship and the courts may be invoked to restrain any unlawful interferences.¹⁰

Naturalization before adverse rights attach or a judgment is rendered acts retroactively in patent proceedings, upon the rights of an alien.¹¹

4. PATENT PROCEEDINGS. In patent proceedings it is the citizenship of the applicant for patent or of the adverse claimant, not necessarily that of the locator which is involved.¹²

The patent is conclusive evidence of citizenship.¹³

5. PRESUMPTION. Sometimes citizenship is presumed from location.¹⁴

An "adverse suit" is equivalent to "inquest of office" as the government is interested in the outcome of the proceeding or suit and either party to an adverse suit may question the citizenship of the other. An objection on the ground of alienage in a judicial proceeding, if sustained, will only defeat the claim of the alien and will not in any sense sustain the title of the objector. *Sherlock v. § 164. Agents. The right to or in a location will vest in the principal when made by an agent, attorney in fact,¹ partner,² or employee³ who acts with⁴ or without⁵ express authority, as the principal's authorization is presumed⁶ although he may have no previous knowledge of the location;⁷ or he may subsequently acquiesce thereto.⁸

2. NO DIVESTITURE OF TITLE. Subsequent destruction of a location notice once posted will not divest the title of the principal.⁹

§ 165. Who Cannot be Locators. All persons employed in the Department of the Interior as officers of the General Land Office, clerks, employees, and as Deputy United States Mineral Surveyors cannot legally locate, hold, nor patent a mining claim.¹

CHAPTER XXVI.

ORIGINAL LOCATIONS.

- § 168. In general—possessory title—priority of title—dependent locations—invalid locations—form of lode location—form of placer location—must conform to law—time of location—qualification of locator.
- § 169. Equivalent of location—right to patent.
- § 170. Fraudulent placer location—innocent participants.
- § 171. Voidable locations.

- § 172. Void locations—absence of discovery—boundaries—illustrations—timber—trespass.
- § 173. Size of lode claims—measurement—presumption—excessive size—segregation—reasonable time to cast off.
- § 174. Size of placer claims—excessive size.
- § 175. Size of tunnel sites—excessive location.
- § 176. Size of mill-sites—form.
- § 177. Acts of location—acts incumbent on locator—order of performance—original discoverer—re-locator not discoverer—limitation—boundaries—time and manner of marking boundaries—essential acts of location—possible insufficiency of acts—question of fact—what controls—monuments as boundaries—position of lode claim monuments—consent of owner—limitation—position of placer claim monuments—possible discrepancy—changing position of marks—obliteration of marks—no presumption—by whom the marks may be placed—end lines—effect of establishing end lines—question of fact—constructive end lines—side lines—irregularity of side lines—agreed lines.

§ 168. In General. At the date of the location the ground appropriated must be a part of the public domain ¹ available and valuable for mining purposes.²

2. POSSESSORY TITLE. Possessory title does not vest until both discovery and a proper marking of the claim.³ The marking may be prior to discovery ⁴ or within a reasonable time thereafter ⁵ in the absence of an intervening right.⁶

3. PRIORITY OF TITLE. Priority of title gives the better right as between adverse mineral claimants,⁷ but if the value of the land as mineral land is questioned the character of the land and not priority of the claim of title thereto controls.⁸

4. INDEPENDENT LOCATIONS. Any number of independent locations contiguous or otherwise,⁹ except of saline lands,¹⁰ and possibly mill-sites ¹¹ may be made by the same party.

5. INVALID LOCATIONS. An invalid or incomplete location is subject to adverse location or entry.¹² The validity of either of such proceedings is not affected by any knowledge of the previous attempt at appropriation.¹³

6. FORM OF LODE LOCATION. Theoretically a lode location should be in the form of a parallelogram.¹⁴ A departure therefrom merely affects the claimant's right to follow the dip.¹⁵

7. FORM OF PLACER LOCATION. If upon surveyed lands a placer location should conform as nearly as is reasonably practicable to the rectangular subdivisions of the public surveys.¹⁶ But whether upon surveyed or unsurveyed lands the location should be rectangular in form, compact, and with north and south and east and west boundary lines. It should not encroach upon appropriated territory.¹⁷

8. MUST CONFORM TO LAW. No placer location will be passed to patent unless the land department be satisfied that it sufficiently conforms to the law.¹⁸

9. TIME OF LOCATION. A location may legally be made upon a Sunday¹⁹ or other legal holiday.

10. QUALIFICATION OF LOCATOR. A location may be made without regard to age,²⁰ sex,²¹ residence²² or citizenship of the locator.²³

1. Brown v. Gurney, 201 U. S. 184; Street v. Delta Co., 42 Mont. 371. There are three kinds of mineral locations, viz: "lode locations," "tunnel locations," and "placer locations." A proper location in either class fully maintained by use, enjoyment or patent is not subject to adverse location by a claimant of the same class or any other class, because it has become private property and no longer open to a new appropriation. Calhoun Co. v. Ajax Co., 27 Colo. 1.

§ 169. Equivalent to Location. In the absence of an adverse claim the possession and working of a mining claim for a period equal to the time prescribed by the local statute of limitations is equivalent to a valid location.¹

2. RIGHT TO PATENT. The statutory expenditure being made thereon² the claimant is entitled to a patent from the government therefor.³

§ 170. Fraudulent Placer Location. Where an association of persons locates a placer claim in the interest of a single individual¹ or of a corporation² the location is valid only to the extent of 20 acres.

2. INNOCENT PARTICIPANTS. Locators not implicated in such fraud may select and hold their proportionate share of the location, that is, 20 acres each.³

§ 171. Voidable Locations. A location otherwise valid but made by an alien is voidable and not void.¹

1. Manuel v. Wulff, 152 U. S. 505; McKinley Creek Co. v. Alaska United Co., 183 U. S. 563; see § 163, ante.

§ 172. Void Locations. A location may be marked upon the ground and still be neither valid nor subsisting.¹ Each locator must stand on his own location. He can take only what it will give him under the law.²

2. ABSENCE OF DISCOVERY. In the absence of discovery no act of the claimant can confer validity upon the claim.³

3. BOUNDARIES. Where discovery is made, but the location is not so marked that its boundaries can be readily traced, the claimant assumes the risk of intervening rights.⁴

4. ILLUSTRATIONS. A location based upon a discovery which is within the limits of a prior location,⁵ when, possibly, of excessive size,⁶ upon the dip of a vein or lode,⁷ or a lode location of a placer deposit,⁸ or vice versa, or a placer location intended to secure a known vein therein,⁹ or merely to secure a water right,¹⁰ or a mill-site location intended merely to secure a water right¹¹ is void.

5. TIMBER. A valuable growth of timber upon a claim may properly be an incentive to its location.¹²

6. TRESPASS. Trespass initiates no right in land which is in the actual possession of another.¹³ The performance of acts necessary to constitute a location upon land held by another is only a trespass and cannot form the basis for the acquisition of title¹⁴ save when by acquiescence or neglect the right to object to it is waived.¹⁵

§ 173. Size of Lode Claims. A lode claim should not exceed 1500 feet along the vein or lode, nor extend more than 300 feet, nor be limited by local statute or district rule, to less than 25 feet on each side of the middle of the vein or lode at the surface.¹

2. MEASUREMENT. The length and width (that is the distance between the side lines)² may be measured from the point of discovery.³ Neither the end lines⁴ nor the side lines⁵ need, necessarily, be equi-distant from the "discovery."

3. PRESUMPTION. In the absence of a contrary statement in the location notice,⁶ knowledge of the locus of the vein or lode,⁷ or proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that the point of discovery was in the middle of the vein or lode.⁸

4. EXCESSIVE SIZE. A location that exceeds the maximum size is void only as to the excess⁹ unless fraudulent¹⁰ or misleading.¹¹

5. SEGREGATION. When innocently done the claimant may select the ground to be retained and draw in his lines accordingly.¹²

6. REASONABLE TIME TO CAST OFF. This should be done within a reasonable time, pending which an adverse location of any part thereof is perhaps a nullity.¹³

§ 174. Size of Placer Claims. The maximum size is 20 acres for an individual and 160 acres for an association of not less than 8 persons,¹ or, correspondingly, if the association is composed of a less number.²

2. EXCESSIVE SIZE. Mere excess over the maximum amount may not invalidate the location³ unless the excess be great.⁴

§ 175. Size of Tunnel-sites. The maximum length of a tunnel is 3000 feet from its face,¹ that is, the point at which it actually enters under cover.² It is not limited to any particular width.³

2. EXCESSIVE LOCATION. It is void only as to any excess in length.⁴

§ 176. Size of Mill-sites. A mill-site cannot exceed 5 acres in extent.¹

2. FORM. There is no provision in the law as to the form of the location.

1. Rev. Stats., § 2337.

§ 177. Acts of Location. A locator must take measures to inform the world that he has appropriated a certain portion of the public mineral lands and state the extent and boundaries thereof.*

2. ACTS INCUMBENT ON LOCATOR. This involves the marking of the claim so that its boundaries can be readily traced, making discovery, and doing whatever else may be required by the local statute or district rule.¹

3. ORDER OF PERFORMANCE. The order in which the acts of location are performed is, generally, immaterial, provided that no adverse right intervenes.²

4. ORIGINAL DISCOVERER. The original locator is the discoverer of the mineral contained in the location.³

5. RE-LOCATOR NOT DISCOVERER. A re-locator is not the discoverer of the mineral in the location. He is the appropriator thereof.⁴

6. LIMITATION. If questioned a re-locator cannot hold the ground except upon proof that the preceding locator had abandoned or forfeited the location.⁵

7. BOUNDARIES. The mining act requires that the boundaries shall be so marked that they can be readily traced.⁶ It does not define the manner nor time of demarcation.⁷

8. TIME AND MANNER OF MARKING BOUNDARIES. The time and manner of marking a location are usually prescribed by local statute or district rule.

9. ESSENTIAL ACTS OF LOCATION. The provisions of a local statute or district rule in relation to the time and manner of marking of a location or the doing of preliminary work on the discovery, should be complied with as essential acts of location.⁸

10. POSSIBLE INSUFFICIENCY OF ACTS. It does not necessarily follow that a compliance with a local statute or district rule in the above respects constitutes a sufficient compliance with the provisions of the mining act.⁹

11. QUESTION OF FACT. The sufficiency of the marking of the claim¹⁰ or of the "discovery" work¹¹ is a question of fact.

12. WHAT CONTROLS. The conformation and condition of the ground located with the character and extent of the markings ultimately control as to the sufficiency of the demarcation.¹²

13. MONUMENTS AS BOUNDARIES. Monuments at the corners of a claim do not mark the boundaries. They are only means by which the boundaries may be traced.¹³ A written notice posted on¹⁴ or off¹⁵ the location would be sufficient if, therefrom, the boundaries of the claim could be readily traced with absolute certainty and without any practical difficulty.¹⁶

14. POSITION OF LODE CLAIM MONUMENTS. Part or all of the monuments of a lode location may, by accident or design, be placed upon adjoining ground, although adversely held, if openly and peaceably done. It is immaterial whether the territory so encroached upon be patented or unpatented.¹⁷

15. CONSENT OF OWNER. The consent of the owner of such other ground is not essential. Subsequent objection by him is unavailing.¹⁸

16. LIMITATION. The right of such overlapping locator is limited to the ground within such boundaries as was then open to location.¹⁹

17. POSITION OF PLACER CLAIM MONUMENTS. The foregoing rule as to the position of monuments of lode claims does not apply to placer claims.²⁰

In the states of California²¹ and Nevada,²² a placer location is sufficiently marked by posting a notice of location thereon and by a reference to legal subdivisions, if upon surveyed lands,²³ otherwise, in the same manner that a lode claim is ordinarily located. In the state of Washington a placer location may be made and described by legal subdivisions, but it must still be marked the same as other locations.²⁴

18. POSSIBLE DISCREPANCY. A danger in pursuing the former course is the loss of corners or the possible discrepancy between the official field notes of the public survey and the locus of the ground. In which case the survey must control.²⁵

19. CHANGING POSITION OF MARKS. The position of the monuments, or any of them, may be changed so as to include land open to location and not originally embraced in the claim;²⁶ or to draw in the lines to avoid an excess,²⁷ or for the purpose of paralleling the end lines.²⁸

20. OBLITERATION OF MARKS. The subsequent obliteration or removal of the marks, if without the act or fault of the claimant will not divest him of title to a claim otherwise valid.²⁹

21. NO PRESUMPTION. There is no presumption as to boundary marks on old claims.³⁰ If questioned their former existence must be established.³¹

22. BY WHOM THE MARKS MAY BE PLACED. The boundary marks may be those placed by the original locator or those placed, adopted or repaired by a subsequent claimant.³²

23. END LINES. The end lines of a lode claim are those which cross the vein or lode at the surface,³³ at any angle³⁴ or variation from the true dip.³⁵ They extend downward continued in their own direction, either way, horizontally.³⁶ If laid along the vein or lode they are side lines.³⁷ If the end lines are not parallel with each other the claimant has no extra-lateral rights.³⁸ They may be made parallel and the right to follow the dip be thus obtained.³⁹

If the end lines converge the extra-lateral right is confined to the area embraced by such lines.⁴⁰

24. EFFECT OF ESTABLISHING END LINES. The existence of end lines is essential to the extra-lateral right.⁴¹ When once established they are the end lines of all veins or lodes having their apexes within the location.⁴² End lines cannot be drawn at right angles to the strike of all veins or lodes within the claim if they do not run parallel with each other⁴³ although there may be different veins or lodes with different dips therein.⁴⁴

25. QUESTION OF FACT. Whether the end lines are substantially parallel or not is a question of fact⁴⁵ of which the patent is conclusive evidence.⁴⁶

26. CONSTRUCTIVE END LINES. End lines may be judicially constructed within the surface lines of a lode location.⁴⁷

27. SIDE LINES. The side lines of a lode location are those which are laid along the course or strike of a vein or lode.⁴⁸ If laid across the vein or lode they become end lines⁴⁹ whether so intended by the locator or not.⁵⁰

28. IRREGULARITY OF SIDE LINES. While side lines should be equidistant⁵¹ they may be irregular⁵² and of unequal width, not exceeding 300 feet on either side of the center of the vein or lode at the surface.⁵³

29. AGREED LINES. Boundary lines may be agreed upon between,⁵⁴ or acquiesced in by,⁵⁵ the owners of the adjoining claims or be fixed by conveyance.⁵⁶

9. Charlton v. Kelly, ante.

As a general rule it is sufficient if the center line of a lode claim be marked by three stakes or monuments —one at the center, and one at each end—upon the center one of which is placed the location notice stating the direction of the lode with reference to the points of the compass, and declaring the stake or monument to be the limit stake or monument of the lode in the direction mentioned in the notice upon it, as, to illustrate, the east and west end line of the lode (naming it). In addition to the foregoing a stake or monument may be placed at each corner of the surface of the claim, designating which corner it is with reference to the points of the compass, and also containing the name of the claim.

It may be further necessary to blaze trees along the line of the location, or cut away brush, or set more stakes at such distances that they may be seen from one to another, or dig up the ground in a way to indicate the lines so that the boundaries of the claim may be readily traced. Ledoux v. Forester, ante; see Book v. Justice Co., ante. The fact that the ground sought to be located is extremely rough and mountainous does not relieve the locator of obligation to properly mark the boundaries of his location. *Gird v. Cal. CHAPTER XXVII.

SUBSEQUENT LOCATIONS.

- § 178. Amended or additional location—basis—office of amendment—contents of notice—one instrument.
- § 179. Re-location—when void—assumption of risk—statutory bar to re-location—fraudulent re-location—exception—improvements.
- § 180. Overlapping locations—basis—boundary marks—consent of owner—re-location—application for patent—laches and limitation.
- § 181. Lode location within placer claim—presumption—trespass—not trespass—limitation of area.
- § 182. Location of cross lodes.

§ 178. Amended or Additional Location. The mining act makes no provision for an amended or additional location.¹ It may be made as of course.² It relates back to the original location and completes the same.³ It is not, strictly speaking, a re-location.⁴

2. BASIS. It must be based upon a pre-existing but not necessarily perfect location.⁵ It works no forfeiture of previously acquired rights not inconsistent with the amendment.⁶ It must not interfere with the rights of others acquired between the time of making the original location and the amendment.⁷ It does not require additional discovery in the added ground, physical possession⁸ nor additional annual expenditure thereon.⁹

3. OFFICE OF AMENDMENT. It may be designed to include additional territory,¹⁰ but not to effect a consolidation of independent mining claims.¹¹

It may cure defects¹² or supply omissions¹³ in the original location¹⁴ or in the posted notice or record,¹⁵ It may serve to change the name of the claim.¹⁶

4. CONTENTS OF NOTICE. Unless required by local statute or district rule an amended location notice need not state the purpose for which it is made.¹⁷

5. ONE INSTRUMENT. The original notice and the amendment are deemed to be one instrument though perhaps neither as a whole is absolutely correct and in conformity to the law, if in substantial compliance therewith.¹⁸

§ 179. Re-location. A subsequent location of a forfeited or abandoned claim is a re-location and not an original location.¹ It is made in the same manner and is subject to the same conditions as an original location.²

2. WHEN VOID. It is void if entirely upon land actually covered by a valid and subsisting location³ or made under a fraudulent abandonment.^{3a}

3. ASSUMPTION OF RISK. A re-location may be made without awaiting a judicial determination as to whether or not the claim was open to re-location, but the re-locator assumes the risk of possible future litigation over his action.⁴

4. STATUTORY BAR TO RE-LOCATION. A valid re-location may be made by a claimant who has failed to make the requisite annual expenditure upon his location, either in his own name,⁵ or in that of a third party,⁶ except by statutory enactment, within the states of California⁷ and Montana.⁸

5. FRAUDULENT RE-LOCATIONS. A vendor of property, not acting in good faith,⁹ a lessee in violation of the terms of his lease,¹⁰ a mortgagor for the purpose of defeating a mortgage,¹¹ or a co-tenant for his own exclusive benefit¹² may not make an adverse re-location.

An agent cannot re-locate, nor connive at a re-location in hostility to his principal.¹³ A watchman may not adversely re-locate the property formerly in his care.¹⁴

6. EXCEPTION. The existence of a partnership or the fact of previous employment may not perhaps create a trust in a location or re-location which is inimical to co-partners or the former employer.¹⁵

7. IMPROVEMENTS All improvements which are attached to or become a part of the realty pass to the re-locator.¹⁶ But they cannot be counted as part of the expenditure necessary in patent proceedings.¹⁷

§ 180. Overlapping Locations. Mining claims often overlap one another ¹ through accident, innocent mistake ² or from design.³

It does not necessarily follow that either must fail nor that the conflicting area shall be awarded to the senior locator.⁴ Acts or circumstances entirely consistent with the true order of location may intervene which require that the overlap be awarded to the junior locator.⁵

2. BASIS. At the date of the location the ground located must be partly laid upon the public domain.⁶

3. BOUNDARY MARKS. The boundary marks of lode locations may be placed upon or across the surface of a prior location, or intervening ground,⁷ whether patented or unpatented, mining or agricultural ground,⁸ and the extra-lateral right be thus secured.⁹

4. CONSENT OF OWNER. The consent of the claimant or owner is not essential to the making of the overlap. In the absence thereof it must be peaceably made.¹⁰

5. RE-LOCATION. Upon forfeiture or abandonment by the former locator the overlapping unpatented area should be re-located by the junior locator.¹¹

6. APPLICATION FOR PATENT. A failure of the senior locator to adverse an application for patent by the junior locator and which includes the overlap will vest the title thereto in such applicant.¹²

7. LACHES AND LIMITATION. The overlapping locator may, possibly, acquire the conflicting area by laches or limitation.¹³

§ 181. Lode Location within Placer Claim. A vein or lode which is of such a character as to exclude it from a placer location and which is not included in a patent therefor may be adversely located.¹

2. PRESUMPTION. The presumption is in favor of the placer claimant.²

3. TRESPASS. The vein or lode must be known to exist as prospecting within the limits of a placer location without the will or consent of the placer claimant is prohibited.³

4. NOT TRESPASS. It is held that a subsequent location of a vein or lode which is exempt from the placer claim is not a trespass.⁴

5. LIMITATION OF AREA. A valid subsequent lode location within the limits of a placer claim limits the placer claimant to the remainder of the placer location, although the entire area be included in a patent previously issued for the placer claim.⁵

CHAPTER XXVIII.

NOTICE OF LOCATION.

§ 185. In general—supplementary legislation—contents of record—additional recitals—not necessarily part of location—substantial compliance—oral testimony—importance of boundaries—construction of notice—sufficiency of notice—purpose fulfilled.

§ 186. The posted notice—evidence of discovery and appropriation—recitals—question of fact—description—name of lode—errors in description—surplusage—where posted—miners' devices—presumption.

§ 187. The amended notice—intervening rights—evidence.

§ 189. Ante-dated notice—felony.

§ 190. Where recorded—county recorder—district recorder—failure to make record—description—what record need not show—question of fact—record as notice—record not notice—record as title—effect of record—record as evidence—does not preclude parol evidence—when prima facie evidence—color of title.

§ 185. In General. The mining act does not require either the posting¹ or recording² of a notice of location.

3. CONTENTS OF RECORD. When a record is made it must contain the name of the locator, the name of the lode or placer, the date of the location and such a description together with a reference to a natural object or permanent monument sufficient to identify the claim with reasonable certainty when such reference can be made to either.³

4. ADDITIONAL RECITALS. Additional recitals are usually prescribed by local statute or district rule;⁴ the absence or insufficiency of such statements or other statutory requirements, as, to illustrate, the verification of the notice, may be fatal.⁵

5. NOT NECESSARILY PART OF LOCATION. In the absence of a local statute or district rule requiring posting or recording neither act is any part of a legal location.⁶

6. SUBSTANTIAL COMPLIANCE. The question whether the requirements of a local statute or district rule have been complied with arises only upon the assertion of an adverse claim.⁷ It is then sufficient to show a substantial compliance therewith.⁸

7. ORAL TESTIMONY. The location may be aided, or wholly shown by oral testimony.⁹

8. IMPORTANCE OF BOUNDARIES. A location will be sustained without either posting or recording, although both acts may be required by local law or district rule as acts of location, provided, the boundaries of the claim are defined and work is diligently prosecuted thereon.¹⁰

9. CONSTRUCTION OF NOTICE. The notice of location should be liberally, not technically construed.¹¹ A location is not absolutely void because the record may be indefinite,¹² nor by reason of mistakes or imperfections therein.¹³

10. SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE. The notice is sufficient when it contains directions which will enable a person of ordinary intelligence to find the claim and trace the boundaries thereof¹⁴ although it may not state the state or county or mining district within which it is situated¹⁵ or the proper legal subdivision within which it may be located, if the remaining description sufficiently identifies the land.¹⁶ It may mis-describe the character of the monuments,¹⁷ or mistake the courses or distances of the boundaries,¹⁸ or the points of the compass.¹⁹ Such defects do not vitiate the notice.²⁰

11. PURPOSE FULFILLED. The purpose of the notice is fulfilled when it informs others of the appropriation of the ground;²¹ whether it does so or not is a question of fact.²²

Under the provisions of the Californian mining act a notice of a lode location must be posted at the point of discovery (C. C., § 1426) of a placer claim within the boundaries thereof (C. C., § 1426c), of a tunnel site at the face or point of commencement of the tunnel (C. C., § 1426e), of a mill-site within the boundaries thereof. (C. C., § 1426j.)

§ 186. The Posted Notice. The posted notice required by the local statute or district rule serves as a protection to the locator while engaged in marking and developing his claim.¹

2. EVIDENCE OF DISCOVERY AND APPROPRIATION. The posted notice is also some evidence of discovery² and a declaration of the locator's intention to possess it.³

3. RECITALS. No particular recitals are necessary in the posted notice, except such as may be required by local statute or district rule; in which case, it should conform thereto;⁴ otherwise it is sufficient if it imparts notice of the ground claimed.⁵

4. QUESTION OF FACT. The sufficiency of the notice is a question of fact.⁶ If it is uncertain it may be aided by evidence of possession and the erection of monuments.⁷

5. DESCRIPTION. A notice claiming a location on "this vein" has only one meaning.⁸ It raises an inference that the notice was posted on or in close proximity to a vein or lode⁹ although, as a fact, no vein or lode was then exposed.¹⁰

6. NAME OF LODGE. The name of the lode is that by which it is designated in the notice¹¹ and subsequent addition thereto is immaterial.¹² The same vein or lode may have different names in different mining locations.¹³

7. ERRORS IN DESCRIPTION. Errors in description will not invalidate the location, if it can be sufficiently identified.¹⁴ Stating an erroneous date¹⁵ or erasing a locator's name from the location notice is immaterial, unless fraudulently done.¹⁶ Mis-naming some of the boundary marks is not fatal.¹⁷

8. SURPLUSAGE. Unless required by local statute or district rule the posted notice need not contain a reference to a natural object or permanent monument,¹⁸ nor the words "dated on the ground",¹⁹ nor be a literal copy of the record.²⁰

9. WHERE POSTED. The notice is usually posted at the place of discovery²¹ but unless its position is prescribed by local statute or district rule the notice may be placed upon or off the location.²²

10. MINERS' DEVICES. Miners use various devices to protect the posted notice from destruction by the elements, such as covering it with glass, or folding it in a box and placing the box in a conspicuous place, or putting the notice upon a mound of rocks, folding it and partially covering it with rock,²³ or putting the notice in a tin can.²⁴ A substantial compliance with the law is sufficient.²⁵

11. PRESUMPTION. It may be presumed from a recital to that effect in the record that the notice of location was in fact posted.²⁶

1. Erhardt v. Boaro, 113 U. S. 527; Green v. Garvin, 10 Cal. A. 330; Sanders v. Noble, 22 Mont. 110; Street v. Delta Co., 42 Mont. 371.

2. Fox v. Myers, 29 Nev. 169.

3. Thompson v. Lee, 8 Cal. 276.

4. Baker v. Butte City Co., 28 Mont. 222.

Under the federal mining act it is not necessary to designate in the location notice the particular use or character of a placer claim. It is sufficient to designate it as a placer claim without any description as to kind or quality. Such words in no way abridge the right of the owner, but should be treated as surplus-age. Freezer v. Sweeny, 8 Mont. 508; see McCann v. McMillan, 129 Cal. 350.

§ 187. The Amended Notice. An amended notice of location is made for the purpose of correcting errors and defects in the original notice or as evidence of the changing of the boundaries of the original location.¹

2. INTERVENING RIGHTS. In the absence of intervening rights² it relates back to the original location³ without loss of rights not inconsistent with the amendment.⁴

3. EVIDENCE. Except as against intervening rights an amended notice serves the same purpose, in its admission in evidence, as that of the original notice of location.⁵

The mining act of California provides that "If at any time the locator of any mining claim heretofore or hereafter located, or his assigns, shall apprehend that his original location notice was defective, erroneous, or that the requirements of the law had not been complied with before filing; or in case the original notice was made prior to the passage of this act, and he shall be desirous of securing the benefit of this act, such locator, or his assigns, may file an additional notice, subject to the provisions of this act; provided, that such amended location notice does not interfere with the existing rights of others at the time of posting and filing such amended location notice, and no such amended location notice or the record thereof, shall preclude the claimant, or claimants from proving any such title as he or they may have held under previous locations." § 188. The Re-location Notice. Unless required by local statute or district rule it is not necessary to state in the notice the fact of re-location.

2. VOID NOTICE. When so required the absence of such a recital renders the re-location void.¹

3. EFFECT OF STATEMENT. A statement in a notice that it is a re-location of a named claim is the equivalent of an admission of its validity, that the re-locator claims a forfeiture or abandonment on the part of the prior claimant² and precludes the former from asserting the contrary.³

4. PROOF. It is not necessary to prove either forfeiture or abandonment on the part of the prior claimant in the absence of an adverse claim by him.⁴

3. Zerres v. Vanina, 150 Fed. 564.
4. Manhattan Co., ante.

§ 189. Ante-dated Notice. A location notice which is ante-dated, with fraudulent intent, is void.¹ In Nevada false dating of a location notice is a felony.²

1. Bramlett v. Flick, 23 Mont. 95; Muldoon v. Brown, 21 Utah 121. A posted location notice is not invalidated by the fact that it is posted after midnight of the date it bears, no fraud appearing and the notice being posted before the initiation of a conflicting claim. Bergquist v. W. Va. Wyo. Co. (Wyo.), 106 Pac. 673.
2. Neu. Stats. 1907, p. 373.

§ 190. Where Recorded. The recording of a notice of location is necessary only when required by local statute or district rule;¹ which usually fixes the time and place therefor.²

2. COUNTY RECORDER. The office of the County Recorder of the county within which the claim is situated is usually fixed by local statute as the place of record and also sometimes, in addition thereto, the office of the proper Mining Recorder.

3. DISTRICT RECORDER. The district rules, generally, require the notice to be recorded in the office of the mining district as well as in the office of the County Recorder. If it be required that the notice be filed with the Mining Recorder and his place of business is publicly known it is essential that such be done.³

4. FAILURE TO MAKE RECORD. Failure to make the record within the prescribed time does not work a forfeiture of the claim unless so expressly provided⁴ or no intervening rights have accrued.⁵

5. DESCRIPTION. The description given in the record must be sufficient to apprise others of the precise location of the claim, as, for example, a prospector,⁶ or an officer seeking to execute process,⁷ or to sustain a judgment.⁸

6. WHAT RECORD NEED NOT SHOW. The mining act does not require that the record shall show that the location is so marked that the boundaries of the claim can be readily traced.⁹

7. QUESTION OF FACT. It is a question of fact whether or not it is so marked.¹⁰

8. RECORD AS NOTICE. A recorded notice of location gives no information of a claim not actually located; nor does even a notice posted on the ground, unless it appears that the party posting it is proceeding with reasonable diligence to indicate, or is about to indicate the boundaries by marking them.¹¹

9. RECORD NOT NOTICE. Record evidence of a location is not made in the United States Land Office but in the local place of record. The first official information that office has of the location is, when the application for patent is filed therein. In agricultural entries all the record is made in such office.¹²

10. RECORD AS TITLE. The record of the location of a mining claim is not a title nor proof of a title, nor does it constitute nor of itself establish the possessory right to which it relates,¹³ although in part the basis of the right to the location,¹⁴ and one of the steps to perfect the same.¹⁵

11. EFFECT OF RECORD. It has no greater effect than that given by the registration laws of the State,¹⁶ and conclusively proves no more than its own recordation as all the other necessary steps of location, when contested, must be established by proof outside of such record.¹⁷

12. RECORD AS EVIDENCE. When required under a local statute or district rule the failure to record may be supplied by oral proof of the location¹⁸ as such law is directory¹⁹ and designed as a rule of evidence only, to determine the rights of an adverse claimant of the premises under a subsequent location.²⁰ When not so required it is not admissible in evidence,²¹ nor is it a link in the chain of title.²²

sion and the extent of that possession as prima facie evidence of title.²³

14. WHEN PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE. When made so by local statute^{23a} or when not objected to in the course of judicial proceedings the record is prima facie evidence of citizenship of the locator²⁴ and of all the law requires such record to contain and which are therein sufficiently set forth²⁵ as, for instance, discovery, that the reference therein to a natural object or permanent monument is sufficient to identify the claim²⁶ and that the locator has fully complied with the law in making the location.²⁷

15. COLOR OF TITLE. When coupled with possession it may be sufficient color of title.²⁸

§ 193. Provisions of the Mining Act. The mining act prescribes the minimum amount of the annual expenditure and the maximum limit of the time within which it may be made.¹ It provides that at least $100 worth of labor, that is, prospecting and excavating for the purpose of development² shall be done; or improvements, that is, tangible, and reasonably permanent additions for purpose of development³ shall be made upon or for each lode and placer location⁴ at some time during each calendar year⁵ succeeding the calendar year in which the location⁶ was made,⁷ until patent,⁸ or its equivalent is issued.⁹

2. DISTRICT RULE. A district rule may properly increase the amount of the expenditure and require labor to be done upon a claim within the first calendar year of location under penalty of forfeiture.¹⁰

1. Northmore v. Simmons, 97 Fed. 386.

The mining act of California provides that: The amount of work done or improvements made during each year to hold possession of a mining claim shall be that prescribed by the laws of the United States, to wit: one hundred dollars annually. C. C., § 1426 l.

Where the location is incomplete no question of assessment work is involved. McLemore v. Express Co., 158 Cal. 559.

10. Northmore v. Simmons, ante; but see Original Co. v. Winthrop, 60 Cal. 631.

§ 194. Place of Performance. The labor may be done upon or underneath the surface of the location, or be away therefrom.¹ It must have a direct relation to the present or future development or working of the property.²

2. CHARACTER OF LABOR AND IMPROVEMENTS. The labor may be upon the vein or lode³ but it must be something more than taking rock therefrom, from time to time, and testing it for the purpose of finding pay ore.⁴ It may consist of un-watering the claim⁵ or in the erection of a flume to carry away water or waste, or in the introduction of water or the turning of a stream.⁶ The erection of machinery and other works⁷ or of a building; if of benefit to the claim⁸ and not too distant therefrom,⁹ or the building of a road¹⁰ may be sufficient. Reasonable compensation may be allowed for the use of¹¹ or for the sharpening of tools used,¹² but not the purchase price thereof.¹³ The value of powder, fuse, candles, rails and timber actually used,¹⁴ but not the cost of transporting them,¹⁵ may be counted. Reasonable compensation for the daily use of horses employed in drawing cars or in raising ore, etc., but not their cost, livery hire, feed or shoeing, may be treated as labor performed.¹⁶ Reasonable value of meals furnished to men while employed in "assessment work," but not the cost of table ware, house furnishings, provisions, or tobacco, may be counted.¹⁷

3. PERSONAL SERVICES. The services of a watchman are sufficient, if necessary to preserve the excavations, the structures erected to work the claim¹⁸ or to preserve personal property;¹⁹ but they are not sufficient where he merely lives upon the claim²⁰ or warns others from locating it.²¹ The services of a person employed in planning and superintending the development of a claim and the erection of a mill and machinery may be deemed part of the assessment work,²² but the services of an agent or accountant²³ or of a person whose time is spent in endeavoring to obtain means for the development of property,²⁴ will be insufficient.

4. GROUP OF LOCATIONS. Any number of contiguous locations held in common may form a group except in case of oil placer locations. These, by law, are limited to groups of five.²⁵

5. LABOR UPON GROUP. Labor may be done or improvements made upon or at a distance from any one of the locations comprising the group when of benefit and value to the entire group.²⁶

The expenditure must equal, in the aggregate, the amount required on all the locations.²⁷ It must be a part of a general plan having in view the development of the group²⁸ as labor upon or for a location therein which has no reference to the development of all the locations will not be sufficient.²⁹ While a court should not substitute its judgment for that of the locator as to the wisdom and expediency of the "plan"³⁰ yet it remains a question of fact whether the requirement of the law has been fulfilled.³¹ By adopting a general scheme for the group instead of making the expenditure upon each separate location there is the risk of an adverse legal determination of the question,³² a hazard which a mortgagee may insist shall not be taken.³³

6. BURDEN OF PROOF. The burden of proof as to the sufficiency of the expenditure under the general plan to hold all the locations within the group rests with the claimant thereunder.³⁴ The natural and reasonable presumption is that all the work is done as part of the system, and as such applicable to all the locations.³⁵ But it must tend either to enhance the value of the claim in dollars and cents, or that which is of use in prospecting, developing or operating the property.³⁶

It would be absurd to require a shaft to be sunk on each location in a consolidated claim when one shaft would suffice for all the locations. St. Louis Co. v. Kemp, 104 U. S. 636; Copper Mt. Co. v. Butte & Corbin Co., 39 Mont. 487; Sexton v. Wash. Co., 55 Wash. 380. See Big 3 Co. v. Hamilton, ante. But if the claims are not contiguous the work is insufficient. Anvil Co. v. Where several contiguous mining claims constitute a group and expenditures are made upon an improvement which is intended to aid in the development of all so held, the improvement constitutes a distinct entity, not subject to physical subdivision or apportionment, in its application to the claims intended to be benefited by it. The work performed attaches to the claims collectively and not severally. Duncan v. Eagle Rock Co., 48 Colo. 569; see Jas. Carretto, ante.
30. Mann v. Budlong, 129 Cal. 577; Wright v. Killian, 132 Cal. 56; Gear v. Ford, 4 Cal. A. 556; see Copper Mt. Co. v. Butte & Corbin Co., ante.

34. Whalen Co. v. Whalen, ante; see Wailles v. Davies, ante; Yreka Co. v. Knight, ante.
35. Mt. Diablo Co. v. Callison, ante. In contested cases concerning assessment work upon a group of locations the best evidence of the existence of the group is the situs of the properties and the kind, quality and place of the work performed. The fact that the location notice recites that the locations are "together and touching" is not conclusive. Evidence of the claimant's intention to hold them as a group is inadmissible. Testimony as to the topography of the region, that unclaimed and unoccupied ground lies between some of the locations or that they are separated by a ravine is germane to the issue. Morgan v. Myers, (Cal.) 113 Pac. 153.
36. Anvil Co. v. Code, ante.

§ 195. Sufficiency of Performance. The test of the sufficiency of the expenditure is the reasonable value; not what is paid nor the contract price, but whether the expenditure tends to facilitate the development or actually promotes or directly tends to promote the extraction of mineral from or improve the property or be necessary for its care or the protection of the mining works thereon or pertaining thereto.¹

2. COMPLIANCE WITH LOCAL STATUTE OR DISTRICT RULE. A compliance with the provision of a local statute or district rule to the effect that a certain number of days' work at a certain sum a day, or that work of a certain character or extent shall constitute the requisite expenditure may be insufficient to meet the requirements of the mining act.²

3. PAYMENT NOT CONCLUSIVE. Payment is not conclusive proof of performance.³ It may be an evidence of good faith⁴ but not that the labor done or improvements made were worth the amount paid.⁵

4. PAYMENT BEARS UPON VALUE. Payment bears upon the value⁶ which may be insufficient although equal to the amount required by law.⁷

5. PAYMENT NOT ESSENTIAL. Labor actually done or improvements made may be sufficient to hold the claim although not in fact paid for; but payment made for work not done will not suffice.⁸

See § 199, post.

Work done for the purpose of discovering mineral, whatever the particular form or character of the deposit which is the subject of search, is within the spirit of the statute. U. S. v. Iron Co., 24 Fed. 568; see Bishop v. Baisley, 28 Or. 119. Work done upon the surface may be insufficient. Mills v. Fletcher, 100 Cal. 142.

2. Woody v. Bernard, 69 Ark. 579; Wright v. Killian, 132 Cal. 56.

The test is not as to the number of days' work done, but what is the worth or reasonable value of the labor done or improvements made. These are to be measured in dollars, not in days. If, when completed, the labor or improvements are reasonably worth the required sum, the requirement of the law has been fulfilled. Penn v. Oldhauber, 24 Mont. 287.

§ 196. Proof of Performance. The various local statutes provide for the making, recording and legal effect of affidavits of annual expenditure.¹

2. NOT MANDATORY LAWS. Such laws are not mandatory.²

3. EFFECT OF FILING. If the affidavit be filed within the statutory period³ it presents prima facie evidence of the facts properly therein stated⁴ but it does not prevent other proof by the claimant nor attack by his adversary.⁵ Its due filing may prevent re-location.⁶

4. NEGLECT TO FILE NOT FATAL. Neither the failure to record the affidavit nor a mistake therein will work a forfeiture of the claim.⁷

1. See Book v. Justice Co., 58 Fed. 106; McGinnis v. Egbert, 8 Colo. 41; Coleman v. Curtis, 12 Mont. 301; Davidson v. Bordeaux, 15 Mont. 245.

The Californian mining act provides that "Whenever mine owner, company or corporation shall have performed the labor and made the improvements required by law upon any mining claim, the person in whose behalf such labor was performed or improvements made, or some one in his behalf, shall within 30 days after the time limited for performing such labor or making such improvements make and have recorded by the county recorder, in books kept for that purpose in the county in which such mining claim is situated, an affidavit setting forth the value of labor or improvements made, the name of the claim, and the name of the owner or claimant of said claim at whose expense the same was made or performed. Such affidavit, or a copy thereof, duly certified by the county recorder, shall be prima facie evidence of the performance of such labor or the making of such improvements, or both." C. C., § 1426m.

7. Id.; Bismarck Co. v. No. Sunbeam Co., 14 Ida. 561; Murray Hill Co. v. Havenor, 24 Utah, 73; but see Harris v. Kellogg, ante.

§ 197. Non-performance. Failure to make the required annual expenditure does not of itself operate as a forfeiture of the claim. It only permits a relocation.¹ The law does not provide for a forfeiture merely because of such default.²

2. WHEN CLAIM FORFEITED. The location is forfeited only when the adverse rights of third parties attach thereto.³

3. CLAIM OF FORFEITURE. He who asserts the forfeiture must prove it⁴ by clear and convincing testimony.⁵

4. ADVERSE POSSESSION. Forcible or clandestine adverse possession⁶ or threats in the face of a bona fide attempt to do the work⁷ are not sufficient to defeat the right of the locator. But his claim to the property will be lost if not sustained by an action in ejectment brought within the period allowed by the statute of limitations.⁸

5. WHAT IS NOT EXCUSE FOR NON-PERFORMANCE. The mere pendency of patent proceedings before payment for the land,⁹ the obtaining of the receiver's receipt therein through fraud,¹⁰ the pendency of court proceedings,¹¹ or the rendition of a judgment therein¹² are not sufficient grounds for non-performance.

§ 198. Resumption of Labor. To "resume work" is to begin work in good faith and diligently prosecute the same to completion before re-location,¹ or afterwards, if it can be done peaceably.²

2. TIME FOR RESUMPTION. Work may be resumed at any time before all the acts requisite to a valid adverse re-location have been performed.³

3. EFFECT OF RESUMPTION. After a valid resumption the rights of the claimant are precisely what they were before default.⁴

4. WHAT IS NOT A RESUMPTION. Work is not "resumed" by the mere purchase of material nor the mere bringing of the same upon the claim.⁵

5. TRESPASS. An attempted adverse re-location of a mining claim during a temporary suspension of such work over Sunday is a trespass and no rights are initiated thereby.⁶

§ 199. Who May Make Expenditure. The annual expenditure may be made by the locator, his heirs, assigns or legal representatives¹ or by some one in privity therewith² or by one who has an equitable or beneficial interest.³ A stockholder in a corporation claiming the property,⁴ or a receiver appointed by a court⁵ are within the rule.

It is sufficient if the labor is gratuitously contributed,⁶ but labor done or improvements made by a trespasser or a stranger to the title will not inure to the benefit of the claimant.⁷

2. PRESUMPTION. In the absence of proof to the contrary it will be presumed that the labor or improvements made upon the claim were at the expense of its claimant.⁸

§ 200. Failure to Contribute. At the expiration of the calendar year the co-owners who have performed the work may demand contribution in writing or by publication from the co-owner who may have failed to pay or perform his share thereof.¹

2. EFFECT OF DEMAND. Upon the failure of the defaulting co-owner to meet the demand thus made upon him, within the time fixed by statute, his interest in the claim becomes the property of the co-owners who have given such notice.²

3. CHARACTER OF TITLE. The title accruing under these proceedings is much like that conveyed by a sheriff's deed after judgment and execution sale. Each results from a default in obligation followed by proceedings authorized by law.³ When rightfully given the notice is effective in cutting off all parties and the title thus kept free and clear from uncertainty and doubt.⁴

4. BASIS OF NOTICE. The question of the performance of assessment work is one of fact.⁵ If the work was not actually done or the improvements were not actually made the proceedings have no more effect or force than a forged deed.⁶ Hence, if the alleged default does not exist in fact the notice is ineffective.⁷

5. RIGHT TO GIVE NOTICE. The right to give the notice is limited to a co-owner who has performed the labor⁸ and does not extend to a person having an inchoate title⁹ nor to a stockholder of a corporation, as such.¹⁰

6. CONTENTS OF NOTICE. The notice should be addressed to the co-owner by name. If he be dead then to his heirs, not necessarily naming them, and to his administrator, although the latter may not have then been appointed. It should be addressed "to all whom it may concern."¹¹ It should state the descriptive name of the claim; the place of record; the amount expended upon each claim and each year for which the expenditure is claimed.¹²

7. PERSONAL SERVICE. Personal service cannot be had by sending through the mail a copy of the newspaper in which the notice is published and proving that the person to whom the notice is directed received such newspaper.¹³

8. PUBLICATION. The publication must be made in the newspaper published nearest the claim.¹⁴ If not, the reason therefor must be stated.¹⁵

2. Rev. Stats., § 2324; see Faubel v. McFarland, 144 Cal. 717.

The mining act of California provides that: "Whenever a co-owner or co-owners of a mining claim shall give to a delinquent co-owner or co-owners the notice in writing or notice by publication provided for in section 2324, Revised Statutes of the United States, an affidavit of the person giving such notice, stating the time, place, manner of service, and by whom and upon whom such service was made shall be attached to a true copy of such notice, and such notice and affidavit must be recorded in the office of the county recorder, in books kept for that purpose, in the county in which the claim is situated, within ninety days, after the giving of such notice; for the recording of which said recorder shall receive the same fees as are now allowed by law for recording deeds; or if such notice is given by publication in a newspaper, there shall be attached to a printed copy of such notice an affidavit of the printer or his foreman, or principal clerk of such paper, stating the date of the first, last and each insertion of such notice therein, and where the newspaper was published during that time, and the name of such newspaper. Such affidavit and notice shall be recorded as aforesaid, within one hundred and eighty days after the first publication thereof. The original of such notice and affidavit, or a duly certified copy of the record thereof, shall be prima facie evidence that the delinquent mentioned in section 2324 has failed or refused to contribute his proportion of the expenditure required by that section, and of the service of (by) publication of said notice; provided, the writing or affidavit hereinafter provided for is not of record. If such delinquent shall, within the ninety days required by section 2324, aforesaid, contribute to his co-owner or co-owners, his proportion of such expenditures, and also all costs of service of the notice required by this section, whether incurred for publication charges or otherwise, such co-owner or co-owners shall sign and deliver to the delinquent or delinquents a writing, stating that the delinquent or delinquents by name has within the time required by section 2324 aforesaid, contributed his share for the year —, upon the — mine, and further stating therein the district, county and state wherein the same is situated, and the book and page where the location notice is recorded, if said mine was located under the provisions of this act; such writing shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of said county, for which he shall receive the same fees as are now allowed by law for recording deeds. If such co-owner or co-owners shall fail to sign and deliver such writing to the delinquent or delinquents within twenty days after such contribution, the co-owner or co-owners so failing as aforesaid, shall be liable to the penalty of $100, to be recovered by any person for the use of the delinquent or delinquents in any court of competent jurisdiction. If such co-owner or co-owners fail to deliver such writing within said twenty days, the delinquent, with two disinterested persons having personal knowledge of such contribution, may make affidavit setting forth in what manner, the amount of, to whom, and upon what mine, such contribution was made. Such affidavit, or a record thereof, in the office of the county recorder, of the county in which such mine is situated, shall be prima facie evidence of such contribution." C. C., § 14260.

CHAPTER XXX.

PATENTS.

- § 206. In general—mining rights—agricultural patent—lode patent—placer patent—equivalent to patent—void patents—voidable patents.
- § 207. Legal title—equitable title—superiority of title—priority of title—evidence—facts settled by patent—presumptions.
- § 208. State legislation.

§ 206. In General. A patent is the deed of the government.¹ It is not a distinct grant, but is the consummation of a grant which had its inception in the location of the claim patented.² It carries with it the rights conferred by law. These cannot be enlarged nor diminished by reservation of the land department depending upon their fitness on its judgment.³ It affects no lien subsisting upon the property at the time of its issuance.⁴ There is no restriction as to the time when it shall be applied for⁵ nor as to the use⁶ or sale⁷ of the patented property.

2. MINING RIGHTS. It is not essential to the enjoyment of a mining claim.⁸ It confers no greater mining rights than those obtained by a valid location.⁹ It adds but little to the security of a party in continuous possession.¹⁰

3. AGRICULTURAL PATENT. An "agricultural" patent conveys the surface of the ground embraced therein and all that lies beneath it.¹¹ A mineral patent does not necessarily do so.^{11a}

4. LODE PATENT. A lode patent conveys the exclusive right to the surface within the patented ground; all veins, lodes and ledges having their top or apex therein together with the right to follow the same upon their dip into adjoining territory.¹² It does not convey the veins, lodes and ledges which may apex outside the boundaries of the patented area and which extend thereunder.¹³

5. PLACER PATENT. A placer patent conveys a qualified right to the surface described therein. It confers no extra-lateral rights.¹⁴ A patent for a lode claim may be carved out of land previously patented as placer ground.¹⁵

6. EQUIVALENT TO PATENT. An uncanceled certificate of purchase is equivalent to a patent as far as the rights of third parties are concerned.¹⁶

7. VOID PATENTS. Patents are void upon their face when issued without authority of law, prohibited by statute or for land reserved from sale or which has been dedicated to special purposes or the title to which had previously passed from the government.¹⁷

8. VOIDABLE PATENTS. A patent obtained by fraud of the rights of the government is subject to cancellation.¹⁸

2. EQUITABLE TITLE. The person named as the patentee is not, necessarily, the exclusive owner of the premises described in the patent.² He may be judicially declared to be a trustee³ unless suit be barred by limitation or laches.⁴ An adjudication against the government in a suit brought by it to annul a patent will not prevent the assertion of equitable rights in the land by a person not a party thereto.⁵

3. SUPERIORITY OF TITLE. In a controversy between a placer patentee and a lode patentee or between mineral patentees and townsite patentees the question of the superiority of title under different patents for the same land may arise. If the decision depends upon extrinsic facts, not shown by the patent, they may be established by proof thereof.⁶

4. PRIORITY OF TITLE. In controversies arising over the extra-lateral right priority of location and not of patent will prevail.⁷

5. EVIDENCE. When material to the issues raised and when not shown by the patent the date of the location may be established by evidence in the same manner as any other question of fact not settled by the patent itself.⁸

6. FACTS SETTLED BY PATENT. In its potency a patent is iron-clad against all mere speculative inferences.⁹ Unless set aside and annulled by direct proceedings by the government¹⁰ a patent, regular on its face, establishes the regularity of its issuance,¹¹ the fact that no adverse claim exists,¹² the nature of the land,¹³ and the exterior boundaries of the claim;¹⁴ if a lode patent, that the apex of a vein or lode exists within the claim but not that such vein or lode dips beyond the side lines nor that it is the apex of a vein or lode in dispute between adverse dip claimants.¹⁵

7. PRESUMPTIONS. The presumption is that a patent is valid,¹⁶ that the owner of a patented claim is in the possession thereof,¹⁷ that following a vein or

- § 216. The adverse suit—subsequent proceedings—duty of register—proceedings in general land office.

§ 211. In General. A patent for land claimed and located for valuable mineral deposit may be obtained only by a person, association or corporation authorized to locate a mining claim, and which may have complied with the terms of the mining act in respect to such location, or by the grantee of the locator.¹ That act provides what steps are necessary, and the land department regulates the proceedings for, and finally determines the right to the patent.²

2. MANNER OF OBTAINING PATENT. The manner of obtaining a patent for either a lode or a placer claim, whether for a single or for a consolidated claim of contiguous lode or lode and placer locations,³ that is, those which touch sides, lie alongside of, adjacent or adjoin,⁴ with or without a mill-site, or for a mill-site alone, is substantially similar.⁵

3. LIMITATIONS. Only a reasonable number of mill-sites can be patented in connection with a group of contiguous locations held under one ownership.⁶ An application for saline lands is limited to a single location of 20 acres.⁷

4. SURVEY OF CLAIMS. All lode claims, mill-sites⁸ and placer locations which have not been located according to the rectangular subdivisions of the public surveys must be officially surveyed.⁹

5. ALL PLACER. If the claim be all placer ground that fact must be stated in the application and be corroborated by the affidavit of two other persons.¹⁰

6. MIXED LODGE AND PLACER. If the ground contains both a lode and placer deposit such fact should be stated, together with a specific description of all known lodes situated within the boundaries of the placer location.¹¹

8. ADVERSE CLAIMANT. If claimed adversely the lode claimant should "adverse," not "protest" against the placer application.¹³

9. TIME TO APPLY FOR A PATENT. There is no limit to the time that a mining claim must be located before application for patent may be made. It may be located on one day and official survey applied for the next.¹⁴ But the record must precede the making of such survey,¹⁵ and the location be otherwise valid.¹⁶

10. PLACE OF FILING. The application for patent must be filed in the United States land office in the district in which the claim is wholly situated.¹⁷

the termination of adverse proceedings in the courts.¹⁸

12. COMPLETION. An application for patent is "completed" by filing the necessary proofs and making payment for the land.¹⁹

13. PAYMENT. Payment for the land embraced within the claim is at the rate of $5 an acre and each fractional part of an acre in a lode claim, whether within or without a placer claim, and $2.50 an acre and fractional part thereof for a placer location.²⁰

14. DIVERS PATENTS. Where several parties are found to be entitled to separate and different portions of the same claim each may pay for his part²¹ and receive a patent therefor in his own name, or if dead the patent will issue to his heirs.²²

15. ERRONEOUS DESCRIPTION. An erroneous description or calls in a patent must give way to the monuments of the claim as placed upon the ground.²³

§ 212. The Survey. An application for an official survey is a written unverified request, subscribed by the claimant, his agent or attorney. It is addressed to the surveyor-general for the district in which the claim may be situated.¹

2. ACCOMPANYING PAPERS. The request for a survey should be accompanied by a duly certified copy of the record of location² or a verified statement showing sufficient reason for its absence;³ also by a certificate of deposit sufficient to cover the cost of preliminary work in the office of said surveyor-general. This certificate should be issued by a United States sub-treasurer or United States depository.⁴

3. DEPUTY SURVEYOR. The request usually contains the name of the United States deputy mineral surveyor chosen by the applicant for making the survey.⁵ The deputy selected must have no interest in the claim.⁶ His charges must be met by the applicant.⁷

4. DUTIES OF DEPUTY. The deputy must make an actual survey of the claim.⁸ A delegation of his power may cause a rejection of the survey.⁹ He must not act as surveyor, notary public nor as attorney in the same case.¹⁰ He must transmit to the surveyor-general his field notes, a plat of the survey, affidavits of expenditure, and in placer applications a descriptive report.¹¹

5. ERRORS OF DEPUTY. Where errors occur in the survey through the carelessness or negligence of the deputy the claimant should apply for an amended survey.¹² The failure of the deputy to amend the survey within the time prescribed by the General

Land Office is ground for his suspension or removal from office.¹³

6. EXPENDITURE UPON THE CLAIM. It is usual but not essential for the surveyor-general to certify upon the plat of survey that the statutory expenditure precedent to patent has been made.¹⁴ This certificate is based upon the report of the deputy making the survey, but other or further evidence may be required.¹⁵

7. CONCLUSIVENESS OF CERTIFICATE. Unless attacked in the land department such certificate is conclusive of the facts therein stated.¹⁶

8. EQUIVALENT OF CERTIFICATE. Where a placer claim is located according to legal subdivisions an affidavit made by two or more persons having no interest in the property takes the place of such certificate. The affidavit must show that not less than $500 has been expended by the applicant or his grantors upon the claim. The work or improvements must be described in detail.¹⁷

9. BASIS OF DEPUTY'S REPORT. In other cases the deputy must report upon the value of the improvements and include in his estimate all actual expenditures and mining improvements made by the applicant or his grantors having a direct relation to the development of the claim.¹⁸

10. SUFFICIENT EXPENDITURE. The expenditure may be upon or underneath the surface.¹⁹ It may consist of "assessment work."²⁰

11. INSUFFICIENT EXPENDITURE. A quartz mill erected upon a lode claim²¹ or a lime-kiln erected upon a placer claim containing a deposit of limestone²² or buildings, machinery or roadways not associated with actual mining excavations not essential to the practical development of and not actually facilitating the extraction of mineral from the claim²³ will not be sufficient as a condition precedent to obtaining a patent.²⁴ Yet a mining dredge placed upon a dredge placer claim has been held to be sufficient.²⁵

12. PLAT AND FIELD NOTES. Two copies of the plat of survey and one copy of the field notes are furnished by the surveyor-general to the applicant. One plat, together with a notice of intention to apply for a patent, are to be posted upon the claim.²⁶ One plat, together with the field notes, are to be filed as a part of the application for patent.²⁷

§ 213. Posting Plat and Notice. Prior to filing the application papers the plat of survey, accompanied by a notice of intention to apply for patent, must be posted in a conspicuous place upon the claim sought to be patented.¹ This notice must give the date of its posting, the name of the claimant, the name of the claim, the number of the survey, the mining district, county and state, and the names of the adjoining and conflicting claims as shown by the plat of survey. This notice, as well as that published, and also the application for patent, must state in express terms the portions to be excluded, if any, as, land previously certified or patented to a state or a railroad company, although such conflict may not be shown upon said plat. The posting must be done in the presence of two credible witnesses² and the matter must be so placed as to be readily seen and examined.³ It must so remain during the 60 days' period of newspaper publication of the application.⁴

2. PROOF OF POSTING. The said witnesses must sign the said notice as such witnesses. They must also make affidavit of the fact of posting.⁵ This affidavit must contain a copy of said notice and state the date and particular place of posting.⁶ It must be made within the land district in which the property is situated.⁷

3. TIME FOR FILING. The affidavit of posting must be filed prior to or at the time of filing the application for patent.⁸

§ 214. Proceedings in the Local Land Office. Contemporaneously with the filing in the local land office of proof of the posting of the plat and notice upon the claim there should be filed the following documents: ¹

1. APPLICATION FOR PATENT. The application for patent must be under the oath of the claimant ² or his agent or attorney thereunto duly authorized.³ It must show the applicant's compliance with the law, his possessory right to the premises, the origin thereof and the basis of his claim for a patent.⁴

If a lode claim is the subject for patent, the vein or lode must be fully described.⁵

If the application be for a gold placer claim it must be shown that the claim is valuable for its deposits of placer gold.⁶ If for a placer deposit, other than gold, there must be a full description of the kind, nature, and extent of the deposit and why it is regarded as a valuable mineral claim.⁷

If the application covers saline (not borate nor nitrate) lands there must be a statement to the effect that the applicant has never, either as an individual or as a member of an association, applied for nor held other saline lands.⁸

If the application is made by a trustee he must fully disclose the nature of the trust; and furnish proof of the citizenship of himself and trustors.⁹

2. CITIZENSHIP. All applications for patent must show the citizenship of the applicant. This may be by affidavit, if the applicant be a natural person.¹⁰ The citizenship of a corporation is proved by the filing of a certified copy of its charter or articles of incorporation.¹¹

3. APPOINTMENT OF ATTORNEY. Application for patent may be made by an agent or attorney resident of the land district in which the application is made.¹² In the case of an individual applicant his agent's authority should be evidenced by letter of attorney. In the case of a corporation a copy of the resolution of the board of directors so appointing him should be certified to by its secretary under the seal of the corporation.

4. ABSTRACT OF TITLE. The abstract of title should contain a copy of the notice of location, certified by the legal custodian thereof. The abstract must be completed to the filing of the application.¹³

It may be certified either by the legal custodian of the records, or by a duly authorized abstracter of titles. The certificate of either must state that no conveyances affecting the title to the claim or claims appear of record other than those set forth.¹⁴

An abstracter of titles must further show that he is authorized to compile abstracts of title by the law of the state in which he resides.¹⁵

In the event that the mining records have been destroyed or lost, affidavit of such loss should be made. In such case secondary evidence of possessory title is received.¹⁶

5. SUBSEQUENT TRANSFERS. Transfers made subsequent to the filing of the application are not considered by the land department.¹⁷ In the event of the death of the applicant certificate and patent will nevertheless issue in his name.^{17a}

6. THE NOTICE. The applicant must furnish to the officers of the land office three copies of a notice; one for publication in the newspaper, one for posting in the land office during the period of such publication,¹⁸ and one for the use of the special agent who may be sent by the government to examine into the good faith of the application.¹⁹

7. CONTENTS OF NOTICE. This notice must embrace all the data given in the notice posted upon the claim. It should also state the connecting line as shown by the plat and field notes, and thence the boundaries of the claim by courses and distances.²⁰ It is sufficient if, taken as a whole, it designates the situation of the claim on the ground with substantial accuracy,²¹ although it may lack a required element in such a notice.²² The notice should not be so abbreviated as to curtail the description essential to a perfect notice.²³

8. INSUFFICIENT NOTICE. If the notice be insufficient the application for patent is defective. Thereupon, from that point, the proceedings must commence anew.²⁴

9. PUBLICATION OF NOTICE. The notice must be published in a newspaper designated by the register as the one nearest to the claim.²⁵ The newspaper must be one of established character and of general circulation.²⁶ The publication is made at the expense of the applicant.²⁷ The latter must file the agreement of the publisher of such newspaper holding the applicant alone responsible for the expense thereof.²⁸

10. CHARGES FOR PUBLICATION. The advertisement should be in the usual body type used for advertisements.²⁹ It must be inserted for sixty consecutive times in a daily newspaper or nine consecutive times in a weekly newspaper.³⁰ A daily newspaper may charge not more than $7 and a weekly newspaper not more than $5 for each ten lines of space occupied in each issue for the entire period required by law.³¹

11. PROOF OF PUBLICATION. After the statutory period for publication of the notice has expired the applicant must furnish from the office of publication an affidavit showing such publication.³² This must specifically state the first and last day thereof³³ and should have attached thereto a copy of the notice as published.

12. PROOF OF CONTINUOUS POSTING. The fact that the plat and notice remained posted upon the claim during the period of publication of the notice must be shown by the affidavit of the applicant or his duly authorized agent or attorney in fact, stating the dates.³⁴

13. STATEMENT OF FEES AND CHARGES. In the absence of an adverse claim the applicant may immediately after or at the time of filing proof of posting and of publication file a verified statement showing the charges and fees paid by him for the official survey, for publication, land office fees, and for the land embraced in the claim.³⁵

14. APPLICATION TO PURCHASE. A written application to purchase is then also filed with the local land officers. Thereupon, no objection appearing, the land may be paid for and the receiver's receipt issue.³⁶

15. RECEIVER'S RECEIPT. A subsisting receiver's receipt, if in the form of a certificate of purchase, is equivalent to a patent, as far as the rights of third parties are concerned,³⁷ but if it is merely in the form of a receipt for money paid by the applicant, it does not form a link in the chain of title.^{37a}

It may be cancelled by the land department on the ground of fraud or mistake,³⁸ due notice and opportunity to be heard having first been given to the applicant.³⁹

It is void if issued during the pendency of an adverse suit.⁴⁰

After its issuance annual expenditure upon the claim affected thereby is unnecessary; ⁴¹ unless the receipt was obtained by fraud.⁴²

16. TRANSMISSION OF RECORD. After the issuance of the receiver's receipt the local land officers forward the entire record to the General Land Office at Washington and a patent is issued thereon if the proceedings are found to be regular.⁴³

17. PROTEST. At any time prior to the actual issuance of the patent a protest may be filed by any person against the patenting of the claim as applied for.⁴⁴

18. GROUNDS OF PROTEST. A protest may be based upon any ground tending to show that the applicant has failed to comply with the law in any manner essential to a valid entry under the patent proceedings,⁴⁵ as, for instance, that the annual assessment work has not been performed, that the necessary $500 has not been expended in labor and improvements upon the claim, that the application was not made by the proper party, that the claimant was guilty of laches in making entry, that the second publication and posting of notice was not preceded by the filing of a new application for patent.^{45a} A protest may also be based upon the fact that the protestant is a claimant of a present joint interest in the premises sought to be patented; that he is excluded from the application to the prejudice of his rights therein.⁴⁶

19. WAIVER OF PROTEST. Unless the protest is based upon the latter ground a contract based upon a promise not to protest is illegal and void as against public policy.⁴⁷

20. DELAYED PATENT. Where suit is brought in protection of an equitable interest in the property and the land department is properly advised thereof

the issuance of the patent will be delayed until the respective rights of the parties have been settled by the court.⁴⁸ In other cases proceedings under the protest are confined to the land department,⁴⁹ generally without right of appeal.⁵⁰

21. CANCELLATION OF ENTRY. The cancellation of an entry is not necessarily fatal to the rights of the applicant.⁵¹

1. Rev. Stats., § 2325; Min. Reg., pars. 40 et seq. If the land is not open to entry or the application is subject to other objections, filing will be refused. § 215. Adverse Claim. An adverse claim is limited to the determination of surface conflicts arising from independent conflicting locations of the same ground by adverse mineral claimants,¹ or between a mineral claimant and the owner of a mill-site,² or, possibly, where the same land is claimed by different parties under different laws.³

2. DISTINCTION. An adverse claim affects only private rights⁴ and must be filed within the statutory time and be followed by suit.⁵

A protest may be filed at any time before patent issues⁶ by any person with or without interest in the property.⁷ Neither can, properly, be made the subject of the other,⁸ but a protest may, sometimes, have the effect of an "adverse."⁹ One who has lost his right to file an adverse claim may still file a protest.¹⁰ No equitable right is lost by failure to file an "adverse."¹¹

3. CONTENTS OF ADVERSE CLAIM. The adverse claim consists of a written statement verified by the person or persons making the same.¹² It must fully show the nature, boundaries and extent of the interference or conflict¹³ and be accompanied by a plat,¹⁴ not necessarily made by a deputy mineral surveyor.¹⁵ This plat must show the claimant's entire claim and its relative situation or position with the one against which he claims and the extent of the conflict unless both are described by legal subdivisions.¹⁶ There must also be filed therewith an abstract of title or other evidence of his right of possession.¹⁷

4. TIME FOR FILING ADVERSE. The adverse claim must be filed in the local land office in which the application is pending within the 60-days period of newspaper publication,¹⁸ or it is assumed that none exists.¹⁹

5. COMPUTATION OF TIME. Time is computed by excluding the first and including the last day of publication.²⁰ Whenever the latter day falls upon a Sunday, or other legal holiday, the filing should be not later than on the preceding day.²¹

6. NO EXTENSION OF TIME. The time for filing is not enlarged by the fact of excessive newspaper pub-

lication²² nor by a mis-statement therein as to the termination of such period.²³ A temporary suspension of business in the local land office may, however, operate as an extension of the time.²⁴

7. EFFECT OF FILING ADVERSE. When filed within the statutory period it suspends all proceedings in the land office except the newspaper publication, the posting upon the claim and the filing of proof thereof in such office.²⁵ This suspension continues until the controversy is finally determined by the courts, is adjusted between the parties thereto or the adverse is waived.²⁶

8. EVIDENCE OF WAIVER. The waiver of the adverse claim may be by failure to commence suit within the thirty-day period required by law, or documentary evidence of waiver or settlement may be filed.²⁷

9. APPEAL. An appeal lies from the rejection of an adverse claim in the local land office.²⁸ The pendency of such an appeal does not enlarge the time for filing the adverse suit.²⁹

CHAPTER XXXII.

TAXATION OF MINING CORPORATIONS.

- § 220. Federal taxation—returns—filing return—principal place of business—penalty.
- § 221. Commissioners' decisions—oil wells—dry wells—timber cutting—depreciation of minerals—exhaustion of deposits—unearned increment—market value of minerals—determination of value—unit value—record of estimates—compilation of values—immaterial question—excess in development—memorandum of exclusion—deduction for depreciation—royalties—leasehold investment—limited deduction—no deduction.
- § 222. Undetermined questions.
- § 223. State taxation—graduated tax—time of payment—forfeiture—revival—penalty—trustees—settlement of affairs—popular fallacy—consent not necessary.
- § 224. Recent legislation.

§ 220. Federal Taxation. Under the Act of August 5, 1909,¹ which has been declared to be constitutional by the United States Supreme Court,² a special excise-tax of one per centum upon the entire net income from all sources is imposed on mining (and other) corporations, etc., when the net income of a corporation or quasi corporation may have exceeded $5,000 during the preceding calendar year.

2. RETURNS. Every corporation, not specifically enumerated in the law as exempt, must make written return, signed and verified or affirmed by its president, vice-president, or other principal officer, and its treasurer, or assistant treasurer, although its net income during such year may not have exceeded said sum.

3. FILING RETURN. The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue, or deputy collector, for the district in which such corporation has its principal place of business, within the United States, before the first day of March succeeding such calendar year.

4. PRINCIPAL PLACE OF BUSINESS. "Principal place of business" is held to mean the principal office where the corporation keeps its books from which the required return is to be prepared and not the place where the operating plant is located.³

5. PENALTY. A failure to file such return within the statutory time with the proper officer subjects the defaulting corporation to a penalty of not less than $1,000 and not exceeding $10,000. A false or fraudulent return or statement is a misdemeanor.⁴

4. U. S. Comp. Stats. Supp., pp. 659-844-849, § 38.

§ 221. Commissioner's Decisions. Mining corporations may possibly be assisted in the labor of making due return under said law by the following excerpts from the decisions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue thereunder.¹

2. OIL WELLS. Cost of drilling new wells by oil corporations is considered betterments and additions to the capital assets of the corporation.²

3. DRY WELLS. The expense of drilling dry wells may, however, be charged to profit and loss.³

4. TIMBER CUTTING. The mere removal of timber by cutting from timber lands, unless the timber is otherwise disposed of through sales or plant operations, is considered simply a change in form of assets. If said timber is disposed of through sales or otherwise, it is to be accounted for in accordance with regulations governing disposition of capital and other assets.⁴

5. DEPRECIATION OF MINERALS. In case of corporations whose business consists in part or wholly of mining, producing, and disposing of deposits of nature (ores, coals, gas, petroleum and sundry minerals), the conduct of such business will be understood to comprehend two classes of gains or losses, viz.:

(a) The gain or loss resulting from the sale of capital assets, i. e. either the increment or the loss arising through possessing over a period of time the investment in the same.

(b) The trading or commercial gain attached to the conduct of the industry, the employment of working capital, the effort and risk involved.⁵

6. EXHAUSTION OF DEPOSITS. In the ascertainment of net income deduction will be allowed for depreciation arising from exhaustion of deposits of ore, mineral, etc., and for depreciation and obsolescence of improvements, in accordance with general regulations respecting depreciation allowances, on the basis of the original capital investment cost of the properties concerned to the company reporting.⁶

7. UNEARNED INCREMENT. A further deduction will also be allowed through not including the same at all in the item of gross income (item 3, Form 637), for the unearned increment represented in such properties as at January 1, 1909, which will be determined in general as follows:⁷

8. MARKET VALUE OF MINERALS. An estimate should be made as of January 1, 1909, of the fair market value at that date of the minerals, etc., in deposit. This estimate should be formed on the basis of the disposal value of the minerals in total and exclusive of value of improvements and development work. This valuation should also be reduced to a unit value—per ton, barrel, etc.⁸

9. DETERMINATION OF VALUE. Values as aforesaid should not be estimated on the basis of the assumed salable value of the output under current operative conditions, less the actual cost of production, because, as hereinbefore stated, the selling price under such conditions comprehends a profit both for carrying the investment in minerals, improvements, and working capital, and for conducting operations in respect of production and disposal of product. The value to be determined as stated must be on the basis of the salable value of the entire deposit of the aggregate units of minerals considered en bloc if disposed of in that form. Nor must such valuation comprehend any speculative value which might attach to a sale of the minerals en bloc, i. e. a value which might be obtained on the ground that the future would develop a much greater reserve of mineral deposits than were believed to exist at the time estimate as of January 1, 1909, was formed. Any value of this latter character would attach obviously to such additional reserves when developed in future.⁹

10. UNIT VALUE. The unit value as of January 1, 1909, ascertained as above outlined, would indicate the value to be attached at that date to the capital assets disposed of during any calendar year succeeding, and should be used in determining the unearned increment at January 1, 1909, which may be excluded entirely from the item of gross income, as before explained, in following manner, viz.:

Value at January 1, 1909, determined in manner outlined, of minerals, etc., which may be removed and disposed of in any year subsequent thereto, $.....

Less the following:

(a) Proportion of depreciation charge applying to exhaustion of minerals disposed of, ascertained as first explained herein on basis of original cost, $.....

(b) Royalty paid, if any, on minerals disposed of,

Balance, being unearned increment at January 1, 1909, to be excluded from gross-income item¹⁰.....

11. RECORD OF ESTIMATES. The precise detailed manner in which the estimate of value of minerals, etc., as at January 1, 1909, shall be formed, must naturally be determined upon by each corporation interested, but formal record of such estimates, together with all sustaining information, should be carefully filed so as to be readily accessible for reference.¹¹

12. COMPILATION OF VALUES. Values as stated, as determined at January 1, 1909, should be used in compilation in all subsequent years' excise-tax returns.¹²

13. IMMATERIAL QUESTION. The question as to whether it subsequently develops the property possessed a greater quantity of mineral, etc., reserve than was in the aggregate estimated as of January 1, 1909, is immaterial.¹³

14. EXCESS IN DEVELOPMENT. Any excess which may be developed will be considered as possessing the same value at January 1, 1909, as that which then may have been known to be in the property.¹⁴

15. MEMORANDUM OF EXCLUSION. Each excise-tax return (Form 637, which is furnished by the government), should be accompanied with memoranda setting forth the extent in amount of the exclusion made from the item gross income for unearned increment realized during the year, as above outlined.¹⁵

16. DEDUCTION FOR DEPRECIATION. As to the amount to be deducted for depreciation (paragraph 2 preceding) is to be formed on basis of the estimated reserve of minerals, etc., it follows that if it develops such estimate is understated, the cost investment in the capital asset may be wholly extinguished before all mineral reserves are removed. When this is reached, further deductions for exhaustion of minerals should be discontinued, but in such event, it will be noted, the allowance for unearned increment which is to be excluded entirely from gross income will be correspondingly increased.¹⁶

17. ROYALTIES. In case of corporations leasing mines and paying royalties on minerals, etc., removed, the royalties paid are to be treated as expenses and deducted in ascertaining net income, as provided in general regulations.¹⁷

18. LEASEHOLD INVESTMENT. Any leasehold investment which the operating corporation may have in such properties, either through a payment originally made for acquirement thereof or for improvements made upon the property, are to be accounted for in accordance with regulations governing depreciation allowances and disposition of capital assets.¹⁸

19. LIMITED DEDUCTION. In respect to properties of the character in question which may be acquired by a corporation after January 1, 1909, a deduction will be allowed only as to depreciation arising from exhaustion based on original cost.¹⁹

20. NO DEDUCTION. No exclusion from gross income can be made for unearned increment, as profit arising in sale of such capital assets applies wholly to the period subsequent to January 1, 1909.²⁰

§ 222. Undetermined Questions. The foregoing rulings of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue seem to be based upon conditions applicable only to mercantile corporations. Consequently the method outlined by him for the purpose of determining the gross income of mining corporations, particularly in the case of oil mining corporations, is exceedingly difficult if not impossible of achievement.

It is safe to say that under the conditions existing in oil mining no person can conscientiously make the full, and in some instances even partial return, as demanded by him.

This, particularly in relation to the oil "in deposit," the "fair market value" of the oil in situ, or when, or what portion of the expense of drilling a well shall be charged to profit and loss or not.

§ 223. State Taxation. In California a constitutional¹ annual license tax,² commencing on the first day of July and including the thirtieth day of June thereafter, is imposed on all corporations, not specially exempt by law,³ which are doing business within the state, whether incorporated under the laws of the state or not.⁴

2. GRADUATED TAX. The tax is based upon the amount of the authorized capital stock of the corporation.

3. TIME OF PAYMENT. The payment may be full or fractional, depending upon the time when the articles of incorporation are filed with the Secretary of State or the subsequent existence of the corporation. The tax becomes delinquent on the first day of September of each year.

4. FORFEITURE. If the tax and a penalty of $10 are not paid on or before the hour of 4 o'clock of the thirtieth day of November of each year the charter of a delinquent domestic corporation or the right to do business within the state of a delinquent foreign corporation is forfeited.⁵

5. REVIVAL. A corporation may be rehabilitated within the time allowed by law upon paying the license taxes and penalties that would have accrued if such corporation had not forfeited its charter or right to business within the state.^{5a}

6. PENALTY. It is unlawful for either a domestic or foreign corporation, which may not have paid the tax and penalty for such delinquency to thereafter transact any business within the state. Each and every person who exercises any of the powers of either class of corporations, so delinquent, is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 and not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than 50 days nor more than 500 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

7. TRUSTEES. The directors or managers in office of the affairs of a domestic corporation whose charter has been forfeited, or of a foreign corporation whose right to do business within the state has been forfeited are deemed to be the trustees of the corporation and stockholders or members thereof.⁶

8. SETTLEMENT OF AFFAIRS. Such trustees have full power to settle the affairs of the corporation and to maintain or defend any action or proceeding then pending, or to sue or be sued in any subsequent actions.

9. POPULAR FALLACY. It is popularly supposed that upon the forfeiture of the charter of a domestic corporation, owning real estate, the legal title to the latter immediately vests, by operation of law, in the stockholders of such corporation, as tenants in common. On the contrary, by operation of the provisions of the license tax law, the legal title then vests in the trustees, in office, with full power of disposition thereof; subject to the rights of the stockholders and creditors of such corporation.⁷

10. CONSENT NOT NECESSARY. Although it is sometimes demanded by the grantee, the consent of the stockholders, holding of record two thirds of the issued capital stock of a corporation, as required, generally, by the Civil Code⁸ is not essential in a deed from the trustees of the whole of the property. By reason of the forfeiture of its charter the corporation has ceased to exist, as such.⁹

§ 224. Recent Legislation. A late Californian statute provides for a tax upon the franchise of a corporation, domestic or foreign, when the latter is doing business within the state. The amount of the tax is a lien upon the corporate property. This tax is additional to the "License Tax"¹ but carries with it the same penalties as well as additional penalties in case of delinquency or the making of a false report.²

 graph in the plaintiff's complaint set forth, this defendant has not sufficient information upon which to base a belief and placing his denial upon that ground, defendant denies the same.

2. Defendant denies that any vein, lode or ledge of quartz rock in place, bearing.....or other precious metal, is found in the said.....lode mining claim that in its longitudinal course or strike apex of said vein, or any vein, lode or ledge lies throughout the entire length of the said mining claim inside the surface thereof extended downward vertically; that said vein, lode or ledge in its downward course departs from the perpendicular at an angle of about.....degrees from the horizontal, or at an angle from the horizontal in a.....direction, of said vein, lode or ledge, or any vein, lode or ledge lying within the said pretended.....lode min-claim, or that by reason thereof, or for any reason, the plaintiff is now, or at any time mentioned in the possession of any vein, lode or ledge, or so much thereof as the top or apex thereof lies inside of the said surface boundaries of the said pretended.....

Mining District, in the County of....., in the State last aforesaid.

2. That the plaintiff now is and during all the time for more than.....years, last past, has been the owner of and entitled to the possession of that certain lode mining claim known as and called..... mining claim, situated in the.....Mining District, in the County of....., State of....., and more particularly described as follows,

That the same, in its longitudinal course or strike passes into the said.....lode mining claim through the.....end line thereof and extends (through) the said mining claim in a.....direction, and lengthwise of said mining claim (and passes out of said mining claim through the.....end line thereof) and that the top or apex of said vein, lode or ledge lies (throughout the entire length) of said mining claim inside the surface lines thereof, as aforesaid, extended downward vertically. That said vein, lode or ledge, in its downward course departs from a perpendicular at an angle of about degrees from the horizontal, said departure from a perpendicular being in a direction; and that the general strike or course of said vein, lode or ledge is nearly, or quite, coincident with the surface side lines of the said mining claim; and that by reason of the foregoing the plaintiff is now, and at all times hereinafter mentioned, has been the owner of, and entitled to the exclusive possession of the said vein, lode or ledge, and so much of the said vein, lode or ledge as the top or apex whereof lies inside of said surface boundaries as aforesaid, throughout its entire depth; and that the plaintiff has, at all times, been in possession of said mining claim and said vein, lode or ledge, as above described, save and except as it has been ousted and ejected by the defendant, as hereinafter alleged.

4. tends outside of and to the.....of the vertical side line of said mining claim and which lies between vertical planes drawn downward through the end lines of said mining claim, so continued in their own direction that the same will intersect said exterior portions of said vein, lode or ledge and being a part of the same vein, lode or ledge which has its top or apex within such surface lines of said mining claim, aforesaid, and ousted and ejected the plaintiff therefrom, and wrongfully took and carried away therefrom and converted to his own use large and valuable quantities of the ores in the said vein, lode or ledge contained, the property of the plaintiff, of the value of.....dollars, and has at all times since wrongfully withheld, and does now wrongfully withhold from the plaintiff the possession of the said vein, lode or ledge so lying to the.....of said.....side line of said.....mining claim and between the planes drawn through the end lines of said mining claim, as aforesaid, to the great damage of the plaintiff in the sum of.....dollars.

Wherefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant

1. For the recovery of the possession of said portion of said vein, lode or ledge so as aforesaid wrongfully withheld by the defendant.

COMPLAINT—UNDERGROUND TRESPASS. (In equity.)

Form No. 25.

(Title of court and cause.)

1. That the defendant, the said.....Mining Company, is, and was at all the times hereinafter mentioned, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of....., having its principal place of business at.....in said State and engaged in the business of mining at.....Mining District, in the County of....., and State aforesaid.

2. That on the.....day of....., 19..., plaintiff was and ever since has been, and now is, the owner and possessed and entitled to the possession of that certain parcel of mining ground situate and being in the.....Mining District, in the County of....., and State of....., consisting of those two certain contiguous and adjoining pieces of mining ground, the one known as.....Mining Claim and also known as.....Lode Claim and in the system of United States surveys for patents for mineral lands from the Government of the United States designated as Survey No....., and also so designated in a certificate of purchase therefor from the United States of America, which was issued on the.....day of....., 19..., to the plaintiff by the Receiver of the United States Land Office at....., in the State of....., and the other known as.....Mining Claim, and described as follows, to-wit:

together with all the veins, lodes, ledges, dips, deposits and bodies of ore, rock and earth bearing..... and..... and other precious metals.

3. That said mining claim and ground lastly herebefore mentioned adjoins said.....Mining Claim or ground on the.....and that said two lode claims have been worked by plaintiff since about ....., and form and constitute but one parcel of mining ground and one property.

4. That said mining ground contains valuable mineral deposits, lodes, ledges, dips, deposits and veins, rock and earth bearing.....and.....and other precious metals; and the said mineral deposits, lodes, ledges, dips, deposits and veins constitute the sole value of said mining ground.

5. That plaintiff was at all the times hereinafter mentioned, and now is engaged in mining and developing the said mining ground, lands and premises, and extracting therefrom the said ores and minerals; and constructed at great expense, and has and had thereon mines, drifts, cuts, excavations and other works necessary for and adapted to the work of mining and developing the said mining ground.

6. That heretofore, and on or about the..... day of....., 19.., the said defendant, saidMining Company, by itself and its agents, servants and employees, forcibly and wilfully, against the will and without the consent of the plaintiff entered into and upon the said mining ground hereinbefore described, and commenced to, and then and thereafter, for the purpose of mining the said ground and extracting the ores therefrom, cut, made and excavated certain drifts and openings into and under and upon the said mining ground, and invaded the drifts, excavations and mines made thereon by the plaintiff, and ever since last mentioned date has intruded and trespassed upon the said mining ground, drifts, excavations and mines of the plaintiff; and has dug up and extracted, taken out of and removed from said mining ground and converted to its own use large quantities of the mineral deposits, earth and ores bearing and other precious metals and the mineral deposits therein of the value of.....dollars, and upwards, and will thereby take from the said mining ground the entire value thereof, to the great and irreparable injury of the plaintiff.

8. That unless the said defendant, its agents, servants and employees are restrained and enjoined from intruding and trespassing upon the said mining ground, and making cuts, openings and excavations therein and digging up, extracting, removing and carrying away from said mining ground said mineral deposits, rock, ores and earth bearing.....andand other precious metals, the value and substance of said mining ground will be destroyed, and this plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays that this Honorable Court grant to him a writ of injunction pendente lite issuing out of and in accordance with the rules and practice of this Honorable Court to be directed to the said defendant.....Mining Company, to restrain it, and its agents, servants, employees and confederates, from entering into or upon the mine, or mines, mining ground, lode, dips, drifts, cuts, excavations or works, or upon any part of the land, property and premises hereinbefore particularly described, and from working or mining thereon, or making or continuing any cut, opening or excavation on or in said mining ground, or upon or in any part thereof, or digging up, extracting, or removing from said mining ground, or any part thereof, any mineral, mineral deposit, ore, rock or earth, or any mineral substance whatever, whether the same be in place, or heretofore severed from the freehold, and from in any manner hindering or obstructing plaintiff, or his agents, servants or employees, or any, or either of them, in working or mining upon said premises, and from in any manner interfering with the said premises, or with anything thereon; as, also, a restraining order to the same effect until an application for such an injunction

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW.

Form No. 26.

(Precedent in Harrington v. Chambers, 3 Utah, 94.)

(Title of court and cause.)

This cause came on regularly for trial on the..... day of....., 19.., before the above entitled court, sitting without a jury.

....., Esq., appeared as counsel for the plaintiff, and, Esqs., for the defendant.

And the court having heard proof of the facts alleged in the complaint and other pleadings on file herein, and the arguments of the respective counsel herein, and this action having been submitted to the court for its decision, the court now finds the following facts:

Findings of fact.

(1) That the locators of the..... mining claim, mentioned in the complaint, at the time of the location of said claim, viz., on the day of, 19.., at the "discovery point" of said claim, discovered a mineral-bearing vein or lode and the claim was duly recorded on the..... day of, 19..

(2) That soon after said location, to wit, in the month of....., 19.., the locators of said mining claim marked on the ground the boundaries of said claim by setting stakes at the corners thereof.

(3) That prior to theday of....., 19.., and within a year preceding that time, the owners of said claim performed labor and made improvements thereon of.....dollars in value.

(4) That each year thereafter, up to....., 19.., work of the value of.....dollars, was done on said claim by the owners thereof.

(5) That during the year beginning on the..... day of, 19.., the owners of the..... claim were also the owners of two certain claims called respectively the.....and....., the adjoining the and the adjoining the..... mining claim—and that with a view to the future working and development of all three of said claims, the owners thereof located what is called the “main shaft,” in the surface ground; that such shaft is in such proximity to said..... mining claim that work in it has a tendency to develop said claim and said shaft was located and intended for the purpose of developing all of said claims. That during said last-named year work was prosecuted in said shaft, and by improvements made thereat, exceeding in value..... dollars, and of not less than.....dollars in value.

No work was done in said year after.....in 19.., and prior to the.....day of....., 19.., in the surface ground, or within its limits, by the owners thereof.

The court also finds that the..... mining claim, on application for patent, was entered and paid for at the United States Land Office at..... City,, no protest having been made prior to, 19.., but no patent for said claim has yet been issued.

(6) That at the time this action was commenced the plaintiffs were in possession of said..... mining claim; that by the admission of the defendants, on the trial, the plaintiffs at the commencement of this action had the title to said mining claim by regular conveyances from the locators; that the..... Mining Company was organized as a corporation on the day of, 19.., and on or about the day of, 19.., received a conveyance from said plaintiffs of said mining claim, and possession thereof, and this action is prosecuted in the interests and for the benefit of said corporation.

(7) Before and at the commencement of this action the defendants claimed an interest in only a part of the premises embraced in said..... mining claim, and claimed said interest adverse to said plaintiffs; that said adverse consists of, and was based solely on, an alleged mineral location made in....., 19.., called the mining claim, which embraced a part of said mining claim, described in the complaint.

(8) On the day of, 19.., and entered upon the ground described in the pleadings as the..... mining claim, and marked the boundaries as set forth in the answer, and posted at the discovery point on a vein of mineral-bearing rock in place, by them opened and discovered, a notice of said claim, which notice described the said claim set forth in the answer, and afterwards, on the day of, 19.., filed a copy of said notice as posted for record, in the office of the recorder of the..... mining district in the County of, State of; which notice was recorded as follows:

That afterwards, and on or about the.....day of, 19.., the attention of the persons who had recorded the said notice was called to the discrepancy between the record and the notice filed for record, said person having in the meantime ceased to be recorder of the district, and thereupon said person changed said record to correspond to the notice filed.

(9) That the locators of the said.....claim, and their grantees claiming under said location, have in each year since done work, and made improvements thereon of the value of more thandollars, and have been in the continuous possession of said improvements.

(10) That the defendants, by conveyances from the locators and their immediate grantees, at the time of the commencement of this action, have acquired, and still have the record title to said claim, and own all the title and interest therein which could be acquired from said locators, and by subsequent compliance with mining laws and customs.

(11) The discovery point of the.....claim, and the point where the location point was posted is within the bounds of the.....mining claim.

(12) That on the day of....., 19.., claiming the mining claim was forfeited for want of work and improvements, located a mining claim called the....., embracing the premises in dispute in this action, and all that part of the mining claim lying of the end line of the claim.

(13) Said, on said day, posted a written notice of location on a lode of rock bearing found within said claim, and at the discovery point. Said notice described the claim by reference to natural objects and permanent monuments, so it could be identified, and described it by metes and bounds, and said notice also contained the name of the locator and date of location.

(14) Said on the day of, 19..., filed a copy of said notice of location in the office of the recorder of said Mining District, for record, where the same was duly recorded.

(15) Said, and his grantee of said claim, have in each year since said location, done work and made improvements thereon of the value of more than dollars.

(16) On the day of, 19..., the said conveyed said claim to the defendants, who have since owned the same.

As conclusions of law from the foregoing facts, the court now hereby finds and decides:

Conclusions of law.

(1) That the plaintiffs at the commencement of this action were the owners and in the possession of the mining claim called the mining claim, which was then, and still is, a valid mining claim, embracing the premises described in the complaint; subject only to the paramount title of the United States; that the same is now owned and held by the Mining Company by like valid title derived from the plaintiffs during the pendency of this action.

(2) That the defendants have no title or interest in said premises, and had none at the time this action was commenced.

(3) That said plaintiffs or their grantees are entitled to judgments or decree declaring and confirming their title to said mining claim, and the premises embraced therein, and that the defendants have no right, title, or interest in said premises, or any part thereof, and also for costs of suit.

And judgment is hereby ordered to be entered accordingly.

INSTRUCTIONS. (Annual Expenditure.)

Form No. 27.

(Precedent in Big 3 Co. v. Hamilton, 157 Cal. 130.)

You are instructed that the laws of the United States require one hundred dollars' worth of work or improvements annually to be performed or made on a mining claim. Such work or improvements so required by the laws of the United States may be done or made within the boundaries of such claim, or such work may be done outside the boundaries of such claim on one of a group of claims adjoining each other and owned by the same party, if done in pursuance of a system of development and if the same has a tendency to benefit or develop each claim in the group. Work done on one of a group of mining claims which has a tendency to develop or benefit all of the claims in the said group inures to the benefit of each and all of said claims, even though the system adopted may not be the best that could have been devised under the circumstances. Improvements made, such as the construction of roads, mills or mining machinery for the working and operation of an entire group owned by one party, and which said improvements tend to the benefit of all the claims in said group even though such improvements be made outside the lines of any of such claims. If you believe that in the year.....there was more than.....dollars worth of work done within the boundaries of mining claim by the in this case or any one acting under the.....and with the.....consent, and that such work was done in pursuance of a system that tended to the development of all of the claims claimed by the..... herein in.....complaint, and tended to the development and benefit of all such claims, then the work so performed was sufficient to prevent a forfeiture of any of said claims on account of the annual labor or improvement requirements of the year..... You are further instructed that even though the work done on said claim in was not of the value of dollars, still if you believe from the evidence that improvements were made consisting of and of as great a value as dollars, which taken in connection with such work as you find to have been done on the claim, under such conditions as those above stated, would equal or exceed the sum of dollars, and that such improvements were of such a character, and so constructed as to benefit and tend to the development of all of said claims and each of them, then the court instructs you that upon those facts existing there was no forfeiture of such claims or any of them, on account of the said annual labor or improvement requirements. It is not necessary that a party in doing the work on a claim or on a system for the benefit of all claims held by such party and contiguous to each other shall be the same specifically as annual labor or assessment work; but if such work is done in good faith, and is equal in amount to the work required to be done by the act of Congress then the same will be sufficient to prevent a forfeiture.

INSTRUCTIONS. (Marking Boundaries.)

Form No. 28.

(Precedent in Willeford v. Bell (Cal.), 49 Pac. 6.)

The jury are instructed by the court that the mining claim of the, in order to be valid, must have been distinctly marked upon the ground, so that its boundaries could be readily traced, on or before the day of, 19... The law requires this marking of the claim upon the ground to be done in such manner that any person of reasonable intelligence may go upon the ground and readily trace the claim out, and readily find the boundaries and limits of the claim, without instructions, advice, or information from any one or thing other than the marking upon the ground; and it is not necessary nor required that such person shall have a copy of the notice of location or necessarily use it in the tracing the boundaries of the claim, but where such notice is posted upon the claim, and constitutes a part of the marking of the claim upon the ground, it may be used as a part of the means by which the boundaries of the claim can be traced.

And if you believe from the evidence that the, prior to the day of, 19.., failed to so mark his claim upon the ground so that any person of reasonable intelligence could go upon the ground, either with or without a copy of the notice of location and readily trace the claim out, and find its boundaries and limits your verdict should be that the claim was not so marked on the ground that its boundaries could be readily traced.

You are instructed that a claim may be marked upon the ground by stakes or other permanent monuments, but you are instructed that the law requires a claim to be so distinctly marked upon the ground that its boundaries can be readily traced. The requirements of the statute in this respect are not necessarily fulfilled by merely setting stakes at each of the corners of the claim, and at the center of the end lines, unless the topography of the ground and the surrounding conditions are such that a person accustomed to tracing lines of mining claims can, after reading a description of the claim in the posted or recorded notice of location or upon the stakes, by a reasonable and bona fide effort to do so, find all the stakes and thereby readily trace the boundaries; where the country is broken, or the view from one stake or monument to another is obstructed by intervening timber or brush, it may be necessary to blaze trees along the line, or cut away the brush, or set more stakes at such distances, that they may be seen from one to the other, in a way to indicate the lines so that the boundaries can be readily traced. But it is not for the court to say what is a sufficient marking of the boundaries. It is your duty to determine, from all the evidence in the case and from the topography of the ground in question, whether or not a sufficient marking of the boundaries of the claim by the.....was made so that the same could be readily traced by a person making a reasonable effort to do so. If you find from the evidence in this case that this location was so definitely marked on the ground by the.....or.....agents that its boundaries could be readily traced, then, I instruct you that, the.....ha...complied with this requirement of the law. If not, then I instruct you that.....ha...failed in one of the essentials of a valid.....mining location, and that your verdict must be for the.....

INSTRUCTIONS. (Discovery—Lode.)

Form No. 29.

(Precedent in Larkin v. Upton, 144 U. S. 19.)

The apex of a vein or lode is the highest point thereof, and may be at the surface of the ground or at a point below the surface. When the vein or lode does not crop out, but is what is called a blind vein or lode, the apex thereof would necessarily be below the surface of the ground; and in this case you are instructed that if the locators of the lode vein, at the time of the location thereof, found, or if from the work done by others prior thereto, they could see, at any point within the limits of said location, a lode or vein the top or apex of which was within the said lines of their location, then, in such case, they made a discovery of a lode or vein such as the law requires to be made to entitle them to locate the ground, and it is wholly immaterial as to the amount or quantity of such a vein or lode which may have been found within the limits of their said location; any amount of it would suffice, however small, either as to the amount of the vein or its apex within the limits of the said location.

Note.—The apex of a vein is not necessarily a point, but often a line of great length. Larkin v. Upton, ante.

INSTRUCTIONS. (Discovery—Placer.)(Precedent in Charlton v. Kelly, 156 Fed. 433.)

If you shall find and believe from the evidence in this case that found the colors and particles of gold so testified to by in the on the surface of the ground in dispute then you should determine whether or not such finding was of sufficient character and found in such places, and under such conditions as to constitute a discovery of mineral as will satisfy the law. You are instructed that mere indications, however strong, are not sufficient to answer the requirement of the statute.

INSTRUCTIONS. (End Lines.)

Form No. 31.

(Precedent in Cheesman v. Hart, 42 Fed. 98.)

The court further charges the jury at the instance of the plaintiffs that end lines as described in the location certificate are not necessarily in law the end lines, unless they actually cross the actual outcrop of the vein.

The statute of the United States also requires that the end lines of the claim should be parallel with each other, and in asserting a right to follow the vein on its dip without the side lines of their location into plaintiff's location the defendants must show the outcrop or apex of such vein to be in their own location throughout the ground in controversy, being the extent of the locations of plaintiffs and defendants parallel to each other.

INSTRUCTIONS. (Extra-lateral right.)

(Precedent in Flagstaff Co. v. Tarbet, 98 U. S. 463.)

If you find that during the time mentioned in the complaint, to-wit: from to, (being a period of years, months, and days), was in possession of mining claim, holding the same in accordance with the mining laws and the customs of the miners of the mining district and that the apex and course of the vein in dispute is within such surface—then, as against one subsequently entering, he is deemed to be possessed of the land within his boundaries to any depth, and also of the vein in the surface to any depth on its dip, though the vein in its dip downward passes the side line of the surface boundary and extends beneath other and adjoining lands, and a trespass upon such part of the vein on its dip, though beyond the side surface line, is unlawful to the same extent as a trespass on the vein inside of the surface boundary. This possession of the vein outside of the surface line, on its dip is limited in two ways—by the length of the course of the vein within the surface; and by an extension of the end lines of the surface claim vertically, and in their own direction, so as to intersect the vein on its dip, and the right of a possessor to recover for trespass on the vein is subject to only these restrictions.

INSTRUCTIONS. (Forfeiture.)

Form No. 33.

(Precedent in Big 3 Mg. Co. v. Hamilton, 157 Cal. 130.)

You are instructed that the law requires clear and convincing evidence to support the forfeiture of a claim duly located and worked in good faith and if the evidence does not satisfy you by a clear preponderance thereof that the plaintiff failed to perform the necessary work, then it follows that the plaintiff did not forfeit the said claim.

Form No. 40.

This Indenture, made this day of, 191.., by and between....., a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of, hereinafter called the lessor, and the, a corporation, hereinafter called the lessee, Witnesseth: That for and in consideration of the covenants and agreements hereinafter expressed and by the lessee to be fully kept and performed, the lessor has demised and leased, and does hereby demise and lease unto the said lessee, all that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the county of, State of, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit: (Here insert description), containing acres, more or less.

The lessor has furthermore granted, demised and leased, and by these presents does grant, demise and lease unto the said lessee, all the oil, gas, hydro-carbons, water and minerals of every kind and character whatsoever, in and under said lands, and the right to sever and remove the same; also the right to construct and maintain telegraph, telephone, pipe lines and roadways from adjoining lands on or across the demised premises; the right to construct and maintain buildings, derricks, tanks and other structures used or necessary for the boring for, excavating, preserving and handling oil, gas, hydro-carbons, water and other minerals produced on the demised premises.

Note.—For form of oil leases used in Indiana, Kansas, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Texas, see Donahue Pet. & Gas., §§ 28-34; Thornton's Oil and Gas, appendix.

The said lessee agrees to commence the erection of a standard or rotary drilling rig on said lands withindays from the date hereof, and carry forward the work of completing the same with all reasonable despatch, working continuously with a proper force of men for at least hours every day, except Sundays and holidays, and unless prevented by strikes, the elements, or other causes beyond the control of the lessee.

Within days from the completion of said rig the said lessee agrees to commence the actual work of drilling for oil, and thereafter shall work continuously twenty-four hours each day, unless prevented by strikes, the elements, unavoidable accidents or other causes beyond the control of the lessee, until a depth of feet is reached, or until oil is discovered in paying quantities at a lesser depth. Oil in paying quantities is hereby defined as the production of not less than barrels during twenty-four hours continuous pumping.

In drilling said wells the lessee agrees to proceed in a workmanlike manner in accordance with the best practice of the Field, properly casing said well, and shutting off therefrom any water encountered; to comply with all statutes of the United States, the State of California and all local ordinances.

Upon the discovery of oil in paying quantities, as herein defined, the lessee shall during each calendar year thereafter commence and complete.....wells to a depth of.....feet, or until oil is discovered in paying quantities at a lesser depth, until a total of wells has been drilled. The number of wells herein specified shall not prevent the lessee from drilling as many more wells as it may desire.

Upon the completion of a well the lessee shall use diligence and care to keep the same in good condition, and free from sand, and if the well does not flow freely, shall pump it so that the well shall produce at all times to its maximum capacity. No well producing less than barrels a day, however, need be pumped. The lessee agrees to deliver to the lessor.....of all oil, gas, water or other minerals produced from said land over and above what is necessary for actual operation of the property. The lessor shall have the option to take said royalty in kind or in money, but said election when exercised shall be changed not oftener than once every.....months. In the event of the lessor taking the royalty in kind the same shall be delivered as produced into the lessor's tanks erected on the demised land by lessor for that purpose. In the event of the lessor electing to take such royalty in money, the lessee shall pay to the lessor on theday of each and every month the market value of all royalty produced during the preceding calendar month.

The lessee agrees to protect said lands against all claims of labor and material men, and to see that the notices which may be posted by the lessor to protect said land from such liens are kept in place; to pay all taxes and assessments levied on said lands and improvements; provided, however, that should any royalty or tax on production be demanded by the United States, the lessor shall pay the royalty or tax on the royalty oil, and the lessee shall pay the tax on its oil.

The lessee further agrees to keep careful and accurate logs of all wells drilled, showing the width, depth and character of the various strata encountered, and to give copies thereof and maps of the various strata to the lessor if required. To keep careful and accurate books of account showing production, and to keep all samples or run tags on file which shall at all reasonable times or time be open to the inspection of the lessor.

It is understood and agreed that lessor claims said land under mining locations, and does not warrant or guarantee the title against the claims of the United States or rulings of the land department. In the event that any title to said land shall be vested in the lessee by the United States, the lessee shall nevertheless hold the same, subject to all the terms and conditions hereof.

The lessor hereby extends to the lessee the privilege of purchasing said lands at any time within one year from the date hereof for.....dollars.

Time and each and every stipulation of this agreement is of the essence hereof, and in the event of the failure to perform any of the terms hereof, this lease shall at once become null and void at the option of the lessor.

Upon the expiration of the term hereof, or sooner termination of this lease, the lessee shall quietly and peaceably surrender possession thereof to the lessor. Lessee shall have.....days to remove all property placed on the land by it, excepting derricks and casings in the wells, but the lessor shall have the right to purchase the whole or any part of such property during such.....days by paying.....% of the first cost thereof on the land.

In the event of any action at law being necessary to recover possession of said land, or any of the royalties hereunder, the lessee shall pay to lessor all costs and a reasonable attorney's fee to be fixed by the court in said action, which costs and fee shall be a lien on the property of the lessee.

This agreement shall run to and be binding upon the successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused their respective corporate names and seals to be hereto affixed by their respective presidents and secretaries thereunto duly authorized by resolution of their respective boards of directors, the day and year first above written.

That the notice of application for patent for said mining claim was published in a weekly newspaper incalled the....., a newspaper of small circulation and read by few persons. That said notice, as published, was defective in this: That it failed to give the connecting line of said mining claim with a corner of the public surveys or a United States mineral monument. That it failed to give the names of the adjoining and conflicting claims, or the number of the survey thereof.

That the expenditures in labor or improvements upon the said lodes are insufficient in amount and kind for patent purposes.

That said....., said applicant for patent, is seeking by means of fraud, deceit and misrepresentation to acquire a patent for the lands embraced in said mining claim in that such lands are not valuable for minerals and the said alleged mining claims were not located for mining purposes but for the purpose of controlling, so far as possible, the use of a portion of the.....Trail leading from the terminus of the line of railroad of this protestant down to the walls of the.....Cañon of the..... River to said river, and thereby placing himself in a position either to prevent the public from using said portion or to pay to said.....such sums of money as he shall see fit to exact for the privilege of using said trail.

That the boundaries of the said locations were so fixed upon the face of the earth as to include that portion of said trail known as the....., which, because of the topography of the ground traversed by it, is located upon the only practicable and feasible route for a trail from the terminus of the protestant's line of railroad to the.....River, and that as far as can be determined from an inspection of the surface of the ground and the small amount of excavation thereon, the course of the said alleged mining claims was determined by the course of the said portion of said trail rather than by the course of any lode or mineral-bearing vein.

That the lands embraced in the so-called..... and.....mill-sites are not now and never have been used or occupied for either mining or milling purposes, and that said.....is seeking to acquire patent to said mill-sites and each of them by means of fraud, misrepresentation and deceit and as part of a scheme devised by him for acquiring control of saidTrail and the waters flowing in what is known as.....Creek.

That in carrying out said fraudulent scheme and purpose said.....made pretended locations of lodes and mill-sites along and across said trail from its head on the rim near the terminus of the line of railroad of this protestant, to the foot of said trail at the.....River, all in the.....Cañon of theRiver, so located as to include the greatest possible portion of said trail.

That the.....Cañon of the.....River is one of the great natural wonders of the world, is visited by large numbers of people from all parts of the world, practically all of whom travel over the line of railroad of this protestant and the most of whom make the trip over said trail down to said river.

That said trail and said alleged mining claim and mill-sites are within the.....Forest Reserve.

That this protest is made for the purpose of preventing the consummation of what protestant verily believes to be a fraudulent scheme to obtain patents for lands within a forest reserve regardless of their value for mining uses and to secure control of the waters flowing in what are known as.....Creeks; and also for the purpose of securing to the public and particularly to all persons who travel upon the protestant's line of railroad with the intention of visiting the.....Cañon of the.....River the right freely and unrestrictedly to travel upon and over said trail down into said cañon.

Wherefore, protestant respectfully prays that a hearing be ordered to allow it to prove the foregoing allegations, protect its legal rights, and also to show cause why said application for patent should be cancelled.

ADDENDUM

ADDENDUM

(Recent cases affecting data of certain sections.)

§ 3. Alaska. Section 2324 of the Revised Statutes in relation to the resumption of annual labor upon a mining claim is not applicable to Alaska. Such work, in that district, must be done within the year; otherwise the claim is forfeited and subject to adverse location, notwithstanding resumption is attempted immediately after the expiration of such year.¹

1. Thatcher v. Brown, C. C. A. 9th Cir. Opinion filed Oct. 2, 1911, (not yet published).

§ 19. Possessory Actions. The plaintiff may elect whether an action for trespass and appropriation of mineral shall be of a local or transitory nature.¹

1. Pioneer Mining Co. v. Mitchell, C. C. A. 9th Cir. Opinion filed Oct. 2, 1911, (not yet published).

§ 23. Disposal of the Public Lands. One who would attack a patent or decision of the land department for a mistake of fact must plead and prove the evidence before the department from which the mistake resulted, the particular mistake that was made, the way in which it occurred, and the fact that, if it had not been made, the decision would have been otherwise and the patent would not have issued to the patentee, before any court can enter upon the consideration of the original issue of fact determined by the department.¹

A. MISTAKE OF LAW. While decisions of the land department on matters of law are not binding on the

1. Ross v. Wright, (Okla.) 116 Pac. 949; see § 82, ante.

2. Id.

§ 25. Hearings. The mere fact that a tract of land adjoins the end of a patented lode claim will not prevent its appropriation under the non-mineral public land laws.¹

A. CHARACTER OF PROOF. In such a case a higher degree of proof is necessary to establish its non-mineral character than is ordinarily required.²

1. Anna Dillon, 40 L. D. 84.

2. Id.; see § 26, ante.

§ 29. Railroad Lands. Mineral lands situated within the limits of railroad grants are subject to mineral location up to the time of the issuance of the patent to the railroad company.¹

A. VALIDITY OF LOCATION. The moment a locator has discovered a valuable mineral deposit on the land and perfected his location in accordance with law, the power of the United States government to deprive him of the exclusive right to the possession and enjoyment of the located claim is gone; the land has become known mineral land and is exempt from grant to another.²

B. EFFECT OF PATENT. A patent of the United States cannot, any more than a deed of an individual, transfer what the grantor does not possess.³

C. EXCLUSION OF LOCATION. To exclude a prior duly located mining claim, which is subject to identification, from the operation of the patent, it is not necessary that the existence of the mining claim be then known to the land department.⁴

D. CHARACTER OF RELIEF. Proceedings to determine what lands, if any, covered by the patent, are included in the reserving clause of a railroad patent is not an action to annul or avoid a patent issued by the government of the United States. The effect of granting such relief does not in any way invalidate the patent in question.⁵

E. PROOF. Where a patent to a railroad company is issued subsequent to the location of a mining claim that is within the area described in the patent, the mineral claimant may prove that the demanded premises were mineral lands. Such a patent grants only lands which are non-mineral in character and the exception of mineral lands in the patent is part of the description and equivalent to an exception therefrom of all lands that were mineral.⁶

F. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. Such an action is not within the statute of limitations provided for under the act of 1896. (29 Stats. 42.)⁷

G. JUNIOR LOCATOR. Land patented as agricultural is conclusive as against a junior locator.⁸

H. SENIOR LOCATOR. But a prior locator may maintain suit to quiet title against a railroad patentee.⁹

1. Van Ness v. Rooney, (Cal.) 116 Pac. 394; see § 46, ante.

2. Van Ness v. Rooney, ante; see §§ 46, 162-168, ante..

3. Van Ness v. Rooney, ante; see § 206, ante.

4. Van Ness v. Rooney, ante; see § 37-3, ante.

7. Van Ness v. Rooney, ante; see §§ 46-82, ante.

8. Van Ness v. Rooney, ante; see § 23-2-3-4, ante (pp. 37-38).

9. Id.; see § 19, ante.

§ 40. Surveys. There have been but few cases considered by the courts involving the question of the power of the court to make an order for a survey of a mine prior to the institution of suit. It is conceded that, in the absence of statutory authority, such an order may be made. But where a statute providing for such survey does not authorize an order of survey except in a pending suit, it follows that such an order would be an excess of jurisdiction and void.¹

1. National Mines Co. v. Court, (Nev.) 116 Pac. 996.

§ 47. Mineral Deposits. Deposits of slate which do not carry deposits of any other valuable mineral, and are found in quantity and quality sufficient to render the land more valuable on that account than for agricultural purposes, are subject to appropriation under the placer mining laws.¹

1. Roy McDonald, 40 L. D. 7; see § 45-3, ante; § 96-4, ante.

§ 57. Grubstake. Where a prospector enters into a fraudulent conspiracy with third parties, refrains from doing those acts required by law to perfect the location, which he would otherwise have performed, and permits the claim to pass to his co-conspirators, the latter will be held to be trustees for the outfitter.¹

1. Lockhart v. Washington Co., (N. M.) 117 Pac. 833. See this case for form of complaint, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and of decree.

§ 58. Mining Partnerships. By cessation of work without agreement for resumption, a mining partnership is thereupon dissolved, and thereafter the partners are merely tenants in common and as such have no power to bind each other by contract.¹

A. ABANDONMENT ESSENTIAL. But there must be an abandonment of work before it can be said that the partnership is at an end.²

B. NO DISSOLUTION. If there be an understanding, express or implied, to resume work at a later date, the mere cessation of labor would not result as a dissolution.³

§ 59. Co-tenants. A conveyance of a mining claim to partners in designated undivided proportions is not a conveyance to the partnership, but to the partners as tenants in common.¹

A. NOT NECESSARILY PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY. Property may be used for partnership purposes and not belong to the partnership. It may belong to a third person, to one of the partners, or to the partners as tenants in common.²

B. ACCOUNTING. Where a tenant in common receives rent or royalty under a lease of the common property, made by him to a third party, he is subject to an accounting for only the amount thereof which has been received by him beyond his proportionate share.³

§ 61. Mining Leases and Licenses. Where the lessees of a mining claim are enjoined by the lessors from doing the agreed assessment work upon the claim and from working a valuable portion thereof until final hearing, the lessors cannot enforce forfeiture.¹

1. Rogers v. Halla, 187 Fed. 778.

§ 67. Deeds. Contracts excepting ores and minerals from grants of land, with a reservation of the right to enter upon the portion thereof granted, are in accordance with long-established usage and have been invariably held by the courts to be valid; hence they are not contrary to, but in harmony with, public policy.¹

A. SEVERANCE OF RIGHTS. A possession of the surface of land, exercised for agricultural purposes only, although taken and held under an ordinary deed purporting to transfer the complete ownership, is not adverse as to mining rights previously severed by a reservation in a conveyance in the same chain of title.²

§ 68. Examination of Title. See § 82, post.

§ 72. Abandonment. In a contest between adverse mineral claimants proof of a subsisting adverse location prior to that of either contestant rests upon the one alleging its existence.¹

A. PRESUMPTION. Upon proof of a valid prior location a prima facie presumption arises that the claim still subsists and had not been abandoned, although the testimony produced tends to show that there were no posts nor marks upon the ground to indicate that a prior location had been made.²

2. Id. See Temescal v. Salcido, 137 Cal. 211; Daggett v. Yreka Co., 149 Cal. 357.

§ 82. Patent. Where, through the mistake of the land department, land is patented to a subsequent applicant, suit may be brought either by the United States to set aside the patent, or by the prior claimant, to cause the title to such land to be held in trust for him, by such patentee.¹

A. LACHES. Laches does not apply to the United States.²

B. EFFECT OF RECORD. Mere reliance upon the record of the patent, under a state recordation law,³ will not protect a purchaser thereunder, as inquiry at the local land office would disclose the fact that such patentee was not entitled to the land as against the first applicant.⁴

1. Instructions, 40 L. D. 131; see Flossie Freeman, 40 L. D. 106; see § 125-6, ante.

§ 108. Coal Lands. The method of acquiring land under the Coal Land Acts is analogous to that of the Timber and Stone Acts, and not that of Homestead and Pre-emption Acts. Each of the spouses, exclusive of the other, can, during the marital relation, make an entry and acquire title either under the Coal Land Act or Timber and Stone Act.¹

1. Guye v. Guye, (Wash.) 115 Pac. 73.

§ 120. Placer Claims. Mere paper locations, under the placer laws, of lands upon which no discovery of oil has been made and upon which the mineral claimants are not prosecuting with diligence the work of making a discovery of oil, do not prevent appropriation of the land by location of "soldiers' additional rights."¹

A. EQUITABLE TITLE. Equitable title under "soldiers' additional applications" covered by such paper locations vests when the applicants thereunder have done all that they are required to do, unless the lands are at the time known to be oil lands.²

B. CHARACTER OF LAND. In determining the oil or non-oil character of the lands covered by the "soldiers' additional applications," evidence as to the discovery and development of oil in adjacent lands, and as to their geological formation, and the relation of the land in question to known oil fields, will be admissible.³

§ 125. Stone Claims. Land acquired under the Timber and Stone Act from the United States by either spouse during the marital relation is separate property.¹

A. PERSONAL INSPECTION. The regulation of the land department that the preliminary affidavit of an applicant to purchase under the Timber and Stone Act must be based upon personal inspection of the land is a proper and reasonable requirement under the Act, and a failure to comply therewith is sufficient ground for cancellation of the entry.²

B. BONA FIDE PURCHASER. A purchaser after final entry and before patent from an entryman who failed to make such personal examination, takes, subject to such defect, and is not entitled to special consideration as an innocent purchaser.³

§ 141. Water Rights (note 3). An Act substantially similar to the Act of 1911, (Cal. Stats. 1911, p. 271), which prohibits the transportation or carrying of certain waters from California into any other state for use therein, was previously enacted in New Jersey, (Laws 1905, c. 238, p. 461), and formed the subject for decision in the case of Hudson Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349. See s. c., 70 N. J. Eq. 695. The constitutionality of the latter act was upheld and the claim of its violation of the Interstate Commerce Act was therein denied.

§ 142. Rights of Way. No company will be recognized by the land department as a beneficiary under the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1891, granting rights of way over the public lands and reservations to Canal and Ditch Companies organized for the purpose of irrigation, until the formal presentation of an application for a specific right of way.¹

A. WHAT SHOWING MUST BE MADE. An application for right of way by a company claiming to own existing rights of way must be accompanied by a showing of the uses made of such rights of way, and those intended to be made of the additional right of way applied for, sufficient to enable the land department to determine whether the purposes of the company are properly within the intendment of the Act of March 3, 1891, as amended by the Act of May 11, 1898. § 165. Who Cannot be Locators. A deputy mineral surveyor cannot own shares in the capital stock of a corporation, nor act as its agent in the sale of town lots included within the area of an unpatented location and claimed by such corporation. He must either divest himself of such interest in or connection therewith or become liable to the revocation of his appointment as such official.¹

1. Chas. F. Saunders, 40 L. D. 217.

1. Charles H. Head, 40 L. D. 135.

§ 181. Lode Location within Placer Claim. In order to exclude a lode from a placer claim, the lode must have been known at the time the application for placer patent was made; but actual knowledge on the part of the placer applicant is not absolutely essential.¹

A. UNION OF RIGHTS. The same person may properly claim the same land under both a placer patent and a lode location.²

§ 194. Annual Expenditure. Expenditures on a tunnel under § 2323, Revised Statutes, may be credited toward meeting the requirements of the statute with respect to expenditures as to all existing claims in fact benefited thereby, if the prerequisite conditions of contiguity and community of interest are present.¹

1. William Dawson, 40 L. D. 17; see § 138, ante.

§ 211. Patent Proceedings. As a general rule, final certificate and patent for a mining claim now issues to the applicant in whose name the patent proceedings were initiated and prosecuted. In the event of his death, certificate and patent now issues in his name, and not to his heirs or devisees.¹

1. F. M. Graham, 40 L. D. 128, overruling Tripp v. Dunphy, 28 L. D. 14.

§ 212. The Survey. Under a recent regulation¹ the original plat of survey is forwarded by the surveyor-general to the General Land Office. The Commissioner causes three photolithographic copies to be made and sent to the former officer. He signs such copies and the four plats are filed and disposed of in the manner provided for by paragraph 34 of the Mining Regulations. Additional copies may be obtained from the surveyor-general for 30 cents each, or blue prints may be obtained from him at cost.

A. An expenditure of $500 in labor or improvements, to be available as a basis for patent for a mining claim, must have been made upon, or for the benefit of the location for which patent is sought.²

B. CONSOLIDATED PLACER CLAIM. Work performed upon and for the benefit of a 20-acre placer location is not available as a patent expenditure for the benefit of a maximum location of 160 acres by eight persons, embracing the 20-acre location and 140 acres of additional ground.³

C. CONTIGUOUS LODGE LOCATIONS. Where a number of valid lode locations, forming upon the ground a contiguous group, are embraced in a single application for patent, upon which due publication and posting of notice has been had, and the application is rejected as to one of the locations because of insufficient patent improvements, the remainder of the locations within the group, although not in themselves contiguous, may be patented in such single entry.⁴

D. PATENTING PART OF GROUP. The owner of a group of contiguous mining claims and of an improvement constructed for their common development and effective to that end, and of sufficient value for patent purposes as to the entire group, may, instead of embracing all the claims in one application for patent, apply for and obtain patent for a portion of such locations based upon their due share or interest in the common improvement.⁵

E. SUBSEQUENT TRANSFER. A subsequent break in the common ownership by a sale or other disposition of one or more of the patented locations, or of any interest therein, will constitute no bar to later patent proceedings for the remaining locations of the group, based upon their due share or interest in the same common improvement.⁶

§ 214. Proceedings in the Local Land Office. In the procedure under the mining laws the "application for patent" bears a close analogy to the initial pleading in a judicial proceeding.¹

A. NOTICE OF APPLICATION. The published and posted notice of the application is "process."²

B. AFFIDAVITS OF POSTING AND PUBLICATION. The affidavit of the posting of the notice and plat upon the claim, and proof of publication in the newspaper and of the continuous posting of the notice, correspond in legal effect to the sheriff's or marshal's return where personal service has been had, or to the preliminary affidavits and the proofs of publication, etc., where in appropriate cases substituted service has been resorted to.³

C. PRACTICE. A greater degree of strictness than obtains in judicial proceedings is not required by the land department in entertaining and proceeding with an application for mineral patent.⁴

D. AMENDED AFFIDAVITS. Proof of posting upon the claim and the verification of the application for patent when made before an inhibited official may be amended and filed as of the proper date if there is no question as to the fact of notice.⁵

E. NEWSPAPER. Where two newspapers are published practically the same distance from a tract for which patent is sought, both having a general circulation in the vicinity of the land, the register may designate either of them for the publication of the notice of application for patent, regardless of the fact that the rates of the paper so designated are less reasonable than those charged by the other newspaper.⁶

1. Stock Oil Co., 40 L. D. 198. As the land department is a special tribunal charged with the administration of the public land laws, exercising not only executive but judicial powers, an application to obtain a patent addressed to that tribunal should recite all facts necessary to show jurisdiction in the Department to convey the particular tract applied for to the particular individual applying for it. . . . A petition or application thus framed presents a foundation for such corroborative evidence as required by the rules. . . . The proceedings by which this jurisdiction is invoked should be conducted fairly on the line of proceedings in rem in courts of common law or equity jurisdiction. Lindley on Mines (2nd ed.), § 680.

2. Stock Oil Co., ante. The proceedings by which the patent for a mining claim is obtained are essentially in rem, and are binding upon all the world so far as any unrepresented adverse claim is concerned. They are judicial. The publication and posting of notice for patent is a process which brings all adverse claimants into court—a summons to all persons whose interests may be affected by the issuance of a patent to the tract applied for, to appear and file their adverse claims. Lindley on Mines (2nd ed.), § 713.

§ 214. Proceedings in the Local Land Office, (note 1). Paragraph 44 of the Mining Regulations has been amended so as to read as follows: "Before approving for publication any notice of an application for mineral patent, local officers will be particular to see that it includes no land which is embraced in a prior or pending application for patent or entry, or for any land embraced in a railroad selection, or for which publication is pending or has been made by any other claimants, and if, in their opinion, after investigation, it should appear that notice of a mineral application should not, for this or other reasons, be approved for publication, they should formally reject the same, giving the reasons therefor and allow the applicant 30 days for appeal to this office under the rules of practice." ¹

§ 214. Re-hearing (note 50). Rule 83 of the new Rules of Practice, (39 L. D. 395), providing for motions for re-hearing in lieu of motions for review under the old rules, (4 L. D. 37), are administered as nearly as possible in accordance with the rules governing re-hearings in courts of justice, and observance of its provisions are insisted upon by the land department.¹

§ 224. State Taxation. A proper method for ascertaining the value of a franchise of a corporation is by deducting from the aggregate market value of its shares the value of its tangible property, and taking the difference as the value of the franchise.¹

A. MARKET VALUE. Market value is synonymous with "value" and "full cash value" as defined by § 3716 of the Political Code.²
